Three hours' debate yields no decision

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

When Winchester's fall Town Meeting reconvenes Monday night, members will be arguing the same issue that ended last Monday's meeting: whether to establish a Housing Partnership Board.

Town opinions vary widely about what kind of beast Article 2, the Partnership Board proposal, would create. The board would examine and recommend a variety of housing solutions to Winchester's elected boards, its proponents say. But opponents say it would become a vehicle for the state to shove housing down the throats of town residents.

The debate on the article began with statements from its main proponent, Selectman Thomas Schmitt. He said the board "will make sure the town knows what's going on" in terms of housing options. Housing partnership boards were created by Gov. Michael Dukakis in 1985 "to assist local alliances develop their own approaches to affordable housing," Schmitt said.

Winchester Housing Authority member Dennis O'Malley told the meeting that the WHA is limited to certain types of housing. Limiting housing development to the authority would limit the town's options, O'Malley said.

Selectman Francis Sopper gave the minority opinion of the board. "I'm not interested in being part of a state bureaucracy," he said. "We can do it our own way with our own funds."

The Planning Board voted 3-2 to support the article. In its position paper, the board states, "A housing

TM votes to amend partnership article

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

After a three-hour debate, the first session of Winchester's fall Town Meeting adjourned with its first big issue — what to do about low- and moderate-income housing — still pending.

Although there was no vote on the creation of a Housing Partnership Board as proposed in Article 2, there was some action taken by Town Meeting. The meeting voted to amend the article on the recommendation of Government Regulations Committee Chairman Noreen M. Arcari. The article, unamended, would have created a partnership board by amending town bylaws. If the amended version passes, the board would be a creation of Town Meeting, but not part of the bylaws.

Arcari said her committee was uncomfortable with recommending the article favorably because it had not had enough time to review the language of the article.

Town Counsel Douglas Randall said the change would not affect the powers of the board, but might give it less stature in the eyes of the state.

The Board of Selectmen, the article's sponsors, made a change to the article before the debate began. The original article called for four members to be appointed by the selectmen; the one presented to Town Meeting called for the four members to be appointed by the town

Officials say Cross St. fire was set by arsonist

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Both police and fire officials believe the blaze that leveled the old Hudson Industries warehouse October 31 was deliberately set.

"The fire spread very quickly and produced a tremendous amount of heat. For these reasons I feel that an accelerant was used, though I could not find any traces of same," Fire Lt. Jon Freitas wrote in his report.

The State Fire Marshal's office inspected the site Monday. Police detective Joseph Perritano said preliminary findings show signs of arson. The case is still under investigation.

The property, located at 130 Cross St., is owned by State Rep. Angelo Marotta (D-Medford), who plans to build condominuims on the site. The land was rezoned by spring Town Meeting from light industrial to multi-residential for that purpose.

A second alarm was sounded eight minutes after the first because of the fire's proximity to the Johnson Fuel Co. Seven of that company's trucks, two of which were fuel trucks, were parked next to the building. The fire spread to the trucks, which were moved as firemen worked to put out the flames on the vehicles, according to the fire report.

The fire threatened to spread to the fuel company's office building, causing firemen to sound a third alarm, but the problem was avoided by keeping fire hoses stationed inside the structure. The fire department said the water and other damages caused a $50,000 loss.

Fire departments in Woburn, Reading, Lexington, Arlington, and Stoneham came to the aid of Winchester's firefighters both at the fire and as back-ups at the station in case of other emergencies. The last of that

Group of Precinct 8 residents decry plans to sell Woburn Loop

By SUSAN DIMMOCK
Special to the Star

A number of residents of Winchester's Precinct 8 have expressed their unanimous disapproval of the town's proposal to rezone and sell the strip of land in northern Winchester known as the Woburn Loop.

Approximately 50 people attended a Precinct 8 hearing Oct. 29 at VFW Post No. 3719 in Woburn. The meeting was called to discuss the warrant for fall Town Meeting, which begins Nov. 2.

Winchester purchased the Woburn Loop from the MBTA for $110,000 in 1984 and is currently proposing the sale of large portions of an 80-foot wide strip, running from Cross Street on the Woburn line to Hill Street, to three local developers.

Articles 19, 21 and 22 of the meeting warrant would amend the zoning bylaws governing the Loop; Article 21 would also allow the construction of an off-street parking facility on the Loop. Article 20 concerns the actual sale of the Loop.

According to those in attendance at the meeting, including 13 Town Meeting members, one of the strongest arguments against the sale to developers is that the Loop was originally purchased with its abutters in mind.

Michael D. Saraco, who presided over the hearing as the chairman of Precinct 8, said the sentiment behind the original purchase was to let abutters expand their individual properties by purchasing portions of the Loop from the town of Winchester.

Various abutters, including several on Wendell Street, told the meeting they were never notified of the town's intentions to sell the Woburn Loop for development. Saraco said several abutters had written to the town, asking about the status of the Loop, but that these letters were never answered.

Town Meeting member Margaret Schleicher said that the state Secretary of Transportation has ruled that the Woburn Loop should be reserved for "passive uses." Schleicher pointed out that the roadway which one developer, the Russo Trust, plans does not fall into such a category, and neither do the parking facilities proposed by the other two developers involved, Charles Ferrari and the Russell Hill Group.

Schleicher said she believes the town's entire effort to sell the Woburn Loop has been flawed. She suggested that Winchester "go back to the drawing boards."

Another major objection to the proposed sale is that the town has not yet settled upon a price. One resident suggested that Winchester fix a price on the Loop property and submit it for open bidding, giving abutters equal consideration with other prospective buyers.

Town Meeting member Michael Connolly said the town's exclusive negotiations with the three developers were simply an effort by the town to make as much money as possible, calling them an example of "wheeling and dealing."

Throughout the meeting John Morgan, an abutter to the Loop on Rock Avenue, circulated a petition to District Attorney Scott Harshburger "to investigate and prosecute owner Charles Ferrari for the illegal dumping of toxic waste materials."

According to Morgan, Ferrari has been dumping these materials, including various carcinogens and hydrocarbons, near Rock Avenue since 1980. Morgan expressed his belief that if Ferrari could be prevented from carrying out his plans for development, Russo and the Russell Hill Group could be stopped as well.

While virtually all of the Precinct 8 residents at the meeting expressed their opposition to the Woburn Loop articles, several were in disagreement as to the best method of defeating them.

Many felt that Winchester residents should vote in Town Meeting for indefinite postponement of Articles 19 through 22. Saraco argued that indefinite postponment of the rezoning and sale of the Loop would allow residents time to organize a "stronger front" of opposition.

Saraco expressed the hope that in the interim, the selectmen might be persuaded to meet with a committee of Precinct 8 residents so they could become more involved in the planning of the future of the Loop.

Several residents, however, including Connolly, claimed that the best course of action at the Town Meeting would be to simply vote "no" on the articles. These Precinct 8 members felt that residents of the remaining Winchester precincts would provide enough support to defeat the articles outright.

Though debate over this issue remained heated for several minutes, residents at the meeting did reach a consensus. A "sense of the meeting" vote revealed unanimous support for indefinite postponement of Winchester's proposal to rezone and sell the Woburn Loop.

The selectmen sponsoring these articles are themselves undecided about whether to indefinitely postpone them, since negotiations with the developers concerning the price of the Loop are still inconclusive.

WIN helps kids

Program spots trouble early

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

'Every child is a promise.'

That is the motto and philosopy of Project WIN - the Winchester Intervention Network.

Part of Winchester's Special Needs Education program, the WIN classrooms provide services to 3- to 6-year-olds with developmental delays in one or more areas: vision, hearing, fine and gross motor skills, cognitive skills, and speech and language skills.

"We try to promote an environment to guide children through all areas of development," commented Sheryl Norris, a member of the WIN team. Norris, the early childhood special needs teacher, works with a speech/language therapist, adaptive physical education teacher, home/school adjustment counselor, school psychologist, teacher aide, and parent volunteers, along with the overseer of the whole operation, Cynthia Papoulias, former coordinator/teacher. (As of a week ago Tuesday, Papoulias received approval from the Winchester School Committee to become the early childhood coordinator, a position enabling her to address the needs of all the young children in Winchester including Project WIN.)

"The staff is committed to a strong team effort in order to prepare the child for an independent, self-disciplined approach to learning," said Papoulias.

Federally funded through Special Education, Winchester's is a model program. Broken down into two main sections, WIN consists of an extended day program and a pre-school program but also includes special services such as speech and language therapy, occupational therapy and others by appointment. Parent groups are also offered to bridge the gap between home and school.

The first step is the screening process, assessing a child's general development. Testing of the development skills is incorporated in screening each child. Every 3- to 6-year old living in Winchester is eligible for the free screening and Papoulias encourages all parents to take the opportunity even if the result is just the reassurance that the child is developing normally. All screenings are reviewed by Papoulias and the WIN team members and the results are used to help teachers provide for individual differences.

The extended day program works with kindergarten-aged children in order to ready them for kindergarten or in some cases, the first grade. The individualized program allows for that flexibility.

Designed for 3- and 4-year-olds, the pre-school program uses a developmentally based curriculum providing for strengths, weaknesses, and learning style.

The goal of Project WIN is to help children reach their potential and to continue to learn and grow after leaving the WIN classrooms for the regular classrooms. Early intervention makes it possible to catch developmental delays before the child experiences frustrations in the later years of elementary school that could carry on throughout the rest of the child's education and produce low self esteem. The child need not know a strong sense of failure at the age of 10 or 11, project coordinators feel.

"Why not give these children a head start and catch them at an age when they are eager to learn and have not experienced failure which can result in low self esteem? If a child is inappropriately placed, that child may feel frustrated," said Papoulias. "They internalize these feelings and exhibit behavior problems or low self esteem. We are all going to learn at our own rate but adults struggle every day with self esteem. We want children to feel good about themselves. That is something they carry with them the rest of their lives."

A positive experience is what Project WIN is all about and the enthusiastic WIN team works to create that positive experience.

"They all need to be here," said Norris. "Some have language problems or delays in fine motor skills, i.e. difficulty holding a pencil. They all have different needs and they learn from each other. Peer teaching — pointing out what one child does well (modeling) works alot better. Making them active learners and letting the children realize they have certain skills and abilities and allowing them to be independent is important."

POLICE LOG

Sunday, November 1

At 3:55 p.m. police responded to a call from a Yale Street resident. A Cambridge man told police that while he was visiting his father on Yale Street, he looked out the window of the house and saw two youths near his car. The Cambridge man told police he saw one of the boys reach into an opened car window and take something out of the car.

Running out of his father'a house,the man told police that the boy saw him, dropped a pair of $300 sunglasses, and he and his friend ran. The Cambridge man chased the boys, but lost them, police said.

The man got the names of the boys from neighborhood youths and called police. When the officer arrived, he said he spoke to the youths the man named. The officer said they were on Cambridge Street, according to police.

The officer and the man went to Cambridge Street, where the man identified the boys. One, a 14-year-old, admitted reaching into the car. He said he was trying to find money in a cloth bag that was laying on the seat, according to police.

The other boy denied having anything to do with the incident, police said.

The man did not pursue the matter, because he had his sungalsses back, but police said the juvenile officer would contact the youths.

Saturday, October 31

While patrolling on foot at 10:50 p.m., a police officer was approached by Woburn Fire Chief Robert Doherty. Doherty told the officer that a girl had just thrown an egg at his car, according to police reports.

The chief's left front door and window had egg on them. He told the officer that a young, white female with curly blonde hair, a dark tweed jacket and jeans had thrown the egg. The chief said the girl was still standing at the guard rail near Andrea's Pizza.

The officer and the chief went to the site and the chief identified the girl. When police asked her if she knew who threw the egg, she said it was a blonde girl that ran down the abandoned tracks before police arrived.

At this point, the officer noticed the smell of alcohol on the girl's breath. He said that from her movements he suspected that she was hiding something. In his report he said he thought she might be hiding shaving cream because it was Halloween.

When the officer asked her what was in her pockets, the girl said "Nothing," but because the officer was suspicious, he asked her to show him the pockets. The officer said he found two 12-ounce cans of beer, according to reports.

The girl was arrested and charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol.

At 4:14 a.m. police went to Winchester Hospital to take a report of a motor vehicle accident. A Grove Place man fell asleep while driving his car and was driven to the hospital, according to police.

The man suffered multiple lacerations of the face, lacerations of the mouth and head trauma, police said.

The man said he was driving west on Leslie Road at about 25 or 30 miles per hour when he fell asleep. The car veered off the road and hit a Boston Edison pole. Police reported that the man's head hit the steering wheel and windshield and was bleeding.

The man said he summoned a car to drive him to the hospital. His car, a 1985 Honda Coupe, sustained damage to the front bumper, hood and engine, police said.

Thursday, October 29

While heading south on South Main Street at 11:45 p.m., police reported seeing a green Plymouth Duster pass two cars on the right side in front of the patrol car.

The officer stopped the driver, a Woburn man. A license check showed that the man had no license to drive, police said.

The man was cited on charges of passing where prohibited and driving without a license.

At 11:58 a.m. police stopped a car on Washington Street for speeding.

The driver, a Lawrence man, had had his license to drive revoked, police said. He was cited on charges of driving after a license revocation.

NEWS NOTES

Bill aiding libraries sent to the governor '

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh co-sponsored a bill that recently passed in the state legislature aimed at improving public libraries in the Commonwealth.

"Facing little or no federal help and with many communities at a fiscal rock bottom, libraries have had tough sledding over the past several years. This $35 million shot-in-the-arm is the correct prescription for the ills of many libraries," said Saltmarsh.

The measure is now on its way to the governor to be signed into law. It authorizes the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners to develop regulations for the spending of the $35 million through a grant program designed to fund planning, reconstruction, construction, design, acquisition, renovation, and expansion of public library projects. The grant funds would be used to pay for up to 75 percent of the costs of a project.

Committee to pick name for Wadleigh site

The Committee on Names will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Public Safety Building's upper lobby.

The committee will choose a name to recommend to Town Meeting for the Wadleigh School site. Any residents who have ideas for a name may bring their suggestions to the meeting.

The Board of Selectmen Monday night appointed Donna Curtis and Marcia Morris to fill two vacancies on the committee. Selectman Mark Lombardi and School Committee member Edward O'Connell are also members of the Commitee on Names.

Town manager warns against dumping leaves

Town Manager W. Chadwick Manner advises that it is unlawful to place or cause to be placed any leaves upon a public way within the town, as stated in Chaper 11, Section 2, of the General Bylaws of the Town of Winchester.

The municipal refuse collection complex on Swanton Street has an area set aside for the disposal of leaves from private property.

Leaves must be separated from other trash and removed from bags. Leaves collected will be composted and recycled for use as loam on town projects.

TOWN HALL OPENINGS

A vacancy currently exists on the Winchester Housing Authority, caused by the resignation of William A. McCarthy.

Applications for appointment are now being accepted by the Board of Selectmen. Anyone interested in being considered for appointment may send a letter of interest, stating his or her qualifications for the post. Letters, which should include a daytime phone number, will be accepted through Nov. 12.

Letters should be addressed to the Board of Selectmen, Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon St., Winchester, Mass. 01890.

The arts aid the learning process

By KATHERINE WORK
Special to the Star

Winchester Public Schools have embarked on a year-long "Celebration of the Arts" that will culminate in the spring with events in conjunction with the town's 350th birthday celebration. The system-wide steering committee is headed by Director of Art Tom Tracy and Director of Music Lynne Rahmeier.

In a recent interview with the two directors, the questions were posed: "Why are the arts basic to public school education? Why is it just as important for every child to have opportunities to sing and to draw as it is to study math and English? Why are more and more educators coming to recognize that the arts belong in the central core curriculum?"

Rahmeier talked about the importance of the arts in basic education. "Educators are discovering that there are different kinds of intelligence which need to be awakened and developed in children. Artistic intelligence is a way of perceiving the world that is different from the mathematician's for example. If we are to give all our children an opporunity to develop who they are, we need to provide for artistic experiences, too," she said.

Educator Howard Gardner has said that the arts, with their own symbol systems, are important in early years, as symbolization begins with the 2 to 5 year old. It has also been suggested that musical intelligence, if not tapped by 8 or 9, remains frozen at that level. If, however, it is developed, it can grow continually throughout the whole lifetime of the child. The basic curriculum must include the arts in order to unlock this potenial in all children.

As Art Director Tom Tracy, indicated, "The arts bring a third dimension in the educational program of the school: the personal dimension of feeling, sensitivity, empathy and expression. The visual arts specifically seek to involve the student in percieving the world he lives in, reacting to the things he sees and feels,and interpreting his emotions, feelings, and insights through a variety of visual materials."

Educators are also discovering that different children have different styles of learning. There is now "increase awareness," says Rahmeier, "of the importance of providing for children with a variety of learning styles." One child may learn best visually, another through sound, another through touch and movement, another through the verbal. There need to be opportunities for creativity and for individual initiative. "We in education are beginning to recognize that providing just one approach creates too many failures," she adds.

Learning through doing, called "enactive learning," is increasingly recognized by educators as greatly benefitting the child. It makes sense, for example, for children to use their voices and their bodies as they learn, since these modes of expression are most natural for them. Eliot Eisner, author of "Cognition and Curriculum," makes a strong case for the arts in the curriculum, stating that the enactive learning and the variety of learning modes possible through the arts can provide models for other fields of learning.

Tracy and Rahmeier point out that using as many of the senses as possible enhances the learning process. Research shows that more connections are made between the right and left sides of the brain when different senses are used; the more paths the neurons travel, the more reinforcement there is for the learrning.

The arts involve the senses — the ear and the tactile in music, the kinesthetic sense of the body in dance and movement, visual and tactile senses in drawing or painting and sculpture. When music or painting is part of a unit of study — on Mexico, for example, or on the nature of atoms and molecules — the learning process can be more dynamic and effective.

In the arts, the child engages in creative projects which call forth his imagination and his initiative. In such projects a child learns to trust his own experience and to draw cognitive knowledge from his own discoveries. He experiences a real pleasure in growth, in experiential learning.

Because the arts foster growth and integration, they can be a model for total eduction. In fact, "a music and art program must make sense in the total education of the child, or they don't make sense as arts education." Rahmeier says. Tracy adds,"Through an art program, the teacher offers children the opportunity to develop creative and intuitive approaches to problem solving. Although the sciences provide the means through which man achieve survival, the arts are what make survival worthwhile."

The directors emphasize that creativity is very important in all fields of education. "We now know that we can teach creativity," Rahmeier says, "and the arts are a most significant way to teach it." There are steps that can be taught, through imitation and modeling, and through expanding the child's skill in dealing with new ideas. A child thus develops a framework for evaluating and using what his imagination produces.

It is important to remember that the arts benefit all chidlren and society. "The arts provide their own reward," agree Tracy and Rahmeier. There is nothing like the thrill of being in a performance or of showing someone a picture you have made. When asked what she would want all children to gain from the study of music, Rahmeier replied, "The joy! Joy is the most powerful motivator for learning."

Winchester High School celebrates the arts

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY

Humanities activities

During the month of November the humanities class will focus upon the medieval period and the early Renaissance. The class will be immersed in Gregorian chant while viewing slides of great art from the Middle Ages through the High Renaissance.

After reading Dante's Inferno, students will have an opportunity to create their own version of hell in artistic or literary forms. After completing Rome's contribution to our classical legacy, the historical roots of the Middle Ages will be examined before penetrating the social, economic and political foundations of the Italian Renaissance.

An example of superior work during the first term is an essay written by senior Tom Leonard as part of a test on Antiquity. It is a fine model of what we strive for in the class.

The Jewish legacy

Today, roughly 4,000 years after the first covenant with Abraham, the influence of the Jewish Legacy cannot be denied.

Every populated continent has felt its impact to some degree, and it has become an integral part of the cultures of the west. The legacy consists of both Jewish history and the monotheistic, ethical ideologies of the Jews. The Jewish Legacy has, through Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, spread throughout the western world and western influenced cultures.

The first part of the Jewish legacy is the semi-factual historical factor. The Jews had recorded both in written and oral forms a large part of their own history. The earliest covenant between God and Abraham laid the groundwork for what was to come: ethical monotheism. The second covenant, between Yahweh and the Jews established by Moses, expanded the influence and requirements of God on one's everyday life. These early ideas were combined in the poetry known as the Old Testament. The book served as a final written record of the ongoing history of the Jews.

The second aspect of the Jewish legacy is the ideologies behind the stories of the Old Testament: one supreme God, respect for family, social justice and responsibility, the concept of guilt, and the promise of the better life in the future; this was ethical monotheism. The Ten Commandments played an important role in the establishment of those ideals. The monotheistic view of the world was made final with "There is one lord, thy God" and "Thou shalt not worship false Gods." This was different and important in the context of the era. The others served as rules for running a village, and they grew to become an integral part of how people related, what was good and bad, and guilt. Strong theological guilts were something new, and psychologically important.

The Jewish legacy has, since the birth of Christ, influenced all of western society. It played a role in Islam, Christianity, and its mother Judaism. Through the conquests of the Islamic people in the 700s the crusades and the colonial, imperialist age, the Jewish Legacy has spread all over the world into many cultures of diverse origin.

The arts in languages

The arts are well intergrated, at all levels, in the foreign language classes at the high school, says Rita Shiller.

The teachers of Spanish have students study the crafts, folk-art and music folk-lore of Spain and Latin America. Recipes and hands-on Julia Child's Spanish chef day are only a small portion of projects linking creativity with the foreign language.

While one class is examining (through slides and photography) architectural Spanish styles, another may be preparing Mexican tortillas, and still another may be recognizing the rhythms of Flamenco, Mariachi, Tango, Conga or Merengue.

In all foreign language classes the giants of art are studied within that specific proficiency level. Projects range from working on a Roman chariot (working model!) to pinatas and posters.

In French classes the link to art ranges from "degustation" (tastings) to guitar/accordion accompaniment to Latin or French songs.

Projects range widely from dramatic presentations to improvisations, student-created newspaper, student created original games.

Masters addresses high school

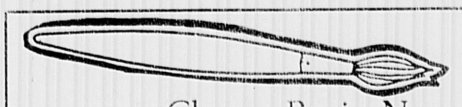

Brian Master, historian, critic and biographer addressed junior and senior high school English classes Oct. 30. Masters, born and educated in England, began his writing career as editor of Guides to Modern European Literature.

Throughout his life, he has maintained a lively interest in the performing arts, especially in theatre and dance, and he has been a frequent contributor to the London Times, Observer, and Spectator. He has published several works on the history of the British aristocracy and, on a lighter side, British pop culture.

Prior to coming to Winchester, Masters talked to students in Providence, R.I., and Weston. His topic in Winchester was "One Writer in His Time."

Another arts project scheduled for the English department is a ninth grade field trip to The Diary of Anne Frank at the Merrimack Theatre in Lowell. In preparation for the trip, in Mrs. Reid's class, Carla DeVrieze will describe the Annex, Franks' hiding place. She will supplement her talk with a display of memorabilia, some of which has been donated by students after a visit to Amsterdam.

A project scheduled for later this month incorporates the art of public speaking and reading for enjoyment. Mrs. Howard's speech classes will make their annual appearance in the primary grades at Muraco and Lincoln elementary schools.

Columnist Marotta builds her following with optimism and personal contacts

By DON CUMMINGS
Special to the Star

There is Bombeck, Buckley, Buchwald and Goodman. And there is Terry Marotta. One of Winchester's own provides a writer's voice within the mouthpiece of a weekly column.

The tone of the voice is tinged with optimism in the more than 40 weekly and daily newspapers from Michigan to Maine (including the Winchester Star) in which her column appears.

"I'm really an optimist," she says. "I believe what I say should include something significant, something optimistic."

Her optimism should also apply to others who believe that their advanced age makes a writing career an impossibility.

As a youth she kept diaries in binders the size of atlases, but she did not craft any serious writing until the age of 31. During the interim she graduated Smith College, married, taught English at Somerville high School and mothered two children.

When her second child was 18 months old, she entered a Parent's Magazine writing contest and received an honorable mention. The writing bug had bitten deep.

"I had taken a leave of absence because of the children," she explains. "And I really missed the communication of ideas with my students."

She came from a family of storytellers, and now she began to tell her own stories.

"To tell what I saw," she says.

After the Parent's Magazine piece, she wrote for the Star for two years and then attempted to find additional markets for her column. Her burgeoning stable of publications testifies to her success.

But it's not easy being a columnist without the benefit of syndication. For as Marotta explains "while being a writer involves certain talents, selling your writing involves another talent." She travels throughout New England and beyond in the quest for interested editors. A trip up to Bangor or down to York, Pa., comes with the territory. She attempts to make it home in time for dinner with her husband and three children.

When she began her column, most of her ideas came from the home front. But now they flow from many directions. And the yellow legal pads constantly in her possession take the brunt of much scribbling.

"I scribble every day," she says. "After aerobics, before weightlifting, in the car, wherever."

One place where she would most like to do her scribbling is in outer space. Selected in 1986 as one of 100 finalists in the Journalist in Space contest, she awaits the time when NASA will take the applications off their current hold status and decide upon an appropriate time for the first journalist to travel through space.

She has followed faithfully the encouragement of the high school English teacher who wrote in her yearbook "I hope you do write."

Terry Marotta sits in her favorite seat by the window of her study at home.

Latanisions' work to grace calendar

Carolyn Latanision of Nassau Drive was among those honored at the 27th anniversary of the North Suburban Art Exhibit held recently at the American Mutual Insurance Companies in Wakefield.

Latanision also had the distinction of having her work selected for reproduction in American Mutual's annual art calendar. Her painting was chosen for the month of December. Ivan Latanision's photograph, "New Life," will be on the calendar's month of November.

The original watercolor donated by Carolyn Latanision was raffled off at the close of the exhibit. It was won by Jeff Kehler of Beverly.

Latanision's Water Color, "South Station, Boston," won the American Mutual Award.

Veterans' march scheduled for Nov. 11

The Winchester Veterans Day Committee invites all veterans to participate in the observance of Veterans Day Wednesday Nov. 11.

Commander Norman Doucette of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Commander William Stevenson of the American Legion will welcome all Winchester veterans to participate in the ceremony. Uniforms are not required.

Veterans will meet on Laraway Road by the Winchester Common at 10:30 a.m. to depart for the war memorial at Main Street and the Mystic Valley Parkway at 10:45 a.m. The group will then proceed to the honor roll at the town hall. After a service the group will disband. Those who cannot march can meet the parade at the honor roll for the service.

Veterans from the town are encouraged to take part in the services. The Winchester High School Band will play taps at the war memorial and again at the honor roll.

Organist to perform at First Congregational

Organ recitalist Yuko Hayashi will perform in concert Sunday, Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church.

Hayashi has concertized on historical instruments in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Switzerland. Her frequent American appearances have included recitals at the national conventions of the Organ Historical Society and the America Guild of Organists.

Early in her career, Hayashi was organist at the First Congregational Church, serving from 1959 through 1963. Currently, she is chairman of the organ department at New England Conservatory, where she has fostered a study program that draws students from around the world.

The repertoire for Sunday's program includes composers from Sweelinck to Bustehude in the North German tradition, and Central and South German composers up to Bach's time. It will not exceed one hour. The performer has indicated that many pieces are very accessible and easy to listen to. A secondary highlight of the evening is the opportunity to hear the works performed on the Fisk organ of the church.

There is no admission to the program; a free offering will be taken. For more information contact Carol Weir at 729-3667.

We intend to remain the most convenient and helpful store for our customers."

"1895 to 1987... Grossman's Celebrates It's 92nd Anniversary"

The original "Do-it-yourselfers"

The company that first coined the phrase, "Do-it-Yourself" almost 40 years ago has an even longer history in the home improvement and building materials business.

American Dream

The story of Grossman's is a mirror of the American Dream. Back in 1890, Louis Grossman left Tsarist Russia for the promise that America held. He crossed the Atlantic on a $17 steerage passage and arrived at Ellis Island later that year. Soon afterward, Louis and his family settled in Quincy, Massachusetts.

Determined to have his own business, Louis first had to overcome the barriers of learning a new language and a new way of life. His first venture was peddling second-hand furniture through the Quincy and Boston areas.

The Beginning

In 1896, Louis' new business of selling lumber and building materials had really started to take hold. By 1929, Louis and his four sons set up a center of operation in Quincy which became the area's largest retail building outlet.

In the '30s and '40s, the company also handled a large volume of salvage operations in the wake of the Great New England Hurricane of 1938 and World War II.

By this time, the company had expanded to three stores. But the bulk of its operations remained in the salvage business until the early 1950's.

Grossman's also aided many financially troubled towns. In 1954, Sydney Grossman became Maine's first honorary citizen when he re-industrialized the town of Sanford.

Business was booming at Grossman's in the 1950's.

Continued Growth

Today, Grossman's has grown to encompass 157 stores and is the largest home improvement and building materials supplier in the Northeast.

More importantly, 1987 marks the beginning of the "new" Grossman's. Every store across the entire chain has been or is being remodeled and expanded to include many decorator departments from kitchens and baths to lighting and window decor.

Grossman's, a part of your community, because for over 92 years now, they've been making project dreams come true.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Those who don't want housing should just say so

Town Meeting crawled off to a cantankerous start this week. A roomfull of Winchester's leaders only managed to cover a part of one article in three hours. At this rate Town Meeting will last until the world decides whether Arthur Griffin is a great photographer or not.

It seems that the basest instincts of mankind are what prevented any forward motion on Article 2, which seeks to establish a Housing Partnership Board. Fear, greed and ignorance reigned in the high school auditorium for most of the night: fear that this new board would take control of the town and force on it unwanted programs, greed in not wanting to share even the tiniest portion of the pie with the less privileged, ignorance about the basic facts of the decision before the town.

Can a town of such supposedly enlightened people, the creme de la creme, those who have the intelligence to have made it in spades, embrace such behavior?

The article's proponents cite a study, Pattison-Slavet, and make recommendations. The immediate reaction in some quarters is that some subversives are trying to implement all of the recommendations. The recommendations are options, meant to be discussed rationally and chosen as they fit the particulars of the situation. They are not "The Communist Manifesto."

For anyone to characterize the appointment, as opposed to the election, of officials as "Marxist philosophy" betrays woeful ignorance.

Attempts to dispel some of the fear by a liberal spreading of information meet with entrenched resistance. Robert Frank, a member of the study group on low and moderate income housing, puts human faces on the specters that might possibly occupy public housing in Winchester. He says many town employees would qualify for one or another of the programs.

David Mortensen, the study group's chairman, tried to get people to see that the Housing Partnership Board would allow the town to examine the array of options available to it. Why wouldn't people at least want to hear the evidence?

There has been a certain amount of concern expressed lately about the rapid loss of the town's remaining open land open. Winchester has consistently sold public land to developers in the past, putting aside very little for public use. All of a sudden, when only a couple of hundred square yards of park land are left, the town sprouts a junior Sierra Club. Where did all this conservationist sentiment come from?

Mark Lombardi once said that as far as he was concerned, no public housing should be built in Winchester. He stated his reasons, noting that non-cooperation with the state has its price, the loss of "free bricks," as he put it. He stood on his principles as a conservative. There is something respectable about that.

But most people flinch when confronted with the hard stare of real ideas. They turn away from honest statements and prefer to cloak their intent in euphemisms. Thus people who are against housing talk about preserving open land. It sounds nicer.

Some worry about the state taking over the town government, forcing unwanted programs on the poor, beleaguered town as if the state doesn't have enough problems running itself. What paranoia.

The board would seek grants, keep tabs on linkage relationships and advise the town on its options. It would have no power to act on its own. It would be a liaison with the state.

Why does there need to be a liaison with the state at all? To go back to the basics of government, before there was any, people did what they wanted and violated the space of anyone unable to defend themselves. Along came social organization. The government was charged with looking out for the good of the total population, often at the expense of the individual.

In the U.S. we have a number of levels of government. The town tells people to keep their leaves off the road for public safety reasons, even though it would be more convenient to just rake them out there. The state implements housing programs because people need housing, even though individuals find that inconvenient. The federal government taxes people to pay for large projects necessary for the public good, but too large for any private group to undertake.

Government arbitrates among the competing rights of individuals. Such compromise is what civilization is all about.

Town Meeting members have generated all manner of spurious arguments about why a Housing Partnership Board should not be implemented. They are not ready to abandon the goodies the state is holding out as a carrot, and this keeps them from speaking their minds honestly.

To have a board or not to have a board, this is no longer the question. The question is how is Town Meeting going to move the debate off of dead center?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident urges a no vote on Articles 7, 10

TO THE EDITOR:

Re: Articles 7 and 10

If the possibility of affordable housing is to be a goal for this next generation to see, there must be an effort in the town's decision making to support it. The home builder's cost to produce houses has risen drastically. A few examples are:

1.) Building permit fees have increased from the $50 range to $1,000 and more per home.

2.) Engineering reports to satisfy local conservation interest groups cost on the average of $3,000 per lot.

3.) Lot costs have gone from $10,000 to $150,000 within a 10-year period. Opportunites to build have been curtailed by anti-growth movements.

The supply of lots and opportunites comes from the townspeople, the decision makers. I look at the upcoming Town Meeting and see total disaster. Not just for home builders but the families that are buying new homes this year. We tend to forget what that was like. There is nothing in the way of giving builders an opportunity to create lower-cost housing, or allowing planning boards to grant special permits for "Creative Housing." You have to stimulate talent in order to increase supplies. Some articles before Town Meeting this year are more of the constant negative proposals to further restrict lot size, shape, etc. and add cost.

I urge Town Meeting members to vote NO on Articles 7 and 10 due to their outweighing negative aspects instead of positive features. For the relatively few vacant lots that remain in this town of approximately 8,000 homes, there are adequate protective rules to keep harmony. Listen to anyone who has had the experience of building or doing an addition to his home.

Past President of the Builders Association of Greater Boston

Kindergarteners visit merchants

TO THE EDITOR:

The children of Lincoln School kindergarten are learning about the public and commercial services that the people of Winchester enjoy.

We would like to thank the following merchants in the downtown area for agreeing to open their premises recently to the discriminating eyes, feet and hands of 16 curious children:

Baskin-Robbins, C & G Restaurant, Evana, Joken's Card Gallery, One Mount Vernon Street, Ristorante Lucia, Sal's Beauty Salon, Scotti and Company, Inc., Swanson Associates Realtors, Winchester Ltd. Jewelers, and Winchester Shoe Hospital.

Through the enthusiastic cooperation of store personnel the children enjoyed a positive educational experience that broadened their view of our great town.

Resident thanks paramedics

TO THE EDITOR:

My wife and I would like to express a "special" thank you for the Winchester Fire Department and particularly the paramedics.

On Sunday morning, Oct. 11, the paramedics were called to our home, where I was in a situation that I was unable to control. I had lost my breath and had a very difficult time breathing. All I could do was gasp.

They arrived promptly and, with their skill and knowledge, soon remedied the situation, after which I was taken to Winchester Hospital.

Again, many, many thanks to them.

Jupiter leaves viewers transfixed

By TERRY MAROTTA

In 1847, a telescope called the Great Refractor was installed on Observatory Hill in Cambridge, Massachusetts; but I, installed in a town nearby some hundred years later, did not find out about it 'til last Thursday night.

That evening, in the name of adult education, in the name of all things I yearn still to know and understand, I attended one of the Observatory Nights held there, which include a lecture, some slides, and, weather permitting, a peek from the roof through one of the Great Refractor's more modern descendants.

The evenings are free of charge and open to the public, which at half-past seven Thursday variously trooped and zipped and dawdled into the old hall and sat down, amid a great clattering of wooden chairs. There were ladies in the high altitudes of 70. There were kids no older than ten. A pair of engineers fresh out of grad school sat behind me, clucking together about jobs and salaries, and jointly disparaging others at their place of business.

Down toward the front a gaggle of girls sat, visitors under duress, it looked like, from a local high school's general science class. They gestured and threw their pony-manes this way and that and cast aqua-lined eyes about the room searching for prospects. The prospects sat up back, wearing leather jackets and looks of pure and youthful male boredom.

When the speaker began, he began with an overview of all we've learned about the skies in the 30 years since Sputnik. He described the weather on Venus, and the old ladies oohed at the thought of temperatures hot enough to melt lead. He talked of Uranus and the leather set snorted, spinning in their tiny minds the usual puns and double-entendres. He threw up slides of moon after planetary moon, with their wonderful names out of Shakespeare and the classics: Titania, and Oberon; Callisto and Ganymede. He showed us Jupiter, called the lord of all planets, and Jupiter's four largest moons, called the Galileans after the man who first spotted them in 1610.

At lecture's end, on the way to the telescope, one of the general science girls was heard to say to her friends, "Find Mr. Sullivan, quick! Make sure he sees us. Then we can duck out the back and skip the stupid roof."

They found Mr. Sullivan, produced a bright chorus of warbling hellos, and found themselves a moment later on the roof anyway.

There, the 20th century fell away. The twinkling towers of Boston looked a distant illusion. The housetops and chaste steeples of Cambridge lay all about us; her generous old oaks and maples, dyed bronze and golden now, bloomed wide and tranquil among them, like chrysthanthemums. The year could just as easily be 1847, with the clip-clop of horses sounding in the streets, and Professor Longfellow himself penning rhymes in his big yellow house.

A hush fell upon us. It was cold up here. We stood in near-silence, and waited, one by one, for our glimpse through the telescope, trained this night on that bright star low on the horizon, which was no star at all, it seemed, but Jupiter herself, her larger moons dancing attendance around her.

She was beautiful. Silent. Mysterious. I had never seen her before, or seeing, known it was she that I looked upon. I felt changed when my moment was over. Felt like the child again who plays heedless and self-absorbed beneath the shelter of the parents' existence.

Crossing the roof to the stairs that would lower us earthward again, I passed general science, gathered boys and girls together now, about the slim form of Mr. Sullivan, whose hair was thin, whose sportscoat was thinner. He was gesturing into the skies.

"Cassiopeia," he pronounced reverently, pointing. And in another quarter, "Sagittarius." And the faces of the young folks were transfixed.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Volume 13-Report No. 44
Massachusetts House and Senate
October 26-30, 1987

The House, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on nine roll calls from the week of October 26-30.

Pay Raise (H 5905)- House first approved 74-73, then rejected 77-71, an amendment to a bill establishing a new pay schedule for Supreme Judicial Court clerks. The amendment gives a $5200 pay raise to Dan Pokaksi, former state representative and now clerk of the Suffolk Superior Court's criminal division.

Amendment supporters said the raise is well deserved and noted Pokaksi has additional work and responsibilities that no other clerk has.

Opponents, noting Pokaksi just received a $9000 hike, said the amendment is an outrageous pay grab for a former representative.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Illegal Contributions (H 3655)- House 143-5, rejected a bill allowing the filing of an election petition against a candidate who solicits or receives or permits a person to solicit or receive an illegal campaign contribution. An election petition, filed by the Attorney General or five or more voters, is a mechanism used to prove a corrupt practice during a campaign and which can prevent a winning candidate from taking office.

Supporters said this simply adds "knowingly accepting an illegal contribution" to the long list of offenses which could be used to file an election petition.

Opponents offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

PACs (H 3675)- House 115-39, rejected an amendment to a bill limiting contributions to candidates from political action committees (PACs) to $1000 during a calendar year and limiting contributions from state political committees up to $3000. The amendment would strike the $3000 state party limit.

Amendment supporters said state political parties should not be considered special interest groups and noted the limit will hurt the Republicans.

Opponents said political parties can become a conduit for PACs and argued the limit is necessary.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

$10,000 and $50,000 (H 3675)-House, 117-34, rejected PAC amendment prohibiting any candidate from accepting more than a combined total of $10,000 from PACs in one year, and then 106-40, rejected $50,000 limit.

Amendment supporters said that aggregate limit is necessary to truly reform the law and prevent the powerful leadership from collecting from dozens of PACs.

Some opponents said the limits will result in the Senate killing the bill. Others said the limits should be dealt with in separate legislation.

A Yea vote is for the limit. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed. The first is on a $10,000 limit. The second is on the $50,000).

Saltmarsh voted yes on both rolls.

Unions (H3675)- House 111-36, rejected an amendment limiting contributions to candidates from any unincorporated organization to $1000 per year.

Amendment supporters said this will insure that unions and several other organizations across the state which usually contribute to Democrats, are also limited to $1000.

Opponents said the amendment has nothing to do with PACs and should be defeated.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Water Supply (S 2034)- House 109-40, rejected an amendment to the Senate version of the $280 million solid waste grant program package. The amendment prohibits any solid waste disposal facility from being located within one mile of a public drinking water supply or one half mile of a river or lake.

Amendment supporters said this broadens the scope of concern for water supplies beyond what is in the bill.

Opponents said the bill already provides strong protections and claimed the amendment is designed to prevent the town of Weston from being considered as a site.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Assessments do not reflect properties' real values

By EUGENE ROTONDI SR.
Special to the Star

It could never happen, as most people informed me, and they continued, both markets will go higher and higher. I answered how higher can they go. They laughed and shrugged me off, comparing me to a relic gone by. I still insisted the bubble will burst.

The recent stock market crash proved stocks can't go higher and higher for it appears a crash is imminent, in fact, how high can corporate earnings go. Stocks purchased for $10 a share or less, climbed to $90 or more a share. Something had to give. The higher you go the greater the fall, so the bubble did burst.

As the stocks went higher and higher so did the real estate market. Most people in Winchester honestly believe their individual properties are worth $250,000 or more, but when their asssessment goes up, and they pay more taxes, they all object. There is no question that property tax assessments are based on a inflationary market.

How much higher can these property values go? I predict another bubble is about to burst. In this present Market how many of our young people starting life can afford to live in Winchester? Low and moderate income housing could solve some of their problems. Of course, Winchester frowns upon such housing. The problem remains, how can thousands of others afford housing in Winchester? In the 1940s homes bought for $5,000 or less are now assessed at $175,000 or more.

Monthly taxes on an average home in Winchester total $200 or more. Combine this amount with mortgage payments, interest, living expenses, education of children, health care, insurance, state and federal taxes, automobile expenses, telephone and light, and don't forget the new sewer tax. Forget entertainments for those who have survived in Winchester, now in their twilight years, most on a fixed income, how can they possibly pay taxes on thier homes with our ever increasing assessmerts; it appears the only answer is sell and move out. It seems a tragedy for those who have supported Winchester for years, to be now forced to pay up or move out.

Proposition 2½, voted by the people, would solve all of our problems. How wrong they are, for all the assessors have to do is year after year raise property assessments. The higher the town assessment the lower the taxes. Hogwash, can anyone in this town come forward and state they are paying less.

Most home lots in the 50s were sold for $8,000. Today they are assessed for $75,000 or more. Higher and higher they go how higher can they go? I believe in this area of property values, another bubble will burst. Or should the real estate market reach crazy heights, the greater the fall.

At this point I would like to bring to the voters of this town, a controversy surrounding the 273 property at the Stoneham-Winchester line. In 1986 this property was submitted to the town for the building of low and moderate income housing. Never in my life have I witnessed a group of neighbors who more opposed a development. I understood their feelings and resentments; they did not wish to have neighbors next door who they possibly could not communicate with.

However, the state mandated such a program, thus leaving the town with no jurisdiction in the matter. However, to please the neighbors we proceeded to submit a sub-division plan. Prior to this plan, events happened. Neighbors, incensed over the proposal for low and moderate housing, contacted assessors in regard to the valuation of said tract. The land was assessed at $31,500 in keeping with surrounding land areas. In the month of May before the Fiscal Year 1986 was over, assessors sent a registered letter to Foresdale Realty Trust stating that this area was increased in assessment to $324,000, an increase of $293,000. I believe this is the first time in the history of the town of Winchester that such an unreasonable, hateful, revengeful action was taken, approved by Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Murphy.

This tax assessment is now before the tax appellate board for a hearing. At the time of the letter raising the assessment, why didn't the Wittet land of 3½ acres, adjoining the 273 land, the General Foods land of seven acress, the Shannon land of 10 acres and the Castignetti land behind the 273 property receive notices from the Board of Assessors, that their lands would also be revalued?

Was it because Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Murphy were also opposed to low and moderate income housing, therefore agreed with the neighbors in opposition?

We now come to a sub-division plan for the construction of homes. We believed the neighbors would be happy, and that no objections would be forthcoming. We were wrong for again they came out of the woodwork. Their objecion this time: Land not suitable for building of homes, for now they claim it is wetlands.

As a person well experienced in engineering, construction, drainage areas, water problems, working with these problems for 67 years, I consider myself to be an expert.

However, you have people in their 20s working for environmental affairs claiming that this land is wetland located 285 feet above sea level a drop to Winchester Center of 250 feet. The area involved could not possibly hold water with such a drop to the Aberjona River for drainage. Apparently, the student is now instructing his professor. At present, this area of land is before the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering. It seems neighbors and apprentices, can convince said department to hold up the development of this land for months. I suggested to the owners, Bradshaw Realty Trust, that legal action should be instituted, that all who are involved and responsible for preventing this land from being developed, should be sued, and have all of them appear in a court of law to prove and substantiate their actions.

Coming back to assessments, I am of the opinion, based on my years of experience that most properties in Winchester are overassessed. Upon checking various valuations I found out that many are not on an equitable basis. I believe there are many problems in assessing property. I believe the best solution for Winchester is to hire a fully qualified person who knows and understands real estate to be employed full time, who will have the time to check every piece of property in this town, and hence come up with a proper assessment.

> 'I believe this is the first time in the history of the town of Winchester that such an unreasonable, hateful, revengeful action was taken...'

I do not believe property in Winchester should be based on present inflationary market. Reasonable assessments should be made. Taxes must be lowered, spending must be curtailed.

I also recommend that a taxpayers group be formed that will keep a sharp eye on assessment methods, that will pick the best qualified candidates to serve on the board of assessors.

At age 81 I have thought of the possibilities of seeking office as an assessor, healthy in body and mind, I am sure I could be of some assistance to the board. Mr. Borggard reflects his own experience and wisdom. If I decide to run, the town can rest assured all will be treated fairly. No one in this town or elsewhere who owns real estate in this town will be unjustly and unfairly treated.

In closing I hope and pray my neighbors come to their senses and realize that a neighborhood built in their area will improve their properties, it probably will be one of the most attractive subdivisions in the pursuit of happiness, and participate in the banquet of life. We have enough problems in the world. We in Winchester should work together and learn to love and respect each other.

Griffin presents his credentials

Last week Arthur Griffin, responding to a comparison made between him and Ansel Adams in an editorial, brought a letter to the Star's offices, which he indicated he wished to share with readers.

It is reprinted here:

December 3rd, 1962

Dear Mr. Griffin,

Dr. Rensom Bird, President Emeritus of Occidental College, just returned from an eastern trip and showed me a copy of your excellent book on NEW ENGLAND.

I was much impressed with your production, photographs, and text relationships. I am also impressed with the $14.95 price! which seems rather generous in view of the mounting costs of printing — especially with the tip-in books! Please understand — by generous I mean low!

As a director of the Sierra Club and directly interested in much of our publications program, I have a good working idea of what producing and publishing means. You perhaps have seen our various ambitious books: THIS IS THE AMERICAN EARTH (Adams-Newhall), WORDS OF THE EARTH (CEDRIC WRIGHT), IN WILDNESS IS THE PRESERVATION OF THE WORLD (Thoreau text-color photographs by Eliot Porter), and THIS WE INHERIT (Adams). These have gone exceedingly well. I believe you can see them in most bookstores.

I have suggested that the Sierra Club order one of your books. Having just moved to Carmel, I am on a personal budget limitation. But I did want to tell you how much I enjoyed the book, and how much I appreciate many of the elements of style and production — notably the horizontal format for your excellent horizontal pictures.

cordially,
Ansel Adams

The exchange is open for receipt of clothes for sale on Wednesdays, and for sale of clothes on Wednesdays, day and evenings, Thursdays, morning and afternoons, and Fridays and Saturdays in the morning only.

The 1988 EN KA Fair, which will be held May 20 and 21, is being planned to coordinate with the town's celebration of its 350th birthday, and will be titled "A Birthday Affair."

Bargain Box workers had a successful day of sales at the recent Chamber of Commerce Flea Market. Boutique items are currently being made and more members are needed. The Jewelry Table Chairman has requested that donations of old jewelry be made as soon as possible.

The Civic Committee reported that all services for Mt. Vernon House residents are well staffed. Sign-up sheets for additional volunteers for preparation of snacks for the ABC House, for drivers for the Meals-on-Wheels Program, and workers for the VNA Christmas Gifts program were circulated. Volunteers were also requested by the Social Service Committee, for preparation of Thanksgiving Baskets for the needy. The meeting concluded with the Society's 28th annual fashion show of items from the exchange, modelled by the members, with commentary by Mary Knox.

The next meeting of the Society will be at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church Hall Jan. 28.

Mites One blasts Wilmington

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

A powerhouse on ice is the best way to describe the Winchester Mites One hockey team.

Sunday, Oct. 25, Winchester sent a bewildered Wilmington team home with a 13-1 loss.

Center Steve Cuccinatti led the team with eight goals and four assists while linemate John Duval added two goals and three assists. Rookie Matt Kelly notched his first goal of the season poking the puck over the line in a goal mouth scramble.

Splitting time at offense and defense, T.J. O'Neil posted two goals and two assists in the Winchester win.

A solid defense, anchored by netminder Dana LaPointe, turned away every Wilmington attack except one. Rocco Leo, Mike Leonardi, and Joey Palotta were the core of the defensive unit. Matt Dexter also helped out in back making the switch from his usual forward position midway through the game.

The never ending hustle of forward Pat Aufiero and the heads up play of Ashley Cannon and Scott Phillips were also keys to the victory.

The Mites are now 2-0 in the young season having disposed of Waltham last week, 8-1, in the season opener.

HEALTH TIPS By Karen Abood

Physical Therapist

TENDONITIS

Tendonitis is an inflammation of a tendon resulting from repeated use. Most overuse injuries such as tendonitis occur when a recreational athlete overstresses his or her tissues by increasing the amount of activity too soon. Eventually, tendon overuse develops into problems including inflammation, pain, and rupture. Tendonitis most likely occurs in an athlete who does repetitive movements as in golf, tennis, swimming, and running, and is common in the shoulder, knee, elbow, and Achilles' tendon. Imagine a seasonal tennis player during the first week of good spring weather when he or she plays four to six times. This sudden change in exercise without building up to the stresses of tennis could easily cause a tennis elbow or Achilles tendonitis.

Proper limb alignment and sports play must be addressed by a trained specialist such as an orthopedic physical therapist, so they may advise treatment and specific sports training to minimize risk of injury. Treatment by an orthopedic physical therapist must focus on the cause of inflammation. Causes may be muscle weaknesses; imbalances; poor flexibility; improper alignment of a limb as well as improper playing of the sport. Changing or decreasing activity along with a guided exercise program to increase flexibility and muscle balance will help decrease the inflammation. Without treatment, an inflamed tendon may rupture so it is vital to seek the help of a specialist. For more information call Watertown office at 924-4590 or visit

SENIOR NEWS

Young people can explain health options to older ones. Representatives from HMOs, from left, Jane White of Tufts Associated Health Plan, Karen Carraro of Bay State 65, Linda Rabley of Harvard Community Health Senior Care, Jim Smith of Blue Cross's HMO, Medical East, led by Kathy Glezell of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, presented a variety of senior programs Oct. 28.

Jenks pilot lunch program successfully launched Oct. 28

Attendance at 'Eating Together' program steady after two meetings, council says

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Sponsored by the Winchester Council on Aging as a service to seniors of the community, an "Eating Together" program began on Oct. 28 as a pilot project operating on each Wednesday and Friday, barring holidays.

The committee for the noontime program, chaired by Regina Karnilla, met Sept. 3 with Mary Ellen Eastbridge of the Minute Man Home Care Corporation to make specific plans for launching the program, including hiring a site manager, obtaining volunteers to set tables, handle registrations, serve the meals and attend to cleanup activities following the luncheon.

Money for operating the program, including the salary of the site manager, is granted through Title III-C of the Older Americans Act and the Department of Elder Affairs of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Servomation of Stoneham catered a delicious meal for 71 people. The company caters for the 16-town area, with each community having the same menu. Currently, the nutrition program covers Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Maynard, Stowe, Wilmington, Woburn and Winchester.

The program is open to all seniors of the town, 60 years of age or older, including his or her spouse regardless of age. In a relaxed environment, older adults can meet, share experiences, explore new interests, and enjoy a hot, nutritious lunch. The important outcomes of the program are: well-balanced food, good friends and the enjoyment of eating in the company of others.

An initial survey last spring indicating a need for the program received 85 responses. The 71 who attended on Oct. 28 may or may not have answered the questionnaire, but the enjoyment of the first meal was 100 percent in favor of the program.

Many volunteers assisted Elaine Di Pietro, the site manager of the new Eating Together program.

More volunteer aides are needed for the scheduled Wednesday and Friday noontime meals. Leave word for Elaine Di Pietro with the Jenks Center receptionist (721-7136) if assistance can be given either on both days, once a week, once bi-weekly, once a month, or whatever time fits into individual schedules.

It is requisite for meal reservations to be made by 11 a.m. on the day preceding the meal. Cancellations must be made in the same manner on the day before the meal before 11 a.m. When signing up for lunch, inform the desk volunteer if transportation is needed.

The center will be closed Wednesday, Nov. 11.

The menu for the meal of Friday, Nov. 13, will include turkey chow mein, rice, juice, cranberry bread and fresh fruit.

Senior Center glee club

Betty McAdams has accepted the responsibility for directing the Jenks Senior Center Glee Club, which meets on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in the new auditorium at the Center from 10:30 a.m. until noon. In November, rehearsals are on Nov. 3 and 17.

An invitation is extended to all seniors in the community who enjoy singing together a wide variety of favorite songs. It is not necessary to be a trained vocalist to enjoy membership in the group, consisting at present of a dozen of both male and female voices.

Come and enjoy adding your voice to those of the group who have been faithful about singing in the several nursing centers as well as for programs at the center.

Share-A-Life program

The McCall Junior High School English classes will be involved in a writing project for students ages 12 and 13.

About 25 seniors are requested to serve as volunteers willing to be interviewed by Junior High School students on a one-to-one basis. The interviews will take 45 minutes to one hour at the Jenks Senior Center.

Here is an opportunity for seniors to help close the generation gap by sharing first-hand memories of times that are just history to these young people. Emphasizing what makes a person proud of his or her own heritage is important to the project.

Although the program will not begin until January or February, it is essential to the instructor to obtain a list of seniors who have an interest in the education of youth.

Questions will be submitted in writing prior to the interview session. Seniors will be given the first draft for editing privileges and they will receive a copy of the final project. This ought to be a very satisfying experience.

At the conclusion of the Share-A-Life program, all students and seniors who participated will enjoy a party after final results of the writing project have been presented.

Volunteers are asked to submit names and telephone numbers to the Jenks Senior Center receptionist to enable the instructor to make specific plans for the first of the year program.

American Red Cross

The American Red Cross will distribute Federal Surplus cheese and butter to eligible Winchester residents on Tuesday, Nov. 10 at the Winchester Unitarian Church at 478 Main Street from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Eligibility is dependent on one of the following programs: AFDC, GR, SSI, WIC, Welfare, Food Stamps, Fuel Assistance, Head Start, Medicaid, Unemployment Assistance or Veterans Aid.

Residents whose gross annual income falls into the following categories are also eligible: a family of one — $8250; two — $11,000; three — $13,956; four — $16,800; five — $19,650; six — $22,500; seven — $25,350; eight — $28,200; and for each person over eight, add $2850.

Bring proof of participation and a grocery-sized bag.

HMO panel at Jenks Senior Center

The HMO panelists did a remarkable job Oct. 28 at the Jenks Senior Center in explaining the several HMO programs. The audience had opportunities to present questions in writing for clarification. Discussed were Bay State 65, Harvard Community Health and Multi-Group Senior Care 65, now merged, Tufts Associated Health Plan, and Medical East, Blue-Cross and Blue-Shield affiliated.

The speakers made clear what the various HMO networks cover and spoke of some of the limitations such as having to obtain care only at a hospital selected by the HMO, unless an emergency exists, in which case permission to go to another facility must be obtained if payment is to be forthcoming from the HMO.

One of the attractive benefits of HMO participation is the comprehensive coverage at low cost to the individual.

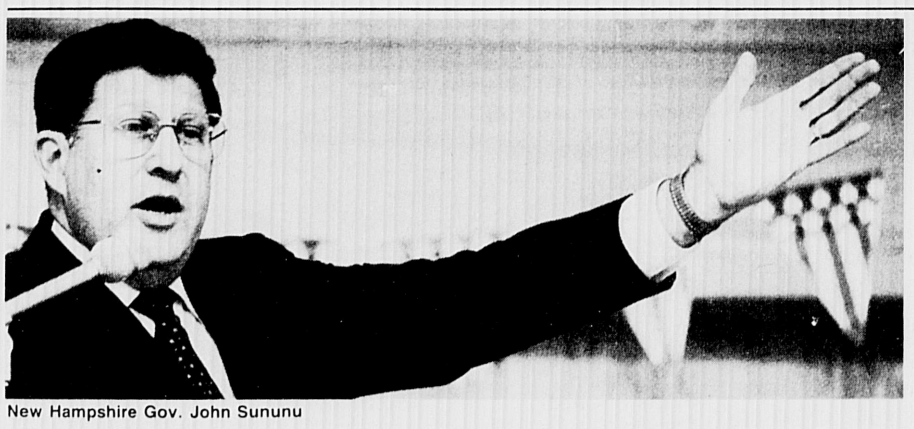

Share-a-Meal

The Church Women United sponsors a Share-a-Meal program for people who will be eating alone at holiday time.

Peggy Keefe and Hilda Zerwekh are in charge of making arrangements for anyone who will be alone on Thanksgiving Day. A tray of holiday food will be delivered to the home of each person with a visit from the one who delivers the meal.

Call the Jenks Senior Center receptionist, 721-7136, to leave name and address in order to be included in this friendly program. The Church Women United give this community service annually to provide for those who may be alone on the holiday.

New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu

Sununu addresses crowd at Jenks

A crowd of 250 gathered at the Jenks Center Oct. 27 to hear Republican Gov. John Sununu of New Hampshire speak about the economic successes of his state and all of New England.

The Women's Republican Club of Winchester sponsored this "Evening with the Governor," but attendees included party workers from five neighboring towns. Also attending were Republican State Committee officials including Chairman Ray Shamie.

Gov. Sununu attributed the New England successes to three major factors: the partnership of private colleges and universities with high-tech industry, the availability of low-cost energy and the venture capital structure.

Hazardous waste collection day nears

The Winchester Board of Health and the Winchester League of Women Voters, who are co-sponsoring the Household Hazardous Waste collection at the Department of Public Works garage at 15 Lake St. Saturday, Nov. 14, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. call the attention of the town to Winchester High School Art Department's effective posters, created for this clean-up.

Joe Tabbi, director of the Board of Health, said that by emptying oil and lead paint cans into a large container at the site, that the volume will be reduced by 50 percent, and the town will be responsible for the disposal of the empty cans. He also stressed the importance of recycling motor oil, because there are incidences of the substance showing up in catch basins, which leads to contamination of water supplies.

A Winchester League of Women Voters video tape, edited by member Sandy Rodgers will be shown on the local cable, Channel 19, on Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m. The new program, Focus on Winchester, will have host Drew Bolden introducing local Leaguer Judy Wiegand, who will speak on the problems of Household Hazaredous Waste.

The following list will help residents to define substances that should be taken to the collection site.

The list of materials that may be brought to the site are: pesticides, even Chlordane, Malathion, DDT, arsenic, paint thinners and solvents, oil-based paints (no latex) — pour into one can and crush empties, oven cleaner, Drano, toilet cleaner, car waxes, battery fluids, chemistry sets, wood preservatives, stains and varnishes, photographic and pool chemicals, fertilizers and herbicides, rodent, mosquito and weed killers, no-pest strips, flea collars and powders.

Youth Center completes workshop

As part of their "Career Preparation Program," the Winchester Youth Center held a "College Interviewing Workshop," a two-session program Oct. 13 and 20. A score of Winchester High School juniors and seniors attended the program, which was focused on education and hands-on experience.

During the first session the students learned about the process and purpose of interviewing through a teaching workshop with Tufts University's Associate Director of Admissions Allan Clemow.

Clemow gave the group concrete facts as well as an intuitive feeling about the nature and purpose of the interview in an attempt to alleviate anxiety among the future graduates and help them internalize the idea that the student is responsible for the admissions process.

The second session provided an opportunity for the students to practice a mock college interview. Dressed in interview attire, they participated in a simulation of encounters from receptionist to admissions officer.

In addition to the Youth Center staff, mock interviewers included the following Boston professionals: an attorney from Ernest W. Piper and Associates, a sales representative from Wang Laboratories, a financial consultant and an analyst.

The Youth Center will be repeating the program in a three-session format. For information, call Darcy Fitzgerald, adolescent youth coordinator at 721-7125.

League holds consensus meeting

Various changes in the positions of the League will be discussed to reach member agreements which will be forwarded to national League headquarters in Washington.

Members of the study committee include Ann Hathaway, Peggy Roll, Virginia Kazazian, Gail O'Reilly, Donna Mohr and Marcia Wood.

A DJ provided dance music for costumed revelers in the school gymnasium. In the cafeteria, refreshments were served and a haunted house thrilled the brave of heart.

COMING EVENTS

Cooperative Theatre to hold auditions

The Co-operative Theatre for Children, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing the opportunity for elementary children to participate in a theatrical production, invites fourth through sixth graders to audition for a place in the cast of the ninth production presented by this group, "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory."

There will be an informational meeting for all parents and students Tuesday, Nov. 17 at 3 p.m. in the Lincoln School auditorium. The audition process will be explained and time set aside for parents to pre-register their child. Parents are requested to bring a recent photo of their child and an unsealed, self-addressed stamped envelope to this meeting.

Auditions will be held Monday, Nov. 30, for sixth grades and for fifth grades from the Lincoln and Muraco Schools. On Tuesday, Dec. 1, there will be auditions for all fourth graders and fifth graders from Vincent Owen, Ambrose and Lynch schools.

Questions may be addressed to director, Cathy Alexander at 729-0224.

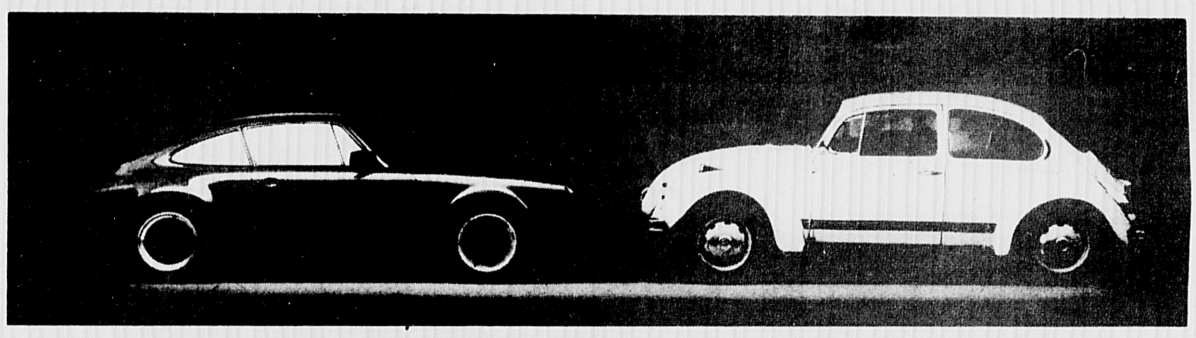

Winchester Players stage comedy

The Winchester Players will bring the British comedy, "Table Manners," by Alan Ayckbourn to the Metcalf Hall stage Nov. 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14. All performances will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church on the corner of Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway. Admission is $6 for general admission and $4 for students and seniors, and reservations can be made by calling 721-1707.

For the evening of Thursday, Nov. 12, only, seniors with transportation problems may call the answering service for help obtaining a ride to the theater.

"Table Manners" (part of the trilogy "The Norman Conquests") is set in a dining room during a weekend of misunderstandings among three mismatched couples.

IF THEY WERE THE SAME PRICE, WHICH WOULD YOU BUY?

Now ask yourself the same question about double hung windows.

But before you answer, consider the differences between a Marvin E-Z Tilt Double Hung window and an Andersen® double hung window.

A Marvin double hung window has sash that tilt into the room for easy cleaning and maintenance. Andersen doesn't.

A Marvin double hung has a lower air infiltration rating than Andersen's published test results.*

Marvin has a wood double hung window available in 98 standard sizes. Andersen doesn't have one.

A Marvin clad double hung is also available in 98 standard sizes. An Andersen clad double hung is available in 36 standard sizes.

A Marvin clad window has an aluminum clad sash and frame for a maintenance-free exterior, and an all-wood interior that accepts a beautiful finish. Only Andersen's frames are clad, in vinyl. The sash is prefinished. A wood interior is available only when ordered with a white exterior finish.

A Marvin window can be ordered with authentic divided lites for a true Early American look. An Andersen window can't.

A Marvin window can be ordered with real wood grilles. An Andersen window has molded vinyl grilles only.

A Marvin window is available with jamb extensions already installed by a factory expert. An Andersen window isn't, which can lead to expensive adjustments on the job site.

The comparisons could go on, but we think you get the point.

NOW, MARVIN QUALITY AT AN ANDERSEN PRICE.

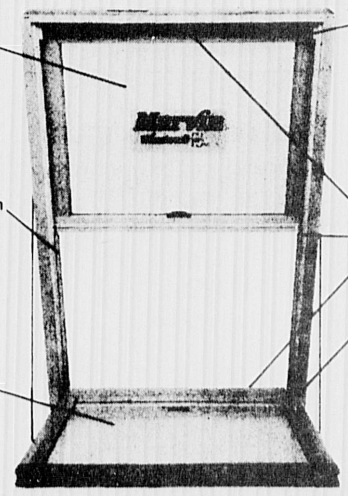

The simple law of economics would suggest a premium product can command a premium price. And Marvin Windows have.

But now Marvin has lowered that price. Lowered the price it costs to put the best wood double hung in your plans. The kind of window that not only sells customers, but sells homes.

We can't guarantee this price reduction will last forever, but why wait around to find out? See your Marvin dealer before you place your next window order.

Who knows? With the way Marvin windows sell homes, you may not care how much the car on the left costs.

For more information, call toll-free 1-800-346-5128. (In Minnesota, call 1-800-552-1167.) Or write, Marvin Windows, Warroad, MN 56763.

Intensive program helps people with multiple handicaps

By DON COHEN
Special to the Star

For a little more than a year, the Kelliher Pre-vocational Program in Winchester has been working with mentally retarded people whose handicaps and behavioral problems have made it impossible for them to function well in most other settings. In the brightly-lit rooms of a one-story brick building on Lowell Avenue, nine men under close staff supervision are learning and working more successfully than they ever have before. Director Judy Doherty puts it plainly: "We're interested in the clients other programs have given up on."

A pilot program funded by the state and run by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association, Kelliher pre-vocational is an experiment designed to show whether intensive personal attention can benefit those who do not respond to other kinds of treatment and supervision. While the typical program for mentally retarded adults may have a staff member for every five or six people, Kelliher has a staff member for every two. The combined expertise of a staff made up of full-time social workers and a part-time nurse, speech therapist, and occupational therapist is applied to each case. Everyone entering the program is carefully assessed and an individual treatment is designed to suit the special needs of each individual.

The nine men currently at Kelliher have all been considered severely mentally retarded. Some also suffer from psychosis, manic depression, and various physical problems like hearing loss, seizures and blindness. Most have come to the program unable to communicate. All have a history of assaulting others or injuring themselves and it is this behavior as much as anything else that other programs have found it impossible to handle. The hope of finding a way to deal with these multiple handicaps has led to the Kelliher pre-vocational experiment.

The experiment has been successful. The staff has been able to discover that some of the people previously diagnosed as severely mentally retarded are in fact only mildly retarded, with other physical and behavioral problems being mistaken for mental retardation. Some program participants have been able to go out into the community to shops and restaurants for the first time in their lives. Some do packaging work at the center for LePage's of Gloucester and are earning a paycheck for the first time. All have shown improvement.

According to director Doherty, having enough staff to study and treat people as individuals is an essential part of the program's success. Staff members are always there to guide and support progress being made. Doherty says that the attitude of her co-workers is at least as important as the ratio of helper to helped. They don't base their expectations on earlier diagnoses or assume that past "failures" mean continued failure. They operate on the assumption that progress is always possible.

"Goals have to be realistic," Doherty says, "but you have to have goals. We're always saying, 'Wouldn't it be great to get him this far?' Some individuals have real vocational talent, and we think about what they could be doing in three years. One of two may be able to move on to a vocational program. For some the goal is to find ways to improve quality of life."

Trained as a speech therapist, Doherty observes that many of her clients behavioral problems stem from frustration at not being able to communicate. None of the men in the program can use speech effectively and Doherty sees their striking out at others and themselves as attempts to express their feelings; unable to make contact in appropriate ways, they use the only means available to them.

So a major aim at the pre-vocational center is to improve communication skills. Because standard speech therapy is aimed at people who already communicate at a fairly high level, Doherty has had to develop methods for working with those who don't speak at all. She uses American Sign Language and communication boards (with pictures representing things and actions) to give her clients basic tools for telling the outside world what they think and feel.

Progress often seems modest and slow. With intensive staff support, it took one man a year of hard work to learn to use the sign for "eat." But Doherty calls that "a great accomplishment." It meant he did something that he was once thought incapable of doing. Like other, similar achievements, it contributed to improved behavior and a better sense of self.

Doherty says that parents of participants in the program have been tremendously enthusiastic about it. She understands why their response it so positive: "These are people who have been told for years that their child is causing problems. They've heard again and again about their failures, and all the things they can't do. Now they hear that their behavior is under control. A son gets a paycheck or eats in a restaurant for the first time. They see these successes and they're thrilled."

REAL ESTATE TODAY

HIRING A HOUSE INSPECTOR

Naturally you will carefully inspect any home you intend to purchase as best you can. However, if you are not a building expert and you have some serious questions about the house's structure or systems, it makes sense to hire an independent house inspector to do a professional job. If this is your case, here are a few pointers.

Home inspectors are supposed to work FOR the buyer. The real estate agent is not the inspection expert and he or she will be the first to tell you. Hire a house inspector who is totally impartial. That means someone who simply inspects the house and submits the findings but does nothing whatsoever to correct any fault he may find. In that way, the inspector will not be motivated to "discover" a lot of extra faults as a means toward finding repair work.

The inspector should be knowledgeable enough to give approximate costs of repairs as a guide so the client can make an informed decision on the house.

Girls soccer team turns in best effort

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High varsity girls' soccer team turned in perhaps their best all around performance of the season last week in their 4-0 victory over Lexington. However, they suffered a bit of a setback in their next game against Belmont and lost, 1-0.

The Sachemettes began the week with an impressive 3-0 win over a talented Pentucket team in a non-league battle. This game featured some excellent goaltending from Allison Price and offense sparked by some of coach Chris Scanlon's younger charges.

Pentucket provided an excellent matchup for Winchester since both teams are similar in their approach to soccer. The Pentucket offense found out early however that they would not be able to outrun the Sachemettes like they do their opponents in the Cape Ann League. Their style was to loft the ball over the defense and then use their speed to get to the ball. But defender Cara McDonough thwarted every breakaway attempt with some aggressive tackles. Pentucket did get off some good shots but Price positioned herself well and made the saves.

The Sachemettes played well on offense as they had several scoring oppurtunities set up by nifty passing. Sophmores Margaret Cunningham and Shalagh Murdoch played particularly well and combined on Murdoch's first goal of the season. In the second half, Price played so well even her own teammates were in awe as she pounced on every loose ball. McDonough got into the scoring column as she connected on a corner kick. Cunningham rounded out the scoring with assists going to Amy Binding and Debbie Nowell.

The Sachemettes put it all together against Lexington. Their offense showed excellent poise in front of the net which was lacking in the early part of the season. Julie Sexeny, Emily Doherty and Amy Binding all showed patience setting up good shots instead of the off-balance ones that plagued them earlier in the season. Doherty put Winchester on the scoreboard halfway through the first half as she poked in Sexeny's rebound. Defensively, Jenna Maconochie did an excellent job shadowing Lexington's leading scorer Shelly Adamian. In fact, the Lexington coach was forced to alter her attack in the second half because of the job Maconochie did on Adamian in the first half.

The defense continued to hold off the Minutemaids in the second half as Sandra Bennett, Kelly Meehan and Deborah Skahan all had good games. Denise Chabot overcame some excellent goaltending to put the game away with two straight goals. The first one came on a super crossing pass from Cunningham while the second one came on a easy tap in of her own rebound after the Lexington goalie had absolutely robbed her on her first shot. The final goal came when Jen Ciotti hustled to the ball and found her younger sister Sara Ciotti in front of the net for her first goal of the season. Sara Ciotti was destined to score after narrowly missing twice earlier in the week.

The Sachemettes left their scoring touch at home when they traveled to Belmont last Saturday but a win over Woburn this week would give them a share of the Middlesex League title for the tenth straight year.

Problems continue

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team continues to have its problems on the road as they fell to an underrated Stoneham team, 21-7. The Sachems record dropped to 3-4 with three games left on the schedule.

The Sachems came out on their first drive running the ball effectively until they turned it over on a fumble at the Stoneham 40. Turnovers would play a key role in the game as the Spartans converted two Sachem fumbles into touchdowns. On their next posession, Winchester got on the board. They began the second quarter on the Stoneham 18. Scott Garvey's blast over the left side set up the Sachems with a first and goal from the eight-yard line. Three plays later, Paul Amico bulled his way into the end zone. Clayton Wight's extra point was good and Winchester had its only lead, 7-0.

It was all downhill from there as Stoneham rolled up the next 21 points. One key factor was an injury to last week's star, running back Greg Winn. With the defense again keying on Garvey, Winn's quick bursts up the middle were necessary for the ground game to work. But Winn went down in the first quarter with a bruised knee and never returned. With no ground game, the Spartan defense became increasingly effective.

After Stoneham tied the game later in the second quarter, Garvey nearly broke free on the ensuing kickoff before being brought down at midfield. Coach Manny Marshall began shuttling in quarterbacks Chris Umscheid and Micky Feeley on alternate series. Neither one could move the ball however and the prospects looked grim for the Sachems.

With the score tied going into the third quarter, Amico gave Winchester some momentum with an interception. Feeley started the second half at quarterback but again the Sachems were unable to move the ball effectively. Stoneham took over deep in their own territory after the punt and from there they marched down the field on a long time-consuming drive which was culminated in the eventual winning touchdown.

Another fumble helped set the stage for another Spartan score which, with their defense getting stronger by the series, put the game out of reach early in the fourth quarter. On the last drive of the game for the Sachems, Feeley began to find his range as he hit Jon Furey with one pass and Alex Furey with another. But when he tried to go back to Jon Furey for the touchdown, he was intercepted and the Sachems came up empty again. Stoneham ran out the clock and Winchester found itself with yet another road loss.

To make matters worse, the Sachems lost one of their best linemen when Phil Svahn went down late in the game with a shoulder injury which may sideline him for the remainder of the season.

The Sachems will try to maintain their unblemished home record when they take on a tough Lexington team Saturday afternoon at Knowlton Stadium.

Swimmers bow to Belmont

By WENDY BOERNER
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls swim team suffered a harsh loss on Saturday to Belmont. The girls knew it would be a good meet, but they did not expect the score to go so high, 56-25.

Belmont placed first in the medley relay and Liz McCann, Wendy Boerner, Sheilah McCarthy and Kathy McGillicuddy placed second for Winchester with a time of 2:08:97.

Belmont received first and second place in the next two events, the 200 freestyle and the 200 individual medley. Katherine Martinelli placed third in the former while McCann finished third in the latter for the Sachemettes.

The 50 freestyle showed a change for the better. McGillicuddy won with a time of 26:13. Teammate Erica Fleck finished close behind to get second place. Rachel Bonnell did an excellent job diving to capture second place for Winchester while McGillicuddy won the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:07:83. Belmont's Donna Sullivan won the 100 freestyle with Sachemette Juliet Estridge close behind.

In the next three events, the 500 freestyle, the 100 backstroke and 100 breaststroke, Belmont captured first as well as second place. For Winchester Ifer Boerner placed third in the freestyle, McCann placed third in the backstroke and Wendy Boerner placed third in the breaststroke.

Sheilah McCarthy, Erica Fleck, Val Fleck and Estridge placed second in the final event, the 400 freestyle relay.

Despite the great difference in score, Winchester was pleased with the meet because the following girls swam their best times; Diana Coughlin, Suzanne Foley, Megan Herlihy, McGillicuddy, Amy Doe, Robyn Shaw, Mary Murray, McCann, Beth Crawford, Wendy Boerner, Kara McGillicuddy, Kim McCarthy, Heather Germaine, Jen McCart, Karen Cramer, Sarah Gaumer, Muffy Lake, Kendra Lombardo and Martinelli.

For most of the girls, the league meet this Saturday will be their last meet. It will begin at 2:00 p.m. at Belmont High School.

Girls jv team wins

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' junior varsity soccer team this week breezed past Lexington, 3-0, before settling for a 1-1 tie with Belmont.

In the Lexington game, Danielle Berkhout was the star as she scored twice. Siobhan White picked up the third goal. Coach Paul Austin credited forwards Mary Sampson, Karen Verhaegen, Lisa Campbell, Katie Coakley and Megan Mullin with maintaining the offensive attack.

The Sachemettes missed forward Cheryl Casalinuovo, who has an injured knee, in their matchup with Belmont. After trailing at halftime, Winchester tied the game on a Shana MacConkey volley kick from 18 yards out 10 minutes into the second half. Both Lisa Donlon and Stephanie Keefe played well in net, with Keefe robbing Belmont's leading scorer on a breakaway.

"It was a good, clean, hard fought-game," said Austin. "Both teams had chances to win."

Tri-captain Christine Sullivan had a good game offensively but the team missed Casalinuovo.

"Cheryl scored both of our goals the last time we played them," said Austin.

The Sachemettes should end the season as the high school's only undefeated team after this week's game with a weak Woburn team.

Harriers win 22-37

By MARGARET ELLIS
Special to the Star

It was an ideal day to run when the Winchester High boys' cross country beat a strong Belmont team on the competition's home course.

Helping the Sachems to a 22-37 victory were first place finisher Dave McClintock (14:42) followed closely by second place finisher Mike Aldrich (14:48). In the fifth place position was Jon Sudbury (15:42) with sixth place going to Jesse DeGeorge (16:13). Day Davis (16:24) placed eighth with Tucker Brandt (16:34), Jason Finch (16:39) and Doug Holt (16:39) in hot pursuit. Other victorious Sachems were Paul O'Neil, Dave Banks, Finn Pullen and Mark Merullo.

The Sachemettes also competed in Belmont despite their small team, which was a major factor contributing to their 15-50 defeat. Nevertheless, runners Petra Rydlova, Laura Tozza, Sarah Fitzpatrick and Meg Ellis continue to run competitively and gave strong performances against the Marauderettes.

Sachems keep pace in race

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team kept pace with Wakefield this week by overwhelming Belmont, 5-1, last Saturday. Earlier in the week, the Sachems held off Lexington, 2-0, after destroying Stoneham, 10-0.

Winchester improved its record to 15-1-1 as they continue to look like a team destined to go deep into the post-season tournament. A win over Woburn this week would clinch a tie for the Middlesex League title.

After spotting Belmont a one goal lead early in the first half, the Sachem offense began to put pressure on the Marauder net. Vandy French and Paul Erbafina each had golden oppurtunities to tie but just missed before the Sachems caught a break when a Belmont fullback was caught on a hand ball inside the goalie crease. Erbafina calmly delivered the penalty shot into the lower left corner of the goal and the game was tied.

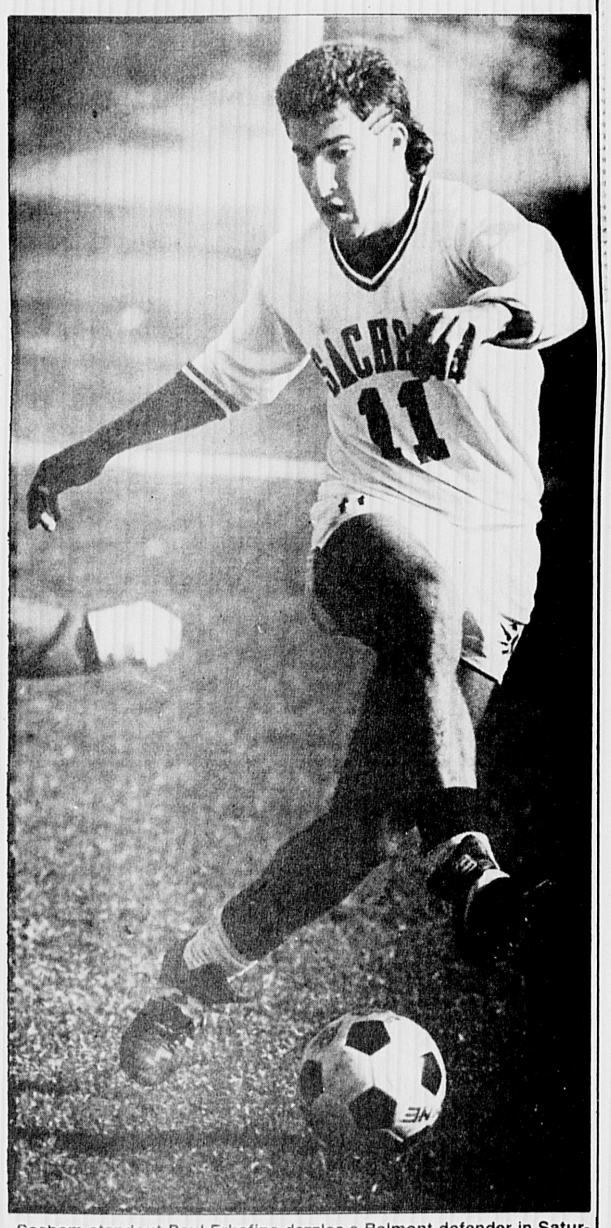

From then on it was all Winchester as they attacked the Belmont goal with a vengeance. Although the Marauder goalie made several excellent stops, it was only a matter of time before the Sachem shots would find their mark. Jason MacConkey booted home a Erbafina rebound and when French bounced one in off a Belmont defender, Winchester held a 3-1 halftime edge.

The Sachems continued to dominate in the second half as Belmont had trouble penetrating their excellent defense. Steve Reeve, Dave Ducharme, Jack O'Callaghan and Mike Schoenegge all played well as did halfbacks Rob Kean and Mike McGeehan. Winchester broke Belmont's back early as French collected a McGeehan pass and rang it off the post. Erbafina rounded out the scoring with an unassisted goal at 22:32.

Goalie Andy Shao was instrumental in the Lexington triumph as he made a couple of key saves to stop the early momentum built up by the Minutemen. After Shao robbed Lexington of a goal on a point blank shot, Paul Capodano turned the tables and put the Sachems out on top with a goal on a chip from co-captain Kean. The goal gave Winchester all the confidence it would need and when French scored in the second half, the Sachems had their 2-0 victory.

In the 10-0 romp over Stoneham, the Sachems scored five times in each half. The starters played only in the first half as Capodano led the outburst with a goal and four assists. French had two goals as did Erbafina while Kean picked up the assist on Capodano's tally. In the second half, the second unit picked up where the first left off. David Romboli netted a hat trick and an assist while McGeehan picked up two goals and two assists. Paul Marshall set up McGeehan's second score.

After traveling to Woburn this week, it will be tournament time for the Sachems and they will be one of the top seeds in the Division 2 sectional.

Former athletes in college

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

Several former Winchester High School standouts have furthered their athletic careers with strong showings on the college level.

1986 Sachemette star Debbie Maida has continued her illustrious soccer career, playing for the University of New Hampshire Wildcats. A psychology major at UNH, the freshman stepped into a leading defensive role for the Wildcats as sweeper and has tallied one goal in her rookie season.

Also making a name for himself in his first collegiate soccer season is Chris Verhaegen. A freshman at Boston University, Verhaegen has started every game but one. He is the fifth leading scorer on the team with two goals and three assists, including the game-winner in a 2-0 victory over Brown University.

On the courts, local tennis player Kathy Gray played an important role for the Rhode Island College women's tennis team as a freshman. Gray, a four-year varsity member and MVP her senior year at Winchester High, made a smooth transition to collegiate tennis for the Anchorwomen. Gray led the team with 15½ points, posting a 9-2 record at third singles and 7-2 at number one doubles helping the team to an 8-3 overall record. At the Rhode Island Grasscourt Doubles Championship, Oct. 25 in Newport, Gray and doubles partner Deb Donohue of Rhode Island defeated all three of their opponents for the title.

Tufts senior Mark Herlihy raced to a third-place finish helping the Jumbos to an overall second-place showing in the Dussault Circuit conference meet. Herlihy crossed the finish line seven seconds behind teammate Marc Michaud of Harwich to lead the team to its best standing ever in the conference meet.

Library reviews renovation project

The Trustees of Winchester Public Library met with members of the newly appointed Designer Selection Committee Oct. 27 to review priorities and procedures for the library renovation study project.

Proposals have already been received and submitted to the committee and the process of selecting an architect to undertake a preliminary study of the library's problems and needs should be completed by mid-November, according to library director G. Matthew Sperber. The completed study is expected to be available by March, 1988.

The five-person committee, comprised of Eric V. Benson, Terry Cracknell, Andrew L. Nichols, Lawrence F. Tobiason and Lynn Wachtel, has been charged with examining the proposals, making recommendations to the Board of Trustees and being available for consultation during the course of the study.

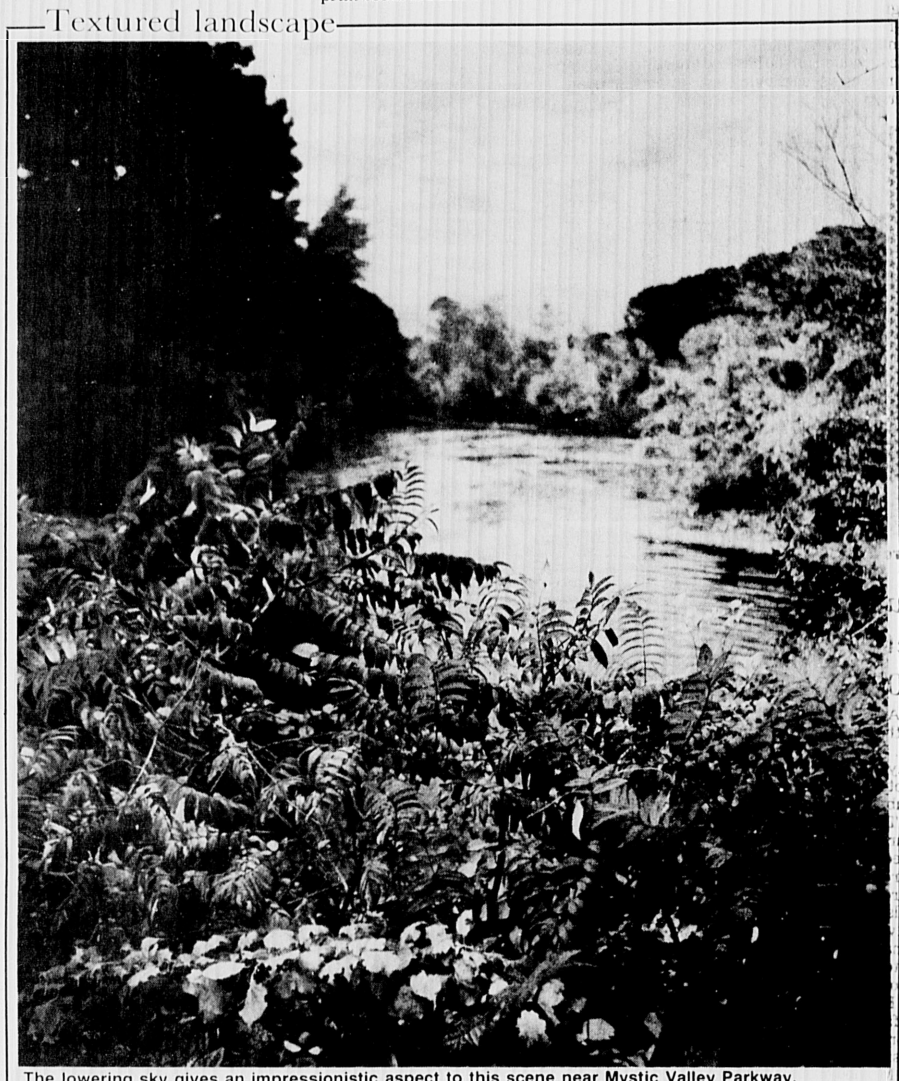

"The study will address a number of the library's structural and functional needs," said Sperber. "The library now has demands on its space and services that the original architects in 1931 could never have dreamed of. While an addition was built in the 1960s to provide extra space for the children's and reference departments many of the mechanical systems, heat and electricity, for example, have never been upgraded."

The library's services have become increasingly more sophisticated as these mechanical systems have grown more obsolete. Many more types of media are available to patrons from microforms to large print books to audio and videocassettes and compact discs. Computerized searches of commercially available data bases are a reality as are computerized circulation systems and catalogs. "These changes in service require changes in physical space, equipment and the infrastructure to support that equipment," said Sperber.

In addition, the library's general collection of books and reference materials has grown from 72,300 items in 1965 to more than 126,500 items in 1987, 25 percent more material than the building was designed to hold. Redesign of the book storage areas would improve access to the collection, allow for expansion and enhance the library's public spaces and study areas.

The completed study will be reviewed by the Library Trustees in March and will be available for discussion at the spring Town Meeting.

Hurst joins Winchester bank

Robert Nickerson, president of Winchester Savings Bank, announces that Karen Hurst has joined the bank as a residential lending officer. Hurst is responsible for the planning, coordination and supervision of all duties associated with the organization and processing of residential real estate applications.

Prior to joining Winchester Savings Bank, Hurst was employed by the Gateway Bank in Connecticut as a secondary mortgage marketing officer, and most recently, as an assistant vice president/residential mortgage lending officer. She also worked at the Coolidge Bank and Trust Company as the marketing training coordinator of the real estate department.

Hurst graduated in 1982 from Regis College with a bachelor of arts degree in economics and Spanish and a management studies certificate. Since graduation, she has also attended numerous continuing education courses.

Surprise party fetes couple's 40th anniversary

A surprise luncheon in celebration of the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Nelson of 22 Mayflower Road was held Sunday, Sept. 20 at the Winchester Country Club.

The luncheon was given by their four children, Candice, Richard, Frederick and Mark, all of whom were in attendance. Also attending were their daughter-in-law, Marcia Nelson, their three grandchildren, David and Peter Jacobson and Jonathan Nelson, and Mr. Nelson's sister and brother, Bessie Trado and Thomas Nelson.

Friends and relatives came from as far away as California, Florida and North Carolina to celebrate this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson were married Sept. 18, 1947, in New Bedford after a courtship of about a year. They have lived in Winchester since 1951.

Gross joins Phi Beta Kappa

Burton Gross of Webster Street has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the beginning of his junior year at Duke University.

Gross, who is a Russian language major, spent six weeks this summer studying Russian at the University of Leningrad and touring several cities in the Soviet Union.

He is serving his second semester at Duke as vice president for academic affairs.

Boston Trade Bank's assets top $200 million

Boston Trade Bank, whose president is Winchester resident Daniel Ciotti, announced that its assets now top $200 million.

The bank celebrated its first anniversary Oct. 20.

"We're simply delighted with the community's response to Boston Trade Bank. We always believed that Boston needed a bank which focused on customer service above all else, and our first year is a testament to how true that really is," Ciotti said.

The bank is located at 10 Post Office Square in Boston. It has no conventional teller windows; customers deal with a personal service representative who handles their account.

Ciotti said he will not let the bank's growth interfere with its service philosophy. "We're in business because we do a good job of taking care of people," he said. "We aren't about to let our size get in the way of providing exceptional service. After all, it's their very size that makes the billion-dollar banks unable to compete with us on that basis."

Russo named Mitre vice president

Nicholas T. Russo of Myrtle Street has been named vice president of finance and administration at The Mitre Corporation.

Russo is responsible for the activities of the controller and corporate contracts and administration.

During his 23-year career with Mitre, Russo has held numerous positions of increasing responsibility including assistant treasurer, corporate controller, manager of the budget and program offices, and member of the technical staff.

He has also been a computer system specialist for the System Development Corporation, where he worked on SAGE, the nation's first air defense system to make use of large-scale digital computers. Russo also served in the U.S. Navy for six years and rose to the rank of lieutenant.

Russo earned a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics from Boston College in 1951 and has taken graduate courses in business administration at Northeastern and Syracuse universities. He is a member of the Association for Government Accountants.

He and his wife, Phyllis, have nine children.

Warren Berg

Berg raises a quarter of his United Way goal

Winchester's Warren S. Berg, a consultant with the Shawmut Bank of Boston and this year's volunteer chairman of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay's Leadership Division, recently announced his division's fund-raising progress at the United Way's First Report Luncheon at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

Berg reported his division has raised $505,033, 26 percent of its $1,926,000 goal.

Berg, as chairman of the Leadership Division, coordinates fund-raising efforts among major individual donors. The United Way campaign will run through Nov. 24.

Edgell designs Boston historical group's logo

The logo for the West End Historical Committee, formed in Boston last spring, was designed by Claudia Kelty Edgell of 8 Sheffield West.

To be used on the Committee's stationery, the logo depicts the three historic buildings spared from demolition when the entire historic old West End of Boston was leveled for "urban renewal" in 1958-1960.

The buildings are St. Joseph's Church, the Old West Church, and The Harrison Gray Otis House, the home of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (S.P.N.E.A.), of which the Edgells are members.

Edgell graduated from the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and has exhibited widely, one of her paintings being in the collection of the Museum of Fine Arts.

In recent years, the Edgells have volunteered as lobbyists for animal welfare legislation at the Massachusetts State House as well as pursued work on their history of "The Old West End of Boston".

The logo for the West End Historical Committee is the design work of Claudia Edgell of Sheffield West.

Winchesterites get involved in Olympic effort

Winchester State Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh and Winchester residents Frank Shaw and Dan Murphy will all serve on the 1988 Olympic Pride Committee.

The purpose of the committee is to raise $500,000 for United States Olympic athletes. The athletes will compete in the winter games in Calagary, Canada, from Feb. 13 to Feb. 28, 1988 and in Seoul, South Korea, in the summer of 1988.

Galante chairs auction committee

Winchesterite Phyllis Galante, class of '47, has been selected as chair of the Live Auction Committee for Emmanuel College's first alumnae dinner auction to be held Nov. 7, at 6 p.m. at Emmanuel College.

Proceeds from the "Harvest of Treasures" auction will benefit the college's scholarship fund. The auction is sponsored by Emmanuel College's alunmae association. Galante is its outgoing president.

Austin speaks at language conference

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Foreign Language Association to be held this weekend at the Newton Marriott will include a presentation by Susan Austin, a teacher of German at Winchester High School. Austin will give a conference presentation on incorporating German visitors into the language classroom.

The two-day meeting will feature seven pre-conference workshops, 37 workshop presentations and more than 40 exhibits from publishing houses and manufacturers of laboratory equipment and software. More than 950 participants from New England and New York State are expected to attend this meeting, the 22nd anniversary conference of the Massachusetts Foreign Language Association.

Worker benefits from nursery

Longtime Winchester resident and mother of five Diane MacKenzie has been working at the North Suburban YMCA for four years.

What's the best job benefit? "The Nursery," says MacKenzie. "My daughter Elizabeth, 15 months, comes to work with me and stays next door at the nursery."

MacKenzie visits her young daughter several times a day during her stint at the registration desk.

Parents are encouraged to use the Y's nursery for free babysitting while they work out or accompany another child to a class.

Music directors

Carole and Doug Davidson of Thornberry Road, at left, have been selected music directors for the Needham Community Theatre's upcoming production of "Anything Goes." Here they confer with director Frank Fornaro and choreographer Valerie Anderson at a recent rehearsal. The show will be presented Nov. 20, 21, 27 and 28 at 8 p.m. at the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Center on Central Avenue in Needham. Tickets may be obtained by phoning 444-9241.

LaCascia holds a degree in early childhood education from North Shore Community College. Within the last five years, she has served as director at Fidelity House Preschool in Arlington and a childcare facility in Medford.

The child development center is scheduled to open in late November. It will be located at Winchester Hospital and will be open weekdays from 6:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. to care for children from one month to 7 years old.

"We see our center as an extension of the family and want hospital employees to know their children are in a safe, supportive and clean environment. Parents will be encouraged to visit their children whenever they can," LaCascia said.

The staff at this new facility will include several teachers and aides. Each will be responsible for care of a small group of children. Key components of the curriculum are nutrition education, health education, and provision of a home-like atmosphere. Town Meeting fails to reach decision partnership board is the logical step in the implementation of a long range housing policy and will promote coordination and communication with the town."

Daniel Chane gave the Planning Board minority opinion. "I support low and moderate income housing in this town," he said, but Winchester has to be careful that the housing it chooses fits in with the character of the town. "Winchester is not immune to the self-serving speculator that cares more about his purse than he does about the town of Winchester," Chane said.

He suggested holding hearings on the 21 state housing options open to the town. After the hearings, Chane said, the town will be more able to decide whether or not it wants a housing partnership.

Winchester resident Robert Rae said he moved to town five years ago partly because of the town's zoning. He said he believed the zoning restrictions "will be set aside for virtually every new unit (recommended) in the (Pattison-Slavet) report" if Article 2 passes.

Buildable lots in Winchester are a rare commodity, Rae said. In reference to the housing report, Rae questioned the recommendation to create housing on school land. He said he feared the partnership would agressively pursue all the ideas in the report. Rae also questioned the town's obligations to the state with the creation of a partnership.

David Mortensen, a member of the Special Study Committee on Low and Moderate Income Housing, said the committee strongly supports the article. That committee's mandate ended with Monday night's meeting.

"I'm opposed to using parkland and open space for housing," he said. Mortensen said the seven units of state-funded housing the WHA is working on are on parkland and school property because the town did not know its options. "That's why we said 'Never again,' " he said. The partnership board would offer a "systematic, thoughtful and thorough review of all available plans," Mortensen said, so the town would not be in that position again.

Mortensen also said that the town's housing goals will not be accomplished if left in the hands of the town's elected boards. "History teaches us that isn't good enough," he said.

Later in the meeting, Mortensen argued that a vote against the board is equivalent to turning one's back on hearing the housing options open to the town.

Town Meeting member Ann Matarese brought a new issue into the debate, "I'm opposed to an appointed board usurping the power of our elected boards," she said. Matarese said the partnership board was based on "Marxist philosophy."

Robert Frank, a member of the special study committee, said that he beleived all the teachers, policemen and firemen and town employees with the exception of the town manager and superintendent of schools could qualify for the housing the town is arguing about.

"This is a town in which housing prices have risen so high that we ourselves might not be able to afford the houses in which we live," he said speaking in favor of the partnership board.

Town Meeting adjourned for the evening without a vote on the article or a resolution to a controversy revolving around the sentence "The Housing Partnership Board shall represent the Town before the Massachusetts Housing Partnership."

Meeting member Roger Bauman said he believed the wording was too general. He first moved to amend the article by deleting that statement. He then agreed that inserting language specifying that the board represent the opinions of the town's elected boards would satisfy his concern.

moderator. The other three members of the seven-member board would be one each from the Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and Winchester Housing Authority.

The selectmen's amended version also struck the sentence, "It is preferred that at least one of the appointed members be employed full-time in the real estate business which is intended to include, but not be limited to, the professions of broker, agent or construction contractor, and at least one of the members be an attorney who is a member in good standing of all courts before which he/she has been admitted to practice."

A proposed amendment to change the number of representatives from seven to 11, one from each precinct and one each from the previously mentioned boards, was defeated.

Article 2 would create a Housing Partnership Board that would "prepare and recommend to the Board of Selectmen, the Housing Authority and the Planning Board overall strategies and specific proposals for the development of affordable housing."

The board would also let the elected boards know when they are eligible to apply for grants from the state and federal governments, review agreements for affordable housing in private developments, review linkage proposals, and present to Town Meeting a written report of affordable-housing development activities. It would act in an advisory manner and would have no power to act on proposals or grant applications without specific approval from the town's elected boards, according to Selectman Thomas Schmitt.

help was released at about 2:30 a.m. Sunday morning, although the fire died when the warehouse collapsed at about 11 p.m. Firemen stayed on the scene to insure that the hot embers would not cause any further problems.

Three firefighters received minor injuries while fighting the blaze. Ed Murphy twisted his knee, Bill Duran sprained his ankle, and Michael Beaton had a punctured finger.

Marotta had planned to demolish the collapsed building to make way for his condo development, he had told Town Meeting when he asked for the rezoning. The land has been identified as a hazardous waste site by Department of Environmental Quality Engineering. Selectman Robert Deering said heavy metals such as mercury, arsenic, and cyanide have been found.

Before building can begin, Marotta must clean up the land according to a DEQE-approved plan that he formulates. According to Deering, Marotta has submitted the plan, but does not have final approval from the state.

What To Learn

Story by Meredith Fife Day

Farm Road, 1979, Andrew Wyeth

Wyeth's world colorless with accents of gauzy light

Those of us who expected — hoped, really — that the critics were being snobs about Andrew Wyeth's Helga Suite on exhibit at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts must face the hard facts borne out by the work itself. Politics and hype; sex and money; and controversy over veneration of the painter aside, the kindest response to the more-than-100 works hanging in the museum's galleries is, "ho-hum."

For art lovers of long standing, blockbuster exhibitions have become an acceptable, if confusing, phenomenon. Who can quarrel with a few thousand people being exposed to Renoir's scintillating light, or King Tut's splendors? And, if some silly pun on a museum poster at the Haymarket subway stop introduces waiting masses to art's transforming qualities, only elitists will be deeply affected.

So why pick on the Wyeth exhibit?

Because, alas, Wyeth's body of paintings and drawings of his Chadds Ford, Pa. neighbor does not measure up to the rigors of form or the passion and integrity of content that set museum quality work apart from well-intentioned visual mediocrity.

Contrasts abound.

If it is watercolor you like, take a look at Cezanne's fresh and liquid, yet hard fought, paintings in the medium. The life of something truly seen has been drained from Wyeth's watercolors, which go from ponderous overworking and emphasis on surface texture and detail, to glib swishes of the brush that describe with casual generic ease. Despite his feeling for the drama of an image, usually enhanced by strong contrasts of size and dark-light value, Wyeth inevitably calls attention to technique.

Closer by, go down to the museum's curved hall galleries of American watercolors, lined with Edward Hoppers and Charles Burchfields. Those paintings, along with the Winslow Homers recently taken down, vibrate with energy from the artists' having pushed innate and acquired skill beyond a reliance on formula, recreating the observed world through responding to it rather than exploiting it.

Look at the elegance and sparkle in John Singer Sargent's watercolors across the way at the Gardner Museum. Is there one painting of Helga that sings with that unself-conscious snap and crackle?

Wyeth's pencil drawings reveal, more than any other works, his shortcomings in draughtsmanship and misunderstanding of anatomy. Over and again, Helga's head is oversized. Often, beginning with the first picture in the exhibit, Her Head, the line etching the far side of the face, or its profile, pulls itself up to the paper's surface, skewing space and denying any sculptural reading of the head.

In a 1977 drawing for the Manet-inspired Black Velvet, the legs are without substance. N.C. Wyeth, the father of Andrew and a fine, prolific illustrator and painter who helped create the Brandywine tradition with which we associate the Wyeths, is quoted as having said, "Never paint the material of the sleeve. Become the arm." That concept, understood and practiced, would give substance to the legs.

The drawings in the series of Helga on her knees, besides hinting at a degrading submission of the subject, are frequently cropped insensitively. The knees do not connect with the legs bent underneath them. The weight of the body supported on the knees is not described. The line is flaccid. A shoulder refuses to recede and becomes a free-floating form in the picture.

Such breaking up of the picture's whole through rendering of individual parts without regard to the totality of space and form is a common occurrence in the works.

Lest we think the remarkable detail and textural effects of Wyeth's drawings can be attained only at the expense of the dynamic of the whole, we are reminded in the nearby works of American artist Charles Sheeler (1883-1965) that this is not the case. A few yards from The Helga Pictures, in the museums's Graham Gund galleries, hang almost exactly the same number of Sheeler's paintings, drawings and photographs, as are in The Helga Pictures exhibition. The exquisitely detailed drawings of Sheeler's wife, Katharine, have not only an accuracy of description and structural wholeness, but a warmth of feeling and a sensuality that Wyeth's drawings of Helga don't come close to evoking.

(It has been said that the Sheeler exhibit will cost the museum money that will be recouped by the Wyeth exhibit. One look at the crowds and this claim makes perfect sense. It should be noted, though, that Sheeler's works are infinitely superior in quality; the exhibition is more informative and moving than The Helga Pictures, and it should not be missed.)

Wyeth's palette is determined by tonal contrasts rather than hue saturation. That is to say, darks and lights absorb and bleach out hues, leaving in the wake a relatively neutral color field.

Browns, olive greens and siennas soak into the dark areas of his paintings, while pale pinks, grays, ochres and greens are washed over the light ones. Despite his attention to the seasons, emphasis is almost always on shadows and light and Wyeth's world remains, for all intents and purposes, colorless, with a kind of gauzy light being its greatest atmospheric strength.

One need only walk over to the museum's Impressionism gallery and take a look at Manet's spectacular little 1862 portrait of Victorine Meurand to see how stark contrasts of value can coexist with color.

What happens, finally, in the 15 years of Helga that we see in the exhibition is that very little really changes except her age, hairstyle and overcoat. Even viewers who genuinely admire Wyeth's work admit to boredom and overkill, if not the triumph of style over substance. The work is not transformational for either the artist or the viewer. Nothing has been discovered. Passion lies in gossip and speculation, not in the work itself.

Great works of art continue to breathe with the heat of their creation. Wyeth's works are stilled and often glum. They are exercises and executions carried out on a single theme, and any struggles that are evident are struggles to "get it right" rather than to transcend reality and experience it anew.

What To Learn

Campfire, 1982, Andrew Wyeth

In the Orchard, 1974, Andrew Wyeth

Braids, 1970, Andrew Wyeth

Who is he?

Andrew Wyeth is 70 years old. He and his wife Betsy live in Chadds Ford, Pa. and summer in Maine. He has painted every day for over 60 years.

At age 20 Wyeth had his first exhibition, which sold out the day it opened. Eleven years later, he painted Christina's World, the memorable detailed image of a crippled neighbor moving on her hands and knees toward a farm house atop the hill on which she is pictured. The painting now hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Wyeth's father, Newell Converse (N.C.) Wyeth, was born in Needham, Ma. of parents who were members of prominent Cambridge families. After studying drafting at the Mechanic Arts High School in Boston, he was accepted into noted artist Howard Pyle's illustration school in Wilmington, De. He married Carolyn Bockius and settled in the nearby Brandywine River valley, finding the simple life of the Chadds Ford countryside to his liking and conducive to his art.

Andrew was the last of five children born to the couple. Educated primarily at home, three of the children — Henriette, Carolyn and Andrew — were to become accomplished painters. "Drawing!" said their father, "that's the outstanding stunt in this house, and to see the whole five around the lamp each night, each one seriously bent over a tablet of paper...one would at least guess it were organized night art school — or that all were nutty in the same way!"

N.C. Wyeth illustrated about 200 books during his career, including Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, Washington Irving's Rip Van Winkle, James Fenimore Cooper's The Last of the Mohicans and The Deerslayer, and Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe. He, and then his son, continued to paint representationally when their contemporaries were turning to abstract art.

Who is Helga?

Helga Testorf is a German immigrant who is now in her mid-fifties. For 14 years she worked for Andrew Wyeth's sister, Carolyn, cooking, washing windows and doing odd jobs. She is married and has four children. Her residence is in Chadds Ford, but she is said to have fled to Germany during the barrage of publicity in late summer 1986 when Wyeth's paintings of her were reproduced on the covers of Time, Newsweek and Art and Antiques magazines, accompanied by stories inside on Wyeth's "Secret Paintings," his "Stunning Secret" (Time), and "Secret Obsession" (Newsweek).

Wyeth met Helga Testorf when she was 39 years old. According to Arts and Antiques magazine, she had looked after and nursed the ailing German farmer and subject of an earlier series of Wyeth paintings, Karl Kuerner, through his final illness before his death in the late '70s. Kuerner's farm figures prominently in the pictures of Helga.

Virtually all that is known about the model for The Helga Pictures is through second-hand reports, speculation, and Wyeth's depiction of her. She is reported to be shy and reclusive. She was not included in the financial deals made when the pictures were sold.

Exhibit will travel

In 1986, after Andrew Wyeth had revealed to his wife, Betsy, and to the press a secret cache of 240 works of Helga Testorf stored in Karl Kuerner's attic, he and Betsy decided to sell the pictures. They contacted neighboring collector Leonard E.B. Andrews, who spent hours looking at the drawings, watercolors, oils and temperas executed between 1971 and 1985, pronounced them a "national treasure," and purchased them, along with a copyright for their reproduction, for upwards of $10 million.

Within weeks of his purchase, Andrews had arranged for publication of a book on the pictures with publisher Harry N. Abrams and for exhibition of them by the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., with a May, 1987 opening. The exhibition was offered to other museums and will travel, after its Boston showing, to Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit and Brooklyn.

The exhibition, organized by The National Gallery and made possible by support from The DuPont Company, remains on view at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts through Jan. 3, 1988.

Mystery misses the mark

I'LL BE BACK BEFORE MIDNIGHT, a mystery in two acts by Peter Colley; directed by John Grant Phillips; set design by Don Soule; lighting design by Jace Holmes; costume design by Denise M. Wallace. With Robert E. Riley, M. Lynda Robinson, John Adair, and Marina Re. At the Nickerson Theatre, 30 Accord Park Drive, Norwell, MA through Nov. 29.

Heartbeats pound ominously in the night! Electric lights flicker and die! Locked windows are suddenly thrust ajar! Bolts of thunder crackle furiously through the skies! The radio plays eerie dirge music! And the ghost of a grotesque, deformed hermit, brandishing a long blood-stained knife, stalks the premises. Is it all real or just a figment of the imagination? To find out you'll have to see the spooky murder mystery I'll Be Back Before Midnight at Norwell's Nickerson Theatre!

Peter Colley's play will never be mistaken for a Sleuth or a Deathtrap; it's a plebian trifle straight out of schlock paperback novels, totally devoid of innovative ripples, clever repartee or high gloss patina. Nevertheless, it is absorbing and it is fun, and will undoubtedly get a good deal of play from community theatres looking for a new title.

After four months of therapy in a mental institution, youthful Jan Sanderson (M. Lynda Robinson) is released in the custody of her husband Greg (Robert E. Riley). Greg, a college professor who jogs for relaxation and downs vitamins by the fistfull, has rented a desolate, isolated farm house in the country on the Vermont/New Hampshire border (the nearest village is five miles away) for Jan's recuperative period. He's taken a sabbatical, not only to care for Jan but also to work on his thesis. During their six years of marriage they have subsisted, in the main, on grants obtained for Greg by Jan's father, head of his department at the school.

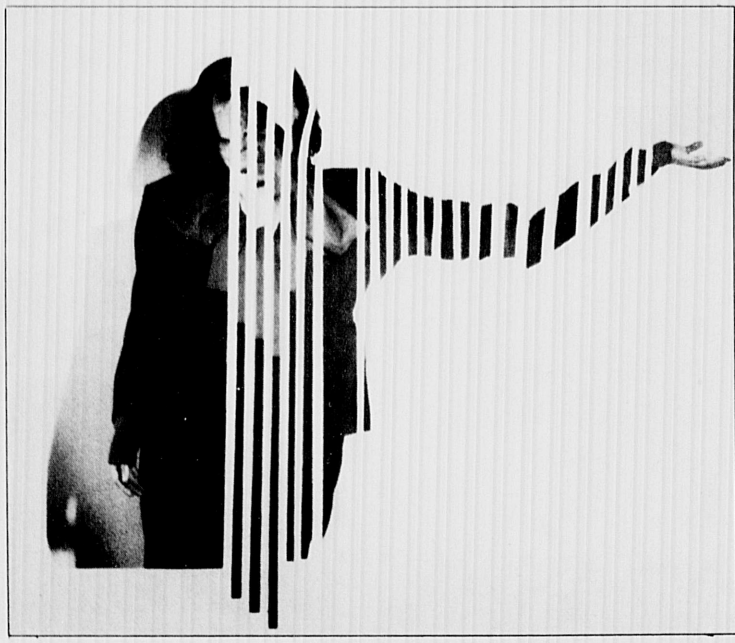

George Willowby (John Adair), the landlord, is a crusty local who swills down whiskey by the tumbler and thrives on telling tales of the macabre; stories of the house being haunted or previous tenants who claimed to have seen ghosts, all stemming from the stabbing death of a farmer's daughter in the house by a hermit 50 years earlier. "Whenever there's a murder in these parts you find a pool of blood in the exact spot on the floor where the young girl was murdered!" forewarns George.

Jan's neuroses flair up — her anxieties, obsessions, depressions — and the shocking revelation by Greg that his sister Laura (Marina Re) is arriving momentarily to spend a few days serves only to further aggravate Jan's condition. A troubled relationship between Jan and Laura developed immediately after the death of Greg and Laura's mother.

Laura, a successful, big-city account executive, is aggressive and determined. Overtly and wantonly, she has staked her claim on Greg's affections. Forming an alliance with her brother, they started planting seeds about Jan's vivid imagination until Jan was convinced that she was hallucinating and was committed. Now Laura wants Jan out of the way ... forever!

Jan and Greg's first night together proves a disaster and, the Theatre S. presents Dumas

Theatre S. presents the American premiere of the avant-garde French play The Atlantic Beaches by Marguerite Duras Nov. 6-21 at St. Peter's Church in Central Square, Cambridge. The play opens the festival TRANS/ACTIONS: three American premieres of avant-garde French drama of the '80's, by three of France's leading writers (with all performances in English.)

In The Atlantic Beaches a mysterious woman waits at a deserted summer estate, The Collonades, for her husband. A Reporter and a Stranger slowly draw out her painful story: faithful to her husband for years, through numerous adulteries, she has now taken a lover at her husband's urging. In fact, her husband has paid the man to sleep with his wife.

This bittersweet tragedy of fidelity is a modern masterpiece by the author of the film Hiroshima, Mon Amour and the novel The Lover. Her play The Atlantic Beaches will be transformed by Theatre S. into an experience of total theatre, a new fusion between music, dance and drama.

A lightning-field of live microphones will intercept and electrify the wife's erotic story of desolation. All the while, throughout the dead rooms of the villa, a powerful and haunting Outside Turbulence threatens to sweep her away to a wild party of oblivion.

Featured in the play will be the music of Figures on a Beach, the Boston rock band now gaining national prominence with their Sire album Standing on Ceremony, and their MTV video.

The other two festival plays are Over Nothing At All by Nathalie Sarraute, Dec. 4-19; and Nina, It's Different by Michel Vinaver, Jan. 8-23. All festival plays will be performed at St. Peter's Church. A series pass is $20/12 students.

The Atlantic Beaches will be performed Nov. 6-21 at the dance space in St. Peter's Church, 838 Mass. Ave., Central Square, Cambridge. Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. with a late show Saturday at 10 p.m.

Tickets are $10/$6.50 students. For information and reservations call 625-6087. Tickets are on sale at BOSTIX, Out of Town Tickets, Somerville Theatre, and TICKETRON.

Anne Frank at Merrimack

The Merrimack Repertory Theatre of Lowell opens its season on Nov. 6 with the Pulitzer Prize-winning stage adaptation of The Diary of Anne Frank by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett.

The play dramatizes the world-famous diary kept by a young girl who hid with her family in an attic from the Nazis in Amsterdam for over two years during World War II. The extraordinary humanity contained in this diary has kept both it and the play version vitally important and enduringly popular works.

The theatre is located in Liberty Hall, part of Lowell's Memorial Auditorium complex, located in the historic downtown district and is accessible for the handicapped.

Performances, which run through Nov. 28, are Mondays and Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 and 7 p.m. Reservations and season subscriptions are available through the Box Office at 454-3926.

The trilogy's remaining plays include A Rosen By Any Other Name and The Chopin Playoffs.

In 1978-79 Horovitz wrote three teleplays based on the same material for a Canadian Broadcasting Company mini-series. Today, I Am a Fountain Pen had its world premiere in 1986 at New York City's American Jewish Theatre. SRO audiences and high critical acclaim resulted in the play being picked up for a commercial production off-Broadway in the spring of 1986.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Tension and motion are key elements in Don Stinson's pieced-together pastel on paper, The Car. Stinson is one of three artists in The Newton Art Center's exhibition, People on Paper. (Photo by David Caras)

'People. . .' confront viewer

Sharing a commitment to representational portrayal of the human figure, the three artists who exhibit their drawings of "People on Paper" at Newton Arts Center reveal, nevertheless, distinctive personal styles and approaches to their broadly common subject matter.

Though the drawings of Jim Ann Howard, Don Stinson, and Scattergood-Moore are hung among one another rather than divided into three separate areas in the big gallery at 61 Washington Park in Newtonville, the visual grasp of which drawings belong to which artist is immediate.

Don Stinson's formats are irregular. Angular frames fit around the paper's edges, pieced together on the walls and forming jagged narratives of partially seen events and activities in which people are involved. The violated, sliced and rejoined rectangles sometimes appear to be tumbling down on the wall, or separating and joining themselves in a coincidental staccato rhythm. That rhythm is echoed by the big shapes and value areas making up the cropped images within the frames.

Because of their cropping, Stinson's images appear larger than they are, as if shot by a hand-held movie camera at close range, pushing beyond the lens edges. Filmic movement and mystery characterize these works, too. The detailed portions of figures that we see are active: a hand covers a mouth, lifts a brandy snifter, clutches a telephone receiver, reaches out against a car door to brace the body; eyes are seen reflected darkly in the automobile's rear view mirror, watchful and tense; a shoe is being tied. The cameraman himself has been pushed and jolted. His images are tilted, sometimes blurred. The scenes could be the last remembered before a blackout, or seen through a keyhole — a hurried documentation. The story's plot and conclusion is, finally, left to the viewers to determine from their perception and experience of the image fragments.

Unlike an implied motion and sequence of events in Stinson's works, activity in Scattergood-Moore's portraits is in the facial expression of the subject and surface texture of the drawing.

Coming to his portraits through training in a humanist tradition of expressive figuration, Scattergood-Moore pays homage to his subjects through formal means of positioning them in a space and light that externalizes their inner intensity.

British painters Francis Bacon and Lucien Freud are portrayed, set back into the papers' sometimes delicately mottled, sometimes heavily darkened, surfaces, often in a series of rectangles which serve to both emphasize and venerate the subject. Scattergood-Moore draws the single figures of his portraits with a sense of reverance and respect for their individual identities, but also with what comes across as a personal investment of shared feeling and emotion with them.

The drawings of Jim Ann Howard are less subjective, with more psychological distance between the artist and her subjects. Space, though, is physically closer than that of Scattergood-Moore. The extreme close-ups, often life-sized, project a physicality that is at once investigative and confrontational. The eye moves over the terrain of flesh, bone, muscle and hair of faces and heads as if they were curiously uncharted territory.

Individuals are recognizable, but are seen in the context of a physical presence that supercedes attitudinal readings. Looking at the drawings provokes not questions of whether these people are happy or sad or great or humble, but of how they look, how different they look from one another, and what it is that makes them look the way they do. We confront them. They confront one another, nose-to-nose, eye-to-eye.

As the three artists themselves point out, an exhibit such as theirs is more likely to bring out the differences than the similarities in their work. It will be noted, though, that there is in the show a prevalence of darkness resulting from concentration, investigation and reworking. There is, too, an overall intensity of the pictures having been worked far beyond the notion of drawing as a preparatory sketch for something more monumental.

See People on Paper through Nov. 8. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday. Call 964-3424.

Fidelio

Conducted by Paul Nadler, the Boston Concert Opera production features Viviane Thomas as Leonora; Gary Bachlund as Florestan; Roger Roloff as Don Pizarro; Herbert Perry as Don Fernando; David Eisler as Jacquino; and Georgine Resick as Marcellina.

Chorus pro Musica's participation in Boston Concert Opera's production of Fidelio marks its first collaboration with Boston Concert Opera.

Set in Spanish jail, Fidelio recounts the story of the heroic Leonora, whose sacrifice wins freedom for her husband Florestan, unjustly imprisoned by the tyrant Pizarro.

Composed over the course of a decade, from 1804 to 1814, Beethoven's only opera is based on an account of the French Reign of Terror, with libretto by Joseph von Sonnleithner. Last performed in Boston in 1976, the Boston Symphony Orchestra gave the only previous Symphony Hall performance of Fidelio in 1967 under Erich Leinsdorf.

Subscriptions for Chorus pro Musica's season are currently available and are priced at $56.50 and $40.75. For a detailed brochure, and to order subscriptions, write to Chorus pro Musica, 645 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02116, or call 267-7442.

Tickets for the Nov. 7 performance of Fidelio are $35, $25 and $12 and are available by mail or may be charged on a credit card by telephone at Boston Concert Opera, Box 459, Astor Station, Boston, MA 02123, 536-1166.

Tickets will also be available through Show of the Month Club: 426-6444. Call 267-7442.

London Philharmonic at Symphony Hall

The London Philharmonic Orchestra performs a program of Mendelssohn and Mahler on Friday, Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. in Symphony Hall. Semyon Bychkov, music director of the Orchestre de Paris and the Buffalo Philharmonic, will lead the London in this Wang Celebrity Series presentation.

Tickets are priced at $25 and $22 and are on sale at Symphony Hall (266-1492). To charge tickets by phone, call Concertcharge at 497-1118.

This portrait, taken by acclaimed combat photographer Henry McMahon is part of the historic exhibit, War and Peace: 1943-1953, the Gallery at Creative Framing, 815 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill, through Nov. 28.

Mystery

following morn, Greg lashes out, "You don't expect a car to start after it's been sitting in the garage for four months!" Suffice to say that by the final curtain you've witnessed stabbings, shotgun deaths, drug overdoses, hatchet killings, buried corpses returning from the grave, and a stage looking like a scene from Chain Saw Massacres!

After a slow start, due to the actors working into their roles and Colley's sputtering script, tension mounts and the action moves briskly under John Grant-Phillips' guiding hand. But for M. Lynda Robinson, who creates a believeable Jan, performances are pedestrian. Most notable is John Bowen's realistic sound effects tape. Don Soule provides a functional set replete with overstuffed furniture, wood-burning stove, and pass-through space to the antiquated kitchen, and Jace Holmes' lighting is properly scary and atmospheric.

Books on cassettes a novel idea

Heard any good books lately?

You read me right, heard.

If you're plugged into the latest, you most certainly have.

While critics snipe about their impact on literacy and the aesthetics of abridged spoken classics, the audiotape industry, still in its infancy, is making considerable inroads into our country's car-driven culture.

Some bookstores report the tripling of sales even though an unabridged work like "War and Peace" can cost a whopping $135. Professional readers are also benefiting from booming sales, pocketing $4,000 a crack for lending their voices to the narrations.

Good, bad or indifferent — and opinion is divided — audiotapes are here in a big way.

"Audiotapes play to the American lifestyle," says Valerie Cade, president of Simon & Schuster's audio-video publishing division. "They allow you to do things at the same time — drive and listen, jog and listen, do the laundry and listen.

"Most people listen to them when they're driving," she says. "People find them an absolutely addictive form of entertainment. I know business executives that won't make a two-hour trip unless they have a stack of audiotapes with them."

Judy Norquist, manager of a B Dalton bookstore can understand that.

"I drive from Long Beach (Calif.) to Manhattan Beach (Calif.) to work every day, and it used to be hellacious," she says. "Audiotapes have turned those hours...into quality time."

Over the last three months, she has driven her way through "Clan of the Cave Bear," "On the Wings of Eagles," "Brotherhood of the Stone," "Thinner" and "Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy."

And she's not alone.

Millions of Americans, industry experts say, are seizing the opportunity to recycle time once wasted sitting on gridlocked freeways, in taxis, buses, planes or trains, or in tedious activities such as walking, shaving, ironing or exercising.

As a result the industry that wasn't an industry just six years ago has leapfrogged from sales of $25 million in 1983 to $200 million in 1986, and research by Warner Audio Publishing indicates that figure could triple by 1990.

During the five years from 1981 to 1986, the last year for which figures are available, the number of audiotapes on the market has mushroomed to more than 12,000 and now includes an incredible degree of diversity.

You can listen to the latest best seller by Tom Clancy, Stephen King, Sidney Sheldon, Irving Wallace, James Michener or Frederick Forsyth; revel in classics such as "Anna Karenina," "The Red Badge of Courage" or "The Scarlet Letter"; be spellbound by the likes of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle or Agatha Christie.

You can get electronic aid in improving your mind, your business acumen, your linguistic ability, your love life and your health.

You can "work out for a firmer fanny" or "walk out with Jane Fonda."

And if your conscious self isn't amenable to shaping up, you can take the subliminal path to such pervasive quests as losing weight, eliminating fear, relieving stress and anxiety, stopping smoking or improving your memory.

Subliminal tapes also will help you with astral projection, psychic healing, visualization and aura reading, past life regression and Chakra meditation.

Yuppie parents eager to instill a little culture in their offspring will find taped classics such as "The Nutcracker," "Treasure Island," "Wind in the Willows," "Aesop's Fables" and "Winnie the Pooh," a painless path to literacy for youngsters already attuned to electronic entertainment.

Non-fiction tapes are almost uniformly single-voice productions, but fiction can come in a variety of forms. Among them are narration by a single professional reader by a name actor or actress or by the author him-or-herself.

John Updike, Christina Crawford, Louis L'Amour and Peter Ueberroth all narrated their own books, while Lee Iacocca not only reads his autobiography but comments on it.

The ranks of celebrity readers include such heady names as Jason Robards, Sir John Gielgud, Katharine Hepburn, James Mason, F. Murray Abraham, Julie Harris and Sir Anthony Quayle, as well as popular figures such as Alan Arkin, Richard Crenna, Edward Asner, Donald Sutherland, William Conrad, Susannah York and Robby Benson.

Whether you find the anonymous voice or the familiar one most effective is largely a matter of choice, as is the question of background music and sound effects.

Most current fiction is recorded "straight" — in other words, voice only — but Louis L'Amour tapes are beefed up by the sounds of hoofbeats and gunshots, and Chaim Potok's "The Chosen" includes background crowd noises and news broadcasts.

Stephen King's "The Mist" got the full treatment — multiple readers, background music, rustling leaves, slithering tentacles and the flapping of prehistoric wings.

Prices for audiotapes cover as wide a range as subject matter, stretching from $2.95 for some children's tapes to $135 for an unabridged version of a lengthy classic such as "War and Peace." Most, however, range between $7.95 and $14.95 for a one- or two-cassette package offering one to three hours of entertainment.

Most taped fiction necessarily consists of high abridged versions of full-length books — including "artful adaptations" of such classics as Charles Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" — a fact that leaves some critics aghast.

Others fear what Jonathan Kozol, author of "Illiterate America," describes as "one more disincentive to literacy."

In Life magazine, columnist Louden Wainwright observed that "more than one-third of adult Americans, perhaps 75 million people, cannot read the instructions on a bottle of medicine. That awful fact doesn't inspire my confidence that the easy satisfaction of taped 'reading' are going to lead to a great willingness to do it the hard way."

Advocates of taped fiction argue that books on tapes allow people to experience a wider selection of literature than they could by reading alone, as well as enabling them to exchange the incessant chatter of disc jockies, talk-show hosts and commercials for a higher — or at least more satisfying — form of diversion.

CAR CARE CORNER

By Dan Hogan, Service Manager

The most common cause of overheating is a low water level in the radiator; so check that first. If it's low, start the engine and slowly add water with the engine idling. Keep an eye on it, though, and if the coolant level appears to be dropping, check on a leak somewhere. Besides leaks and low water, the things that can overheat your engine are a bad thermostat, loose fan belt, crud in the cooling system, improper ignition timing, and a stuck heat riser, in that order of probability. So if there's plenty of water in the radiator and overheating persists, check the fan belt, and if that's okay, check the ignition timing; if it's way off, that could be your problem.

Buyers gain edge in mortgage rates

By Kenneth R. Harney

Don't let the financial hobgoblins that have been swirling through the American economy the past two weeks unsettle your real estate plans this fall.

To the contrary: Make the most of the stock market's manic volatility. Make the most of Wall Street's seismic Big One by grasping its special significance for real estate and mortgage financing.

Start with the cost of money. Before Black Monday, Oct. 19, interest rates were on a steep path upward. Within barely 30 days, fixed-rate mortgage loans had gone from just above single digits to nearly 12 percent.

The short-term bank prime rate — the index governing the monthly payments on many home equity loans — had jumped three times. And the most important mortgage index, the one-year Treasury securities that control millions of adjustable-rate home loans, had surged to 8½ percent, nearly one-third higher than it had been in the summer.

Wall Street's panic pulled the plug on that upward rate spiral. With billions of dollars fleeing stocks into Treasury bills and insured lenders' coffers, rates dipped immediately. Subsequent public assurances by the Federal Reserve Board that credit would be kept plentiful throughout the economy pushed rates down even further.

The bottom line for you as a potential buyer, seller or refinancer? Although no one is giving it away, mortgage money is demonstrably cheaper — at least one percentage point on average in competitive markets — than it would have been otherwise.

Because economists calculate that every one-point rate cut qualifies an additional one million American households to buy a median-priced house, Wall Street's fallout could have an immediately tangible effect on you. That is particularly the case if you had been squeezed out of a purchase by rising rates earlier in the month.

The same could be true if you are a trade-up buyer or seller. What had been turning into an interest rate rout now looks like a real estate reprieve, at least temporarily. For the coming few weeks, prospects appear favorable for the continuation of an interest rate "window" — an opening or pause in an upward trend that may well resume later in the season.

Rather than putting off the move-up purchase you had planned, think hard about locking in a rate commitment now. As James Christian, chief economist of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, puts it, "If I were personally faced with the choice of borrowing mortgage money today or borrowing in January, I'd apply for it now and try to close before the end of the year."

That holds true for fixed as well as adjustable loans, in the view of Christian and other top mortgage economists. The long-term trend for the balance of the decade — absent dramatic turnarounds in the nation's foreign trade imbalance, federal budgetary deficit and falling dollar — is for a gradual increase in rates. Given that scenario, making the most of the current window makes a lot of sense.

Rate-capped adjustables, priced at a record three percentage-points-plus below fixed-rate competitors at the moment, appear to be the odds-on consumer choice. Bear in mind, however, that if index rates are still higher next fall and the fall of 1989, your advantage over fixed-rate loans could evaporate.

So don't dismiss fixed-rate mortgages during the window because they carry double digits. Better yet, on new-house purchases turn double-digits into single-digits by shopping for — or insisting on — two- to three-point "buydowns" (subsidies on fixed-rate loans) for three to five years. Builders who did not want to talk about buydowns a few months ago will gladly welcome you to their subdivision models — with buydown opportunities readily available — this weekend.

What about real estate values in the wake of the financial market jitters? Are they potentially hurt when Wall Street sustains billions of dollars of paper losses?

Although some TV commentators have suggested we will see value losses in "big-ticket" expenditures such as houses, don't lose sleep over it. Except at the superhouse, seven-figure level, residential real estate values are on a separate track. The cost of mortgage money is the most critical component in the current national market equation, and that has been healthier for consumers since the panic than before. "Financing creates value," as the appraisers say. It is not the only major factor — as Houston has demonstrated since 1984 — but it is vital.

Even in so-called overheated markets, such as suburban New Jersey, Long Island, Connecticut and metropolitan Boston, do not expect unusual price cuts attributable to the market panic. House values, unlike the stock market, have an inherent stability that never have been — even in the depths of the Great Depression or the 1980-1982 recession — vulnerable to such mass hysteria as mid-October's Wall Street plunge.

After all, people live in houses. They play poker with stocks.

Realtors adhere to code of ethics

By CAROLE LANDERS

Two kinds of people sell real estate. Both are licensed brokers, but one is a Realtor. What is the difference? Both must submit applications to the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. Both are voted in by the local councils. Then the choice must be made — to remain a broker or to become a Realtor.

The difference lies in a formal code of ethics. Realtors are strict adherents to these standards, which include good business conduct in selling homes, settling disputes within the local council and Board, keeping within the confines of the law in business transactions, and treating fellow Realtors fairly.

A Realtor is accountable to his peers in the local council. Each area of the state is broken into councils (Belmont is part of council L, along with Arlington and Winchester), with an arbitrator for each area. Client complaints are taken care of by council members first; only if a satisfactory solution cannot be reached will the issue be brought before a panel of the Boston Board.

The Board is indispensable to a Realtor, according to Gerard Natoli, of Natoli Realty Co. in Belmont. A Realtor is "far more knowledgeable", due to the Board's constant dissemination of information, he says. The Board also keeps Realtors in touch with one another, and is a valuable source of support. "Without the Real Estate Board," Natoli says, "the real estate business would be physically impossible to be in."

It is a highly competitive business (Belmont alone has 31 offices). To maintain his status, a Realtor must keep himself aware of the issues and changes that are occurring in the world of real estate. This can be accomplished via courses and seminars. Over the past decade, there has been an increased awareness of problems in the home, such as asbestos, ureafoam, and radon, a radioactive gas that can accumulate in the home.

Natoli observes that a Realtor has to be aware of and be able to explain these issues to the clients, who are more knowledgeable about and concerned with them in today's market.

Although demanding, the real estate business has its compensations. Helping someone to purchase his or her first home is "extremely rewarding", Natoli says. He especially enjoys visiting the newly sold homes six months-one year later to see "the nice things they've done to the house."

"It makes you feel good when they're totally satisfied," Natoli concludes, and such is the essence of being a Realtor.

Housing board squeaks by Town Meeting

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Winchester will have a Housing Partnership Board to help the town with its affordable-housing efforts. Town Meeting decided by a seven-vote margin Monday night. The town also appropriated $2,500 for a housing consultant to work with the board.

After a debate Town Moderator John Sullivan called one of the town's longest at more than three hours, the Partnership Board (Article 2) passed with amendments to its original form and the housing consultant (Article 4) got Town Meeting's okay after it indefinitely postponed creation of a Housing Development Department (Article 3).

The partnership board will consist of a representative of the Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and Winchester Housing Authority and four members to be chosen by Sullivan.

Selectman Francis Sopper, a vocal opponent to the partnership board said, "I haven't changed my opinion." But added that he was not as upset with the final article as he was with the one Selectman Thomas Schmitt first presented. "It's been watered down. The boards have some input and the power is with the town rather than the state," Sopper said.

The meeting's first action Monday night amended the duties of the board (part 4.8.4 a) to read: "The Housing Partnership Board shall only after consulting with the Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and Housing Authority, engage in discussions with the Massachusetts Housing Partership (MHP) regarding available state funding for housing."

Some Town Meeting members were troubled by the original

Leaf issue spins off whirlwind debate

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Town Moderator John Sullivan said he thought Town Meeting could resolve Article 5 -- to control throwing snow, ice or leaves in the street -- in the 15 minutes remaining before Clarence Borggaard stood up to do what he calls "his customary duty," motioning to recess. He was wrong.

The article, in its original form, would have made throwing snow, ice or leaves onto any street, sidewalk, gutter or other public place within the town against Winchester bylaws. That article is related to Article 6, which would give the town the power to give $25 tickets to offenders of the snow and ice throwing law by decriminalizing those offenses.

First, Committee on Government Regulations Chairman Noreen Arcari recommended amending the article to remove all references to leaves. She said she believed Winchester residents had not been properly informed that the Department of Public Works would no longer pick up leaves. Arcari suggested notifying all residents in their tax bills as a solution to the leaf problem. Arcari said the committee had not included the leaves in the original language of the bylaw.

Arcari said she believed leaf-littering was adequately covered in Chapter 11 of the town's bylaws.

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia said the leaves were added to the language so the decriminalization of snow, ice, and leaf throwing could occur through the same warrant article.

Town Meeting members said that on some streets the DPW did pick up leaves, but on others it did not. Borggaard recited this poem, written by him, that was well received by the meeting and seemed to echo its sentiments:

"When the north wind from the high-piled curbs sets the raked leaves flying,

Back again on the green grass of the combed lawns they are lying,

If we can't burn and they all return,

Day care bill goes to House

The State Senate has passed a bill, S 1733, that would reimburse school systems for the cost of transporting pupils to after-school programs licensed by the Office for Children, announced State Sen. Richard A. Kraus (D-Arlington), the sponsor of the legislation.

"This bill will especially benefit local governments," said Kraus. "Currently, school systems are not reimbursed for expenses incurred in transporting children to any location other than their home. S 1733 would provide a financial incentive for cities and towns to transport children to licensed after-school facilities. In fact, a school system that develops its own after-school programs or allows its buildings to be used by parent-run after-school programs could well reduce its overall transportation costs."

"Working parents all too often have no way to get children bused to after-school programs, so the kids have to fend for themselves," stated Kraus. "By providing children rides to child-care facilities, the state would be helping to reduce the number of latch-key children in the Commonwealth."

The next hurdle for the Day Care Transportation bill is passage by the Massachusetts House.

Grant sued for financial wrongdoings

Everett Avenue resident John Grant has two lawsuits on his hands, one filed by angry investors charging that Grant mismanaged more than $2 million in pension fund money and one by the U.S. Labor Department charging violations of fiduciary provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA).

Grant, a registered broker-dealer and financial advisor, is the owner of Summit Co. and its subsidiary, Summit Financial Co. The companies advised investors and managed pension funds for private retirement accounts.

Summit has filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankrupcy Code. Grant has also filed for personal bankrupcy. Grant's clients are now unsecured creditors of his company.

John Chavez, a spokesman for the Labor Department said the suit charges Grant with transferring funds under his management into corporations in which he "held substantial ownership" and into his personal accounts, violations of ERISA. The department also charges that Grant advised clients to invest in his own companies, another ERISA violation, according to Chavez.

The suit asks for a court order disallowing Grant to manage ERISA-covered plans ever again, Chavez said. The department also seeks reimbursement for any losses, but does not claim that their actually were any. Chavez said he didn't know how much money was involved, but that the suit includes 31 pension plans Grant had been managing.

Priscilla Endicott Hergesheimer is leading the civil suit against Summit. She claims she is owed $2.1 million, the largest single sum in the suit, which charges deceit and breach of fiduciary duties.

Attempts by the Star to reach Grant failed, however he has denied the charges in court papers.

Study says school depression endemic

Substance abuse and family difficulties less of a problem

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Winchester High School students do have problems with substance abuse, depression, sexuality, and academic pressures, but no more so than students around the country, according to WHS principal Vincent Larocco.

Larocca was referring to a recently completed report of social and emotional needs at the high school. The study, conducted by Harry Bakow and Janet Seide, is a compilation of data based on student and faculty answers to questions regarding mental and physical health issues.

Bakow said the survey was unusual because of the number of participants; 778 students and 64 faculty members answered the questions. "Statistically it's a powerful statement," he said.

Substance Abuse

About 1.5 percent of the students said they agreed strongly with the statement, "I have trouble with drinking too much alcohol." Ten percent mildly agreed with the statement.

When asked whether a friend had trouble drinking too much alcohol, almost 16 percent strongly agreed. The report states that the farther away from the problem the student gets, the easier it is for him to acknowledge it. In fact, 53 percent of students strongly agreed that "other kids" in school have drinking problems.

Drugs, the report said, are less of a problem, but 10 percent of the high school population said it used illegal drugs frequently. Twenty-five percent of the faculty rated drug use a serious problem.

Depression and relationships

Guidance counselor Elaine Rosen said she was most shocked by the percentage of students who said they had contemplated suicide. Of the 778 students in the survey, 35 percent said yes to this question. Twenty-five percent of the students described themselves as depressed at the time of the survey.

The report also contains data on relationships, both sexual and non-sexual. Bakow and Seide said that having a boyfriend or girlfriend is a significant concern among students as is having enough friends.

Over 50 percent of students worry to some degree about making a decision about sex, while 36 percent said they have had sexual intercourse. Almost half said they were concerned about getting AIDS.

Academic pressure

An issue often discussed by the School Committee is academic pressure. According to the survey, the committee's concern is warranted. Over 70 percent of the student body agreed that academic pressure is a problem, while 66 percent of the faculty rated the problem as severe or serious. Both students and faculty agreed that there is too much pressure on students to get into a good college.

Family life

The survey extended into the students' family life as well. Thirty-five percent said they agreed to some degree that they have a lot of problems with their parents. Almost the same percentage said they worried about their parents fighting.

Eighteen percent said their parents were divorced or separated, while 16 percent said they worried about their parents getting divorced. Five percent said they had problems with a stepparent.

Town departments ready for storms

Winchester police said the town's first touch of winter Tuesday night did not cause any problems. A few cars had difficulty on the icy roads Wednesday morning, but no one was injured, police said.

Department of Public Works Director Dominic Serratore said 1½ inches of snow fell, not enough for the town to break out the plows.

When the Star went to press Wednesday morning, Serratore was expecting a storm more intense than Tuesday's.

"We're going over our equipment, making sure the plows, sanders and salters are okay," Serratore said. The department was expecting an order of extra sand to arrive Wednesday afternoon.

The storm was expected to hit at about 2 p.m. and last between 12 and 18 hours. The U.S. Weather Service predicted the Winchester area would see between three and six inches of snow.

Serratore said the department will plow if three or more inches fall. He said problems could occur if the storm had not passed by the time people started heading to work and school.

This year's first snowfall came early, as did last year's, Serratore said. On November 11, 1986, three inches of snow fell. Eight days later, another storm dumped seven inches on Winchester.

In What's Up: Local malls

In joke

POLICE LOG

Saturday, October 31

At 12:38 a.m. police officer Carl Fuller arrived at the scene of a motor vehicle accident on Main Street at Symmes Corner. Fire Department EMTs Sgt. Alford and Ptlm. Best were already at the scene, according to police reports.

A red 1984 Ford Thunderbird heading north on Main Street ran over the south island, passed the rotary island and continued over the north island causing damage to the grass. Officer Fuller reported that he saw scrub marks along the route, and tire rim marks fron the north island east onto Main Street leading to where the Thunderbird was parked, according to reports.

The driver, a Woburn man, said he had been cut off just before the rotary by another vehicle heading north on Main Street. He told Officer Fuller the car was going between 40 and 45 miles per hour when the accident occurred. The car hit the curbing and blew both left tires, police said.

A state Department of Public Works Route 38 sign and a town Symmes Corner sign were on the ground, according to police reports.

The man said he had two passengers, both of Woburn. There were no injuries, according to police.

The driver was arrested on charges of operating under the influence and issued citations for failure to keep in the right lane and speeding, police said.

Marlboro police called Winchester police to report that a 1975 station wagon reported stolen had been used in the armed robbery of a jewelry store in Marlboro, according to police.

The car belonged to a Medford woman who reported the car stolen at 1:51 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5. The wagon had been parked on Shore Road at the time of the robbery, according to police.

Friday, November 6

While patrolling at 8 p.m. police noticed a late model, brown Dodge Monaco with an expired inspection sticker.

The driver stopped the car and parked it. Police approached the driver, who identified himself as a Woburn man. He told the officer that he attached plates from another vehicle, according to police reports.

A license check showed that the man's license had been suspended indefinitely for failure to pay excise tax, police said.

The man was cited for driving with a suspended license, operating an uninsured and unregistered motor vehicle and attaching plates.

Bob Mirak touches base with his historic homeland in Transcaucasian Yerevan

By DON CUMMINGS
Special to the Star

"It was like a Catholic who goes to Rome, or a Jew who visits Jerusalem," says Bob Mirak, Winchester resident and local businessman, describing his journey in October to Yerevan, capital city of the Soviet Union's Armenian Republic.

Mirak, whose parents both came to the United States from Armenia as orphans following World War I, was invited to attend a symposium conducted by the Committee for Cultural Relations with Armenians Abroad. A book he authored and that was published in 1983, "Torn Between Two Lands - Armenians in America 1890 to World War I," prompted the invitation. And thus he made his first pilgrimage to the land of his forefathers.

It is a tough land, flecked with hills, much of its terrain part of the Caucasus mountain range. Only a small percentage of the soil is arable. And the majestic peaks of Mt. Ararat observable in the distance, which are located within Turkish borders, offer a constant reminder that a hostile neighbor lurks nearby. But despite the difficulties, the Armenian people show a tender side.

"The people are extremely warm-blooded and hospitable," explains Mirak. "They treated me like a lost son who had finally returned."

The lost son recognized stunning similarities between the faces he spotted in the streets and marketplaces in Yerevan, and the faces of family and friends from his past.

"I'd see people from the past all over the place," he said. "The same kind of faces."

Although Armenia is the smallest of the 15 Soviet republics, 88 percent of its 2.1 million inhabitants are Armenian. Which makes it the largest Armenian community in the world. The second largest population, 700,000, lives in the United States.

Life in Yerevan, a city of 1.2 million, as described by Bob Mirak, apparently mirrors much of the lifestyle found in many Soviet cities. Consumer lines are long and goods are short on quality. Housing is functional yet Spartan. And the latest conveniences do not appear until well after they have appeared in many other places. But the subway system, its floors spotless, its platforms illuminated by chandeliers, runs on schedule. The streets are safe to walk at all hours. And a smattering of cinemas, theaters as well as a new sports stadium present a variety of things cultural.

Armenian culture is to be found everywhere.

"I heard many of the old Armenian songs and saw the dances," says Mirak. "They have a strong nationalist sense."

A nationalist sense is stimulated by the sight of statues depicting Armenian heroes and street signs bearing the names of other noteworthy Armenians.

Mirak even heard a policeman speaking Armenian.

With the apparent openness created by the regime of Soviet leader Gorbachev, Mirak believes that Armenia will begin to attract its share of visitors.

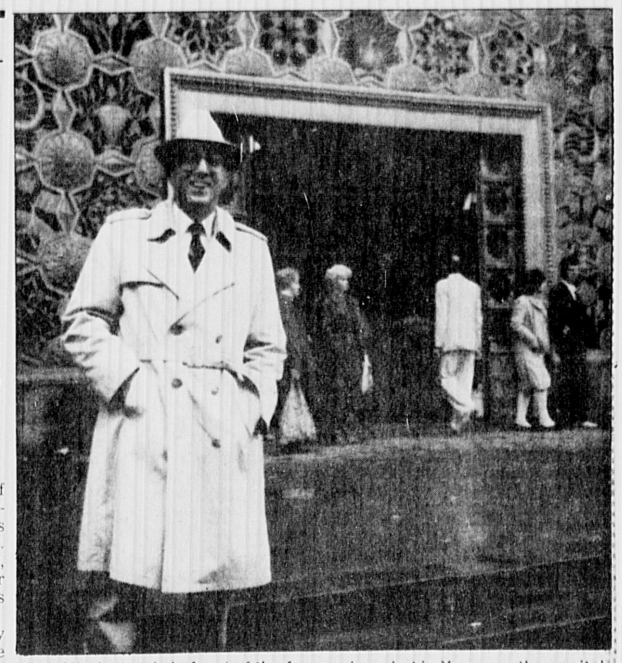

"I had a very memorable time, what with the passion and warmth by which I was received," explains Mirak. "And I would certainly like to go back."

Early Deadline

Deadline for the submission of material for publication will be moved back a day the week of Nov. 23 as a result of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Copy received by 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20, will be considered for publication in the following week's paper.

The normal 4 p.m. Monday deadline will be back in effect the following week.

CLUB NEWS

Local League participates in forum

The League of Women Voters of Winchester and local Leagues across the state are midway through a two-year study analyzing the status of basic human needs in Massachusetts.

The past year has been devoted to gathering data and developing a clear picture of the difficulties encountered in satisfying basic human needs such as housing, food, adequate income, and medical care. The second year will focus on alleviating these difficulties.

To inform of this issue, the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts is sponsoring a Public Policy Forum entitled "Challenging Approaches to Meeting Basic Human Needs." The forum will be Wednesday evening, Nov. 18, at Honeywell Bull (200 Smith Road, Waltham — near exit 28, Trapelo Road, on Rte. 128) from 7 to 9:15 p.m. An optional dinner will be available at the facility's cafeteria beforehand. Only those who preregister will be admitted. For information contact the League of Women Voters of Winchester at 729-5600, or the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts at 357-8380.

The featured speakers for the evening will be: U.S. Rep. Barney Frank; Charles Atkins, commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare; Joan Forrester Sprague, executive director of the Women's Institute for Housing and Economic Development; and Richard Taylor, president of Taylor Properties (currently involved in development of Roxbury, Dorchester and Cambridge).

Each of these speakers is involved in resolving problems associated with meeting basic human needs. Attention will be directed to non-welfare steps toward helping people to help themselves. The evening's discussions will not focus on the problems, but on efforts and solutions — positive and creative approaches proposed and in use.

In order to comply with Honeywell Bull's security policy, advance registration is essential. The fee for non-members is $15 with or without dinner, which may be applied toward membership.

The November meeting always features a speaker on the topic of Christmas decorations. Leslie Robinson will present her program, "An English Country Christmas," this year.

On the morning of the meeting, there will be a workshop at 10 a.m. Florence Gosselin, workshop chairman, will be making Christmas decorations for the Greens sale. 'Table Manners' captures a mood from the last century

By STEVE ROWLEY
Special to the Star

The Winchester Players last Friday opened their fall production of "Table Manners" by Alan Ayckbourn, directed by Michael Jacobs. The comedy is well-produced by the Players, providing a recommended evening's entertainment.

"Table Manners" is one of a trilogy of plays, along with "Round and Round the Garden" and "Living Together," all dealing with the same characters on the same weekend, but in different rooms of an English country home. The trilogy is called the "Norman Conquests," referring to the amorous predilections of the character Norman. Ayckbourn uses the comedic sarcasm of the British upper-middle class to explore the rooms in his characters' minds, and their peculiar attitude about love relationships and fidelity. The cast managed, with a few exceptions, to sustain their accents throughout the play, making for a realistic depiction of a weekend in an older English country home.

The characters of Reg and Annie could use some slight improvement in diction to make themselves more easily understood in the back of the house. We expect the cast will be able, in subsequent performances, to add more sparkle by picking up cues faster. These, however, are minor flaws in an otherwise good performance.

We first meet Annie, the single older woman, as performed "in full martyrdom" by Grace Butler. She's about to go off for a weekend affair with her sister's wild husband, Norman. She has invited her brother and his wife Sarah for the weekend to take care of the house and her ailing mother in her absence.

Sarah, as interpreted by Jeannette Fullerton, is a passive-aggressive and domineering sort, always seeking control. Annie, on the other hand, is more dependent. The opening scene, where Sarah discovers Annie's plans, is a conflict that is almost comic in its Yuppie vs. Bohemian ways.

Sarah's husband, Reg, performed by Kenneth Segal, is quite the opposite of his wife. Where she is shrill and manipulative, he is blunt and practical. Segal uses his physical size to good effect; we perceive him as a bearish but stabilizing influence. He has a number of excellent moments when he gets fed up with what he must perceive as "female scheming"; he's more interested in problems of the moment, such as repartee about food.

Norman, performed by Joseph Bowman, first appears — characteristically — in striped pajamas. He is an amiable, anarchistic satyr who has a way with neurotic women and is entirely innocent of any sense of responsibility whatsoever. We realize how bizarre he is when another says of him, "He's cheerful. That's ominous!" We gain some insight to Norman's feelings when he describes his inner nature vs. his weight as "like a gigilo trapped in a haystack." Norman and his current target, Annie, are polar opposites.

Norman's wife Ruth, played by Clare Keane, also gives us some crucial insights into Norman's character. She is rather selfish and defensive, sensitive to imagined slights, but generally unperceptive of others' feelings. In particular, we realize some of the source of Norman's wildness when she describes their relationship: "I don't own him; it's more like having him on loan, from a library. One day I shall get a postcard telling me he's overdue."

Norman, as potential philanderer, is more of a clown than a real threat. He may be incorrigible, but by the end of the play, one has a good deal of sympathy for him — as well as those who must put up with him.

The production continues Nov. 12 to 14, at 8:15 p.m., in the Unitarian Church. Admission is $6. Light refreshments are available before the curtain and during intermission.

Family business flourishes

Larry Curewitz's Homestead Shops Inc. is truly a family business. Started by Larry's father, it is now carried on by Larry, his two sons Stephen and Russ and his wife Barbara.

The business began in 1950 when Abraham Curewitz opened up a small shop upholstery on the second floor of a building on Main Street in Stoneham. In 1966 the business was moved to 20 River Street in Winchester. When the move to River street was made, the business expanded to include slip covers and draperies as well as upholstery. Now located at 70 Cross Street in Winchester the business has its own showroom.

Larry said that there was no room for expansion in the old place on River Street, so the family purchased two commercial condominiums up in Danvers, where the factory is now located. All the upholstery work is done in the factory. Separating the factory from the retail business has made expansion to a showroom.

The showroom contains sleep sofas and all types of living room furniture. Barbara Curewitz says that one of the convenient features of Homestead Inc. is that its shop-at-home service. Just call Homestead, Inc. and a designer will come with fabric samples.

Larry Curewitz spent two years at Northeastern University as an accounting major, and then left to serve in the Korean War. When he returned from Koream he chose to help his father in the family shop. He says he enjoyed the busines so much that he decided not to continue his studies.

He began as an upholsterer and a delivery person. Then he started showing people samples in his father's shop. When a full-time salesperson left, Larry filled that position. Abraham retired in 1974, and Larry took over the business. In 1984 Larry's oldest son Stephen became involved in the business. And in 1986 Larry's son Russ also became a part of Homestead.

Larry says that it has always been his ambition to have a showroom to compliment his upholstery business. At 70 Cross Street that ambition has been realized. Both Larry and Barbara Curewitz say there is a satisfaction in seeing the business grow to cover three generations.

Barbara says she is happy to see her sons showing enough interest in the business to become active participants. She believes that a family business runs smoother than other types of businesses.

The flame of love springs to life in the chiropractor's office

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

Many people adhere to the rule that interoffice dating is a faux pas. Too many complications, distractions, ..., the list goes on. But there are exceptions.

One of Winchester's newest professional partnerships has blossomed into one of its newest marriage partnerships. During a Halloween wedding ceremony, Dr. Crag Thayer and Dr. Andrea Cerulo Thayer instantly transformed the Thayer Chiropractic Center into a family business.

The storybook romance took place at the Church Street office. The tall, dark and handsome doctor set up his Winchester chiropractic practice in June 1986. February of 1987 brought an addition to Thayer's business that also created a significant change in his personal life — a welcome change in the form of an intelligent, attractive brunette.

Dr. Andrea Cerulo started working for her future husband as an assistant, running the front desk, keeping the books, and other clerical duties, while waiting to take the Massachusetts State Board examination in chiropractic medicine. The stage was set, characters ready, and the the storyline was left to Cupid.

"The longer we worked together the more our professional and personal relationships grew; they went right along together," he said. Finally, he recalled, they decided "maybe we could do both, work together and live together."

Warnings were abundant but caution was thrown to the wind.

"Everybody warned us 'You can not work with your wife' or 'you can not work with your husband' but I would not have it any other way," he continued.

Both partners have their own patients and their own consulting and adjustment rooms. But that is the extent of the separation.

"It works out great for us. It depends on personalities, we love being together, working together, and going home together," she said.

Similar interests in chiropractic sparked this romance but other common interests, desires and goals built the foundation for the newlyweds. Both are active in the Chamber of Commerce. He is on the Board of Directors and was chairman of the Haunted House. (Upon coming out of the church, the couple was greeted by a group of Haunted House escapees. The monsters just wanted to bestow their blessing on the special couple.) She is a member of the Winchester Businesswomen's Association and is soon to be part of the Garden Club.

"We were both looking for a small, close community individually, but found it together," said Dr. Andrea Thayer, a Needham native who received her bachelor of science in nursing at Georgetown University, then went on to Logan College of Chiropractic in Missouri. She is a licensed practioner in Missouri, Maryland, Illinois, and Massachusetts and worked in St. Louis before returning to her home state.

Dr. Craig Thayer, a licensed practioner in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, grew up in New Jersey but earned his bachelor of science at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst in exercise physiology and his doctor of chiropractic at Palmer College of Chiropractic in Iowa. He knew he wanted to come back to New England and a small town to set up his practice.

"We want to contribute something to the town we live in, both in our occupation and on a social scale," he said.

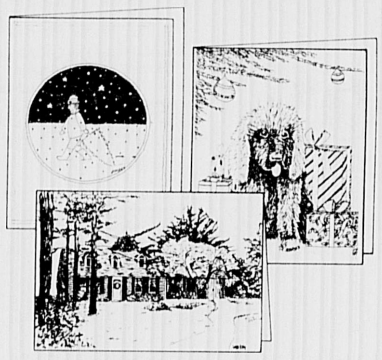

After a honeymoon in Vermont, the Thayers are back to work as a team in business, in the community and in marriage.

Dr. Craig Thayer and his assistant and new bride, Dr. Andrea E. Cerulo, now share the same residence as well as the same office.

Securing Your Jewelry

Your jewelry merits special attention. In order to continue to enjoy your jewelry to the fullest, give it special care.

The physical treatment jewelry receives may influence how well it retains its beauty. It is important that you store jewelry separately so that harder gems don't scratch softer ones. A jewelry box which is lined and which offers special compartments for gems helps you keep your gems protected and beautiful. It is also a great gift idea.

While it is true that diamond is very hard, it can be fractured by a hard knock. Remove your diamonds before gardening or dish washing. Since grease is attracted to diamonds, keeping them out of dish water will keep their appearance beautiful.

If your gems become soiled, bring them to us for advice on cleaning. Many gems may be cleaned at home in a mild solution of ammonia and water, but a few require special care, just as a fine silk dress does. Once they are cleaned your jewelry will look like new again, just in time for the holidays.

As the new year approaches it will be wise to think about security. In January, you might consider having your pearls restrung, your clasps checked, prongs retipped if necessary. And by all means, consider remounting gemstones from old, worn-out heirlooms into fashionable rings, necklaces and earrings. Sometimes a simple facelift is all a gem needs to give it renewed beauty and security.

When you consider all the pleasure you've had in wearing fine quality jewelry, it makes sense to do the little things that protect your pleasure.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

And now it's time to pay the piper

Lately there have been a number of newly-made wise men on the economic scene. Wise in the sense of "sadder but wiser."

All manner of pundits have emerged with analysis of the financial debacle that now engulfs us. Bears who rode the greatest increase in stock prices ever without making a penny have broken out in glee. Perennial bulls have taken their lumps, gulped and are now advising caution during this "correction." The Feldsteins are back with an "I told you so" column about the deficit.

By now we all have some inkling that the crash, retrenchment, correction, or whatever it is we are living through, is being caused by the reckless binge of high living the citizens of this country have been on since the inception of the Reagan administration.

Remember how Carter lost the election because he wasn't optimistic enough? We were tired of hearing about how bad we were, how unproductive, how lazy compared with the Asians. We voted for someone who could boost our spirits, give us a pep talk and get our morale back in shape.

Carter wasn't wrong, he just wasn't fun. We didn't like the way our lives were going, so we hit the ideological bottle. It felt good, but our fiscal and moral health, which wasn't so great in the late '70s anyway, deteriorated.

We were already losing ground in international trade at that time. Producer nations willing to take less in wages and profits were nibbling away at our markets even as Reagan took over the reins of government.

We also had lost a great deal of prestige in the world as the result of our backing of unpopular causes. People who whispered the name of our great nation in awe, who revered us as the champions of democracy, observed as we backed the Shah of Iran, Pinochet, Zia, a series of autocrats in South Korea, the colonels in Argentina, a number of repressive regimes in Latin America, and others, and they asked, "How could a nation that respects oppressed people, who fought their own war of liberation, contribute to the oppression of revolutionary movements around the world?"

Part of the answer is that the Soviets had stolen the ideological high ground as primary revolution backers, and by some definition that comes from Cold War days, anything they back, we must be against.

So things were none too great when Reagan took control, but we didn't want to hear about it, and he almost got out of office without having to answer for what he has done to our country since.

Any observer could have noted that during the Reagan years, the budget deficit equaled almost exactly the military budget. Casper Weinberger, who complacently mortgaged the nation for the next two centuries in pursuit of his own fantastic demons, built up death-dealing systems that he himself said were not supposed to be used.

In some psychotic delusion, the country's leadership could not come to terms with the idea that we already had way more than enough nuclear weaponry to wipe all life off the face of the earth. The Reaganites wanted more, and we all went along with it, our fear outweighing our common sense.

The cost of what is euphemistically known as "defense" was so high and the purported need so exigent that we were even ready to sacrifice the health of our older population and the education of our youth to buy more war toys.

The world looked on stunned as we morally and financially degraded ourselves.

The French have an expression, "bouffer la ferme," which means "to gobble up the farm." We have been gobbling up the farm and patting ourselves on the back, telling ourselves what clever fellows we are.

Now our bankers are at the gates asking for the title to the land.

Paul Volker, a man of great good sense, calls the recent tumble in stock prices a "warning." He is probably being cautious, since his word can throw markets into chaos. The truth is, there is no country so rich it cannot bankrupt itself. The $2 trillion national debt will have to be repaid somehow. There is no magic involved. Remember Argentina and Brazil and their huge external debt? We are there, my friends.

Austerity, headed by new taxes, fewers services, lower profits and wages, and probably inflation, is the bitter morning-after medicine we must now swallow.

Our corporations must sacrifice to regain, inch by inch, overseas markets lost to leaner competitors. A lower dollar won't do all the work, either. Executives will have to learn foreign languages, become aware of foreign cultures and pay respect to foreign values as, chastened, we grow out of the adolescent cocoon in which we have been living and take our place as a nation among nations.

And, God forbid, we may have to come to terms with the Soviets, who themselves would like to spend a little less on weapons and a little more on their people.

The time has come to pay the piper. The party's over, the euphoria gone with the new dawn. Whatever the stock market does in the next period, there is no way to avoid the economic realities of the late '80s. Self-indulgence will have to give way to circumspection.

Resident asks town to give Griffin a site

TO THE EDITOR:

I can't believe all the fol-de-rol regarding a site for the Arthur Griffin museum. Here we have a famous photographer willing to build and donate to the town of Winchester a museum that will add to the beauty and be in keeping with the new "quaint" design of the town, but will give delight to everybody from everywhere with the New England nostalgia within as depicted in Mr. Griffin's photography.

For years the town has been wringing its hands wondering how to bring business to the downtown area. Here is the solution: Arthur Griffin's museum.

Please, let's donate a beautiful site near town for this marvelous project and not let Mr. Griffin have to go elsewhere to build.

Winchester aids deprived children

TO THE EDITOR:

America Celebrates Children parties have been held all around the country recently to highlight the 40th anniversary of the U.S. Committee for U.N.I.C.E.F. None could have been a happier event than the one held in Winchester Oct. 25.

Thanks to the many people who made the International Desserts Buffet and "Glimpses of India" presentation a success.

Just imagine — everyone who contributed to that party not only had a good time but made it possible for some of the world's most deprived children to have better lives. As a result of our party, U.N.I.C.E.F. will be able to provide, for example, safe-water wells for five villages and stock 25 village ponds with protein-rich food and provide innoculations for 32 children as well as oral rehydration therapy for 1000 sick children.

Neighbor says abutters should get a shot at the Loop

TO THE EDITOR:

I recently attended a meeting at the Jenks Center on the re-zoning of some land that runs from Wendall Street to Hill Street: the Woburn Loop. It was a very informative meeting. I heard how the town manager of the Planning Board and the engineering department, "working" with the developers, arrived at what they thought was the best use of the land.

Might well be. But whose best use? The developers? I was told by letter, after I made an offer for land abutting me, that I would be contacted at a later date. I'm still waiting. Assuming that the best use is to the developers, why not dump Wendell Hill traffic down the west side of the Russo property and then out to Cross Street or Hill Street. Would it be that it would be too expensive for the developer?

It has been said that the Russo Group can build single and two-family houses now without any further ado. Why haven't they? Would it be that development cost would be too high for that kind of building? If so, is the town again giving undo consideration to the developers? Where they propose to enter the traffic now will be a real winner in the winter unless things change drastically over what they have been. No safety study by the police. Why not?

If Mr. Ferrari does not have enough land, then let him cut the size of his project and deal with the people on Main Street getting in and out. Then people on Russell Road and Mr. Lynch won't have to lose the land abutting them.

If the people on Main Street don't have enough land for their proposed addition, then let them make it smaller.

I'm very aware that we need more tax revenue in this town. I'm also aware that these people, "the developers," own this land of theirs and have been paying taxes on it and have a right to use it. But at what cost to whom? This is what bothers me. Nobody made any attempt to find out what the other abutters thought until the town and the parties involved had a plan all set and wanted to go to Town Meeting.

During the town's negotiations with the state it was implied several times that the abutters would have first choice. That seems to be forgotten very fast. I too am a taxpayer, land owner and citizen of this town and I feel that the town agencies gave a hell of a lot more consideration to people who don't even live in Winchester than to me.

I would suggest that the Town Meeting defeat this plan. Let them start all over with more input from the abutters.

It would appear that arrogance was superseded only by ignorance.

Forest Street resident takes exception

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with interest Eugene Rotondi Sr.'s article, "Assessments do not reflect properties' real values" in the Nov. 5 Winchester Star. He made reference to his property at 273 Forest St. at the Stoneham-Winchester line. I quote, "In 1986 this property was submitted to the town for the building of low and moderate income housing." Later on in the article he states, "Neighbors, incensed over the proposal for low and moderate housing, contacted assessors in regard to the valuation of said tract. The land was assessed at $31,500 in keeping with surrounding land areas. In the month of May before the Fiscal Year 1986 was over, assessors sent a registered letter to Foresdale Realty Trust stating that this area was increased in assessment to $324,000, an increase of $293,000. I believe this is the first time in the history of Winchester that such an unreasonable, hateful, revengeful action was taken, approved by Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Murphy." End of quotation from the Winchester Star of Nov. 5.

From the Woburn Times of May 16, 1985, under the headline "Forest St. parcel value increased" I quote "The Board of Assessors recently increased the assessment on a 4.5 acre parcel of land off Forest Street where the Rotondi family hopes to build a 70-unit apartment complex." Later in the article "We have a moral obligation," Mahoney said, "not to overassess any property. We had a unanimous vote to revalue the property." The article continues, "Mahoney said that since Sam Rotondi, who has acted as family spokeman on the development, said the price that the property would be transferred for was approximately $400,000. That set a new value on the property."

Comment: The town is supposed to assess the property on the basis of a sales value stated by the spokesman.

Catastrophic Health Care bill is a good first step in providing older Americans security

By SEN. JOHN KERRY
U.S. Senator from Massachusetts

The Catastrophic Health Care legislation which recently passed the Senate is an historic first step in eliminating the fear and the reality of financial disaster associated with catastrophic illness. We now have the unique opportunity finally to take decisive action to help eliminate one of the greatest fears of the people of Massachusetts and of all Americans: the inability to meet one's own or one's family's health-care needs without suffering severe financial consequences, including personal bankruptcy.

Despite the major contribution Medicare has already made to the health and well-being of the elderly and disabled, this program no longer assures protection against significant out-of-pocket costs for doctor and hospital bills resulting from a catastrophic illness such as cancer or heart disease, to name only two. Under the current system, senior citizens and others faced with the cost of an extended illness, must often exhaust their financial resources to pay for health care.

I am constantly hearing stories from constituents across Massachusetts about an elderly friend or relative who has had to spend his or her entire life savings in order to afford adequate nursing home and health care. Recently, a constituent from Acton told me that her 97-year-old aunt had no savings left after spending $80,000 for nursing home care. Anecdotes such as these are not acceptable. While senior citizens account for 12 percent of the population, they incur one-third of the country's total health-care expenditures. Four million of these seniors live below the poverty level. This year catastrophic illness will bankrupt approximately 1 million Americans, 750,000 of whom are elderly.

Clearly, the situation is intolerable. This new legislation cannot come soon enough for the people of Massachusetts.

The Catastrophic Health bill places a cap on personal expenditures by the elderly for health-care services covered by Medicare, including hospitalization, doctor's services, and other patient expenses currently covered by Medicare. In addition, the bill eliminates coinsurance requirements for inpatient hospital services, and expands existing Medicare benefits for home health care, hospice care and home nursing facilities.

I am particularly pleased that the bill includes a prescription drug benefit. Drug costs remain the highest out-of-pocket health costs for senior citizens. People over 65 purchase more than one-third of the prescription drugs sold in the U.S. Almost five million Medicare beneficiaries spend more than $400 each year on this type of medication. The cost is staggering, and we can no longer have our citizens choosing between buying prescription drugs and paying for day-to-day necessities.

For all of these reasons, this legislation marks an important beginning in providing health care for Massachusetts citizens. There is still, however, a long way to go before a truly comprehensive health care system is in place.

The issue of long-term care must be addressed. Although 80 percent of catastrophic health care costs are associated with long-term care, strict limits still exist on Medicare coverage for this care. And while this legislation touches on home health-care needs and spousal impoverishment, we have yet to scratch the surface on a comprehensive policy to deal with long-term health-care needs.

Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida has an amendment to establish a bipartisan national commission on comprehensive health care to address the issue of long-term care. I look forward to the recommendations of this committee and to working with my colleagues to make catastrophic coverage truly comprehensive.

All of us in Massachusetts should feel comforted by the legislation that has passed the Senate on Catastrophic Health Care. We have taken a giant first step towards eliminating the fear and panic of anyone faced with a major illness and thus have improved the quality of life for all Americans.

ABC fund raiser called a success

TO THE EDITOR:

Winchester's A Better Chance program wishes to thank everyone who contributed to the success of our annual fall fund raiser this past week. The dance floor was filled with Winchester residents the entire evening.

The Knights of Columbus Hall was transformed to fit the "Back to the Beach" theme, with beach balls, a bright sun, sea creatures and swaying palms. The help of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, Purity Supreme and Bob Penna with the decorations and supplies is appreciated.

Many individuals and businesses donated generously to the silent auction held during the event. For sports enthusiasts, there were Celtics and Bruins tickets, as well as a gift certificate from Mixed Doubles. U.S. Travel World sponsored two American Airline tickets. Edible delights were donated by the Appleton Inn, David Fine Foods, Domino's Pizza, Maximilian's, Ristorante Lucia, Le Bellecour/Rembrandt's, Sweet Deliverance, Four Seasons, and the Orient Express on Martha's Vineyard.

Boutique items were given by Book Ends, the Blackhorse Bootery, Calista's, Insignia, Topsy Turvy, T. Michael's, and Town Line Video.

Michael and Judy Manzo, John and Patti Oakes, David and Karin Brown, Frans and Mita van Berkhout, and Ken and Linda Vacovec offered weekend getaways at their vacation homes.

The fundraiser committee appreciates the spirited support we received from the community. The ABC program is important to all of us.

Century Newspapers joins N. E. News Exchange

The five Century Newspapers are among 14 additional newspapers, all published by Harte-Hanks Communications, that have joined the New England News Exchange.

The Century papers include the Arlington Advocate, Belmont Citizen, Belmont Herald, Watertown Sun and Winchester Star.

Also included in this group are two dailies, The News Tribune of Waltham and The Transcript of Dedham, as well as seven other weeklies. They join another Harte-Hanks publication, The Middlesex News, which has been a member of the Exchange since its inception in 1983.

The New England News Exchange is a cooperative news gathering and information exchange network composed of newspapers, television stations and radio stations located throughout the six New England states. Headquartered at WNEV-TV, Channel 7, the CBS affiliate, the News Exchange also features Channel 7 news bureaus at The Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, The Worcester Telegram & Gazette, The Patriot Ledger in Quincy, and The Middlesex News in Framingham, all founding members of the Exchange.

President and General Manager Sy Yanoff of WNEV-TV and Publisher James Hopson of The Middlesex News this week jointly announced the expansion of the New England News Exchange.

"Ever since it was first conceived, the New England News Exchange has stressed the importance of local coverage, and the addition of 14 new members circulating throughout 41 west suburban communities strengthens this commitment," said Yanoff. "With regular contact between our newsroom and the editors of these suburban newspapers, we'll be able to offer more comprehensive TV coverage of important local stories now reported in depth by these newspapers."

In addition to The Middlesex News (daily-47,808 cir.), the new members of of the Exchange include two daily papers, The Transcript daily-12,300 circulation), serving Dedham and surrounding towns, and The News Tribune (daily-13,200 cir.) serving Waltham, Newton and Watertown.

Also part of the expansion are four weeklies in the News Transcript Group, The Parkway Transcript in Hyde Park, The West Roxbury Transcript, The Needham Chronicle and The Newton Graphic (total circulation 40,000); three papers in the Town Crier Publications Group, The Wellesley Townsman, the Wayland-Weston Town Crier, and the Sudbury Town Crier & Fence Viewer (total circulation 18,000); and ther five papers in the Century Newspapers group.

Editors from each of these publications will be in regular contact with the newsroom at WNEV-TV, which acts as coordinator for the News Exchange. "While actual television production facilities at these suburban papers aren't planned, our reporters and editors will be in contact with the papers on a regular basis, and when warranted, our live microwave vans can often be on the scene of a story as it is breaking," said Jeff Rosser, vice president of News at WNEV-TV. "This will greatly enhance our local coverage, especially during our early news program, 'Live at 5.'"

Give thanks for resilience

By TERRY MAROTTA

All was quiet here last Sunday morning. The light was an hour old. Some still slept; others lay sprawled across a bed, watching cartoons; others still were down in the dining room, blinking awake over coffee.

The house was full, every corner and spare bed taken. A relative, a kind of aunt, had come with her grown son from out of town, a dash of cousins had been added to the mix, and the whole gang was just coming to, when the aunt slipped and fell down the stairs.

This shouldn't have been so bad by itself, but the stairs are bony and uncarpeted; they crack like rifle-shot in the cold dark midnights; and the aunt is 77, though one of the younger sort of senior citizen who doesn't in the least fit the term elderly.

Recalling it later, we all heard her slow careful step as she paused at the landing between the floors; as she started down, her overnight bag in her hand. Then there was a swooshing sound, a split-second's delay, and the hair-raising heavy crash that went on and on, somehow, and ended in a pool of silence, and a scarcely audible moan.

When we reached her, she was bleeding badly. Blood pooled red beneath her shoulders; blood lay splattered in a grisly Rorschach on the wall. Her son cradled her head in his arms as we waited for the ambulance. "Mother. Oh Mother," he kept whispering into her hair.

She had severed a temporal artery, it turned out. With any sort of delay, she might have lost her life. But the EMTs knew their business and the doctor knew his. He's a friend of ours, as it happens, and a friend too of our out-of-town cousin, and he met us at the Emergency Room door. As luck would have it, he's also a surgeon.

Because we were friends, because, I suppose too of the therapeutic value of having us there, he let my cousin and me watch the stitching — after the immediate danger had passed and the artery was repaired. For two-and-a-half hours we watched him labor to close what could only be called a dark wet window in the skull, and a terrible tattering of the delicate ear. We winced through most of the proceedings, but he brought to the room an air of cheer and competence and health. "You know you should have made two trips on account of that overnight bag," he even joked: "brought yourself down first and gone back after for the bag."

Sixty stitches later, she was mended. She'd lost over two pints of blood. This morning, three days after the event, she went home with her son and the incident was behind us.

In a homely urban parking lot I visit several times in the course of my week a tree grows, an old elm, old as the Republic, it may be. It has pushed its belly against the steely teeth of a chain-link fence meant to keep it and others like it out of this province of asphalt. But the tree, over time, has burst the metal, crinkled it like tinfoil, bent it back and out of the way like so much spaghetti.

Driving here at the end of this weekend when we all learned afresh how thin is the membrane upon which we skate in our days of blessed normality, and how black and roiled are the waters beneath, I saw this tree as a token of life's resilience, a token of the urge of all things, whether pulsating with blood or chlorophyll, to live, to yearn toward the sun, to breathe through lung or leaf the sweet and nourishing air.

I thank God this morning for the life-force that heals us and holds us upright in the light. For sons cradling mothers and mothers cradling sons. For the menders like our friend who go about the precise and delicate work of stitching up that membrane that spans the abyss.

It's a gift every morning, this life we hold in our hands and partake of all-unheeding. How can we ever forget that?

REAL ESTATE TODAY

FINANCING IS WHAT COUNTS
When you're selling a home, it's not the price that counts as much as the buyer's ability to pay. You can have the best house on the block for sale at a give-away price, but it will never sell to the prospect who loves it but cannot afford it—or thinks he can't afford it.
An experienced Realtor, on the other hand, can be expected to discuss personal matters such as financing with prospects. Prospects will tell the Realtor freely what they would hold back from you. During such frank exchange, the Realtor has the ability and experience to suggest ways to make buying your home possible for such discouraged clients. At our office, we've saved many sales that both Buyer and Seller thought were impossible.
A Realtor can suggest the advantages and drawbacks of 15 as opposed to 30-year mortgages; refer prospects to the bank that's most likely to lend buyers in their situation; and suggest ways of financing that weren't available a few years ago. It pays to sell through a Realtor.

Registry helps seniors evaluate driving skills

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Inspector John Grano of the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, whose responsibilities concern driver information and the education of motorists, spoke at Jenks Senior Center Nov. 4 on "Safe Driving for the Oncoming Winter Months." He stated that one of the most sensitive issues pertains to the driving skills of the elderly. Driving demands alertness of the mind, the senses, and the muscles. When should one recognize the need to stop driving?

There are ¾ of a million licensed drivers in the state with a large number of older drivers who learned how to operate a car during their first 40 years. Physical changes effect driving ability as a part of the normal aging process. A gradual loss of visual acuity, a lessening of peripheral vision, diminished hearing and slower reaction time when instantaneous decisions have to be made while driving cause accidents.

The brain has to register what action is necessary to avoid an accident, the eyes have to see clearly what is happening on all sides and the muscles have to react with instant precision. About 98 percent of sensory input comes through the eyes.

Depth perception is a vital factor in determining how close one is to another car in front, on either side and at the rear. The sight test given at the registry when the license is renewed is geared to 20/40 vision, which allows for reading of large highway signs.

A self-scoring test was administered to the audience providing a self-evaluation checklist. It included signaling to change lanes, wearing seat belts, staying informed about changes in driving and highway regulations, behavior at intersections, joining traffic on interstate highways, wandering thoughts while driving, frequency of eye tests, effects of medication on alertness, number of traffic tickets and warnings in the past two years, and the number of accidents in the same period of time.

While the majority of accidents are fender benders, there is too much tragedy on the highways with a growing number of near misses. So some of these are caused by people who cannot handle night driving without reacting to the problems of glaring headlights on the darker secondary roads. Obstructing traffic by driving too slowly, the difficulties encountered during inclement weather and slow reaction time are causes for accidents.

No matter how efficient a driver has been through the years, there comes a time whens it is necessary to give up. Seniors should assess personal, physical and mental conditions. When family members or friends express concern, the individual should listen and conduct a self-evaluation. This will help prevent accidents. Maybe it is time to stop driving.

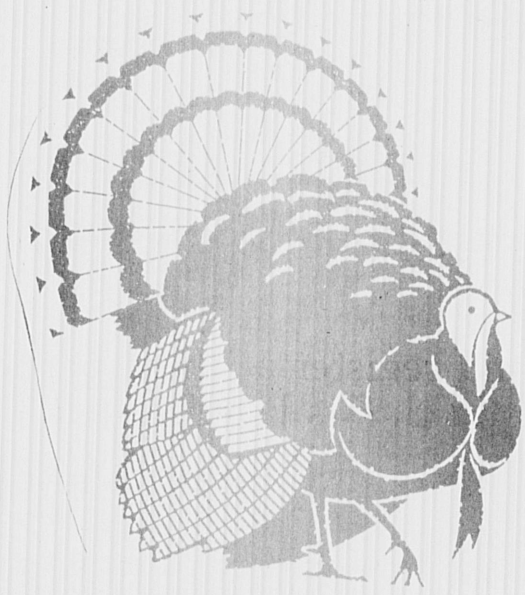

Rug hookers needed for the class

The instructor for the Rug Hooking Class at the Jenks Senior Center, Doris Reid, has asked for more members to join the group that meets two times a month on Tuesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:40 a.m. The next class is on Nov. 24.

Jenks Center Building Fund gets help and needs more

In spite of recent participation in the Building Expansion Fund at Jenks Senior Center by Ann M. and Ernest Benshimoi Jr., Raymond J. Gosselyn and Alexander and Dorothea MacKenzie a substantial shortfall exists in the program. People wishing to help out may make donations to the Jenks Senior Center for the Building Expansion Fund.

All contributions will be most gratefully received.

Drivers needed for Council on Aging transportation program

When a person has to stop driving for one reason or another, the loss of the privilege is a great handicap to everyday living. The Jenks Senior Center Council on Aging has provided a voluntary transportation service for the past 10 years that has proven to be of great benefit to many seniors.

In order to carry on the program at peak efficiency, it is requisite to have a large number of available volunteers to handle the requests of those who need to visit doctors, dentists, banks, supermarkets, hairdressers, etc., within the community and in contiguous towns.

Both men and women drivers of all ages provide this important service. An urgent appeal is issued to enlist more volunteers for the upcoming season. Service can be scheduled once a week, bi-weekly, monthly, or in accordance with time allowed from personal programs.

Call the Jenks Senior Center at 721-7136 and leave word for Kim Archibald and Mary Peterson, Co-chairpersons of the Transportation Committee, if it is possible to give assistance in the operation of the program.

Share-A-Meal

The Church Women United conduct a Share-A-Meal program each year to add Thanksgiving and Christmas cheer to the isolated homebound who will be alone on these family days.

Any Winchester people who are willing to prepare a tray from the bounty of their own holiday meals will be greatly appreciated. Delivering the tray and spending a few minutes in visiting those who are lonely will be a generous way to assist the committee of the Church Women United.

Call either Hilde Zerwekh or Peggy Keefe if you can give this important service on either of the approaching holidays, or notify the Jenks Senior Center at 721-7136 in order that arrangements can be made.

People who would enjoy a tray are asked to leave their name and address with the Tenks Center receptionist.

Meals without salt or butter

The food served at the Eating Together program at the Jenks Senior Center on Wednesday and Friday noontimes contains no salt or butter. A pat is served on the side for those who desire it. The menu listing for November meals is as follows: Friday, Nov. 13, turkey chow mein, rice, juice, cranberry bread and fresh fruit. Wednesday, Nov. 18: knockwurst, baked beans, parsley diced carrots, rye roll and fresh fruit. Friday, Nov. 20: manicotti/sauce, Italian blend vegetable, Scali bread and a cookie. Wednesday, Nov. 25: chicken parmesian/sauce, shells, honey cracked wheat and prune whip. Friday, Nov. 27: omelette/cheese sauce, O'Brien potato, mixed vegetables, oatmeal bread and fresh fruit.

Turkey Trot dance

The Saturday night Turkey Trot holiday dance at the Jenks Senior Center will be on Nov. 14 in the new auditorium from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Both ballroom and line dancing are offered by Dick Brogna and his band to meet the interests of all who attend. Light refreshments are available.

Upcoming day trips

Only 15 people have signed up to take the trip to the Pleasant Hill Mall in Nashua, N.H., Nov. 18.

Because of the high cost of the bus, it will be necessary to cancel the trip unless more people indicate an interest in shopping at the mall and enjoying lunching at the Turkey Farm. Irma Ganchi is making arrangements for the excursion.

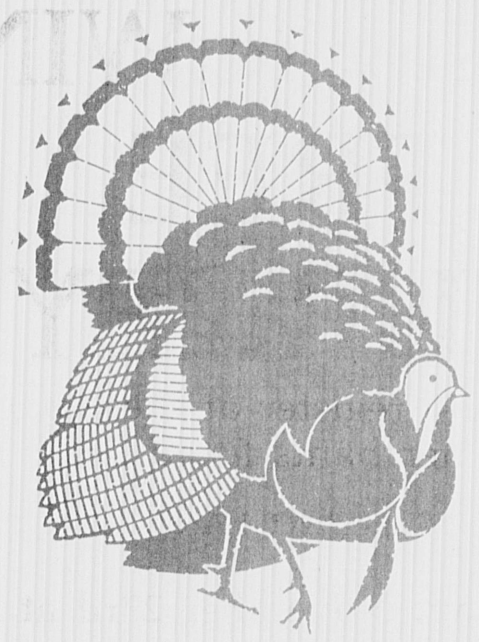

Call the Jenks Center immediately if more reservations for the trip are to be made.

Gateway Travel and the Winchester Seniors Association Recreation Committee have planned a trip to the Danversport Yacht Club for lunch and the enjoyment of a big-name band Sunday, Dec. 6.

There is limited space so reserve immediately. Leave Jenks Senior Center at 11 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. Helen Murphy is in charge of arrangements.

The annual trip to the Wayside Inn in Sudbury will take place Thursday, Dec. 10

The bus leaves Jenks Senior Center at 10:30 a.m. and returns at 4 p.m. The meal consists of pot roast and a full complement of goodies. Mary DeCourcy is in charge of arrangements. Early registrations are requested.

SCHOOL NEWS

Lincoln kids visit town businesses

Children of the Lincoln School Kindergarten recently completed their Around Our Town unit. They learned about the public and commercial services that downtown Winchester offers.

The children spent a Friday morning visiting the new fire and police stations, examining equipment, chatting with new police and firemen friends.

The following week the children walked around an entire block of downtown Winchester. They visited seven business establishments, noting the varied display windows and interior decors. They were greeted by gracious personnel who shared tidbits of information about their businesses.

Upon return to the classroom, the children constructed their own block of a downtown Ghost Town. Each child's shop window displayed items to tempt the buyer. Each shop door hid a ghost proprietor to terrify the buyer.

Select Ensemble to perform at science museum

The Winchester Junior High School Select Ensemble will perform at the Boston Museum of Science on Thursday, Dec. 10, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The museum is sponsoring a series of holiday season events called "Let's Celebrate." The series begins Dec. 4 and runs throughout the month. Opening day events include a tree-lighting ceremony, performances by the Children's Ballet Workshop, the Epic Brass Quintet, bagpipers, and the Singing Toy Soldiers, folkdancing from Israel, South America, Scotland, Norway and Lithuania. Other scheldued happenings during the month include puppet shows, storytelling, exhibits of dolls, games, and quilts.

The workshop leader will be Stephen Rose a well-established Cape Verdean artist and a creative story teller, a teacher trainer and a community organizer. He has worked for 10 years in the field of multicultural education.

Call 721-7006 for more information.

She now serves on the Teaming Task Force at McCall and the Faculty Council of McCall. Holmes was a recipient of a Horace Mann Grant to develop a writing curriculum unit in 1987.

Tickets will be sold before each round for a chance to win cider, vegetable baskets, bottles of wine and boxes of cookies. There are more than 250 chances to win. Refreshments will be served during the event.

Tickets may be purchased ahead of time by calling 729-0055 or on the night of the "shoot."

Emergency health care card saves valuable time

Winchester Hospital is offering an Emergency Health Care Card Program to benefit residents of the communities in its health care service area.

"Trauma victims can arrive in our Emergency Room unconscious or confused. Since it may not be possible to effectively communicate with them, we have no way of knowing their medical history, whom to contact, and other vital information we need to administer correct treatment. Precious time can be spent searching for information when it could be spent treating the patient," said Eugene E. Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital.

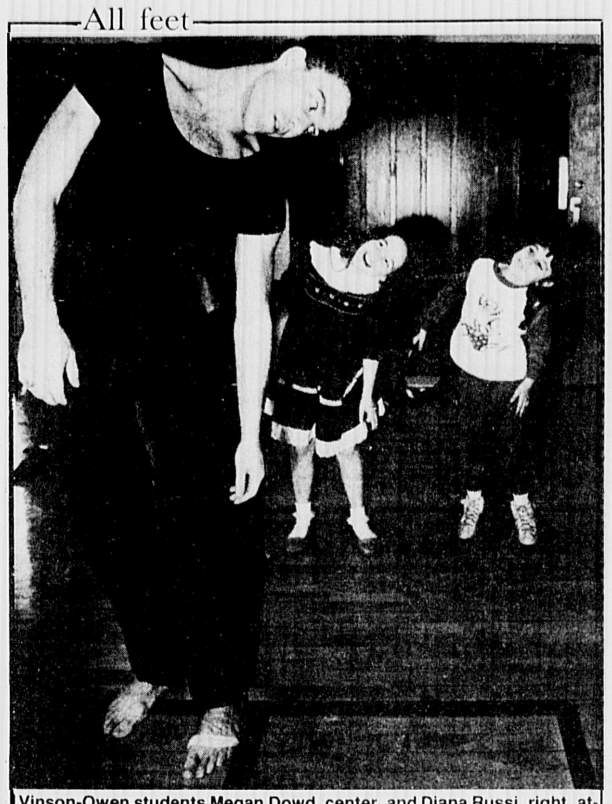

The Winchester Hospital Emergency Health Card enables a person to carry a complete set of Medical records at all times. The microfilm chip in it contains a signed consent form authorizing emergency medical treatment, names of people to notify in an emergency, a personal physician's name and address, medication and dosages, blood type, insurance data, optional organ donor and living will information, immunization records, and other health information.

One aspect of the emergency care card will be of special interest to cardiac patients. Space is available on the card for a microfilm of an electrocardiogram (EKG). Patients with a history of cardiac-related difficulty can be assured that emergency personnel will know their cardiac history wherever they may be without undue delay.

The card is designed to be carried next to a person's driver's license, where emergency personnel look first. If an emergency room visit should become necessary, the card can be inserted into the microfiche reader in the Emergency Department and the information can be read directly from the screen.

Each Winchester Hospital Emergency Department Health Care Card, a laminated card about the size of a driver's license, costs $4.95, plus 45 cents postage and handling. The EKG microfilm option costs an additional $1. For further information and applications, call 729-9000, ext. 3115, or visit the hospital information and registration areas.

All feet

Vinson-Owen students Megan Dowd, center, and Diana Russi, right, attempt to follow the example of Kevin Kortan of Concert Dance Company. The company brought its show, "All Feet Can Dance," to Winchester last week.

Kids experience dinosaurs, pizzas

The Nov. 2 sellout performance of "Dinosaur Rock" climaxed a busy fall of activities for the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School.

Giant dinosaurs danced down the aisles of McCall Junior High, giving "high fives" to the hundreds of preschool and grade-school children in the audience. The dinosaurs came to life on stage as puppeteer Ingrid Crepeau crawled inside the 15-foot puppets or mounted characters like "Beulah, the flying pteranadon" on her shoulders and "flew" down the aisles.

Last month, the 4-and 5-year-olds in the school got a chance to see native wildlife up close when Harriet Rossen of the Blue Hills Trailside Museum brought her owl, skunk and turtle "friends" to the school. Sitting around a small plastic pool, students were permitted to hold two types of turtles, boxed and painted, like the kind they might find in their own backyard.

The 3-year-olds will also have a chance to learn more about animals this month when Marilyn Hayes from the MSPCA comes with stories, puppets and a flannel board presentation on pets and caring for pets.

Earlier this month, 3-year-olds in the school learned the finer points of pizza making as they helped "Moose" Bellino of Bellino's Restaurant "bang out" the pizza dough, twirl it high in the air and spread the sauce and cheese. Later, the pre-schoolers also served as official pizza tasters.

Shin, Urano get cancer society support

Two residents of Winchester, Hee-Sup Shin, Ph.D., and Muneyasu Urano, M.D., recently received American Cancer Society funding for their laboratory work in genetics and radiobiology at local research centers.

The grants are part of an $81 million investment in nationwide research by the American Cancer Society this year.

Shin, who lives on Tremont Street, received a two-year, $180,000 research grant to support his work at the Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research in Cambridge. He is also an assistant professor of biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Shin is investigating the ways genes control growth and development. He is focusing on a group of embryonic genes where abnormal genes are often found. An embryo that contains the abnormal genes will fail to develop or survive. Shin posits that these abnormal genes are similar to those that lead to cancerous growth. Funding for the project began Jan. 1 of this year.

Urano, who lives on Laurel Hill Lane, was awarded a $107,023 grant to support his research over two years beginning Jan. 1 also. He is an associate radiation biologist at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Urano is investigating how radiation treatments alter a malignant cell's sensitivity to heat and radiation. His goal is to understand why cancerous tumors that were previously treated by hyperthermia — high levels of heat — recur after radiation therapy.

The research program of the American Cancer Society provides support for both established scientists and those starting their own independent research. Research professorships, training fellowships, and project grants are all offered. Institutional research grants to universities, hospitals, and research centers support pilot studies and the work of young investigators.

More information about American Cancer Society programs of research, education and service to patients is available by requesting a copy of the society's Massachusetts division annual report from the division's headquarters at 1-800-952-7664.

This small, highly selective vocal group performs several times each semester in the area and takes trips for concerts in New York, Washington, D.C. and Alabama.

Dooley to discuss tax reform impact

Certified Public Accountant Stephen R. Dooley of Country Lane will at the Boston Estate Planning Council's Third Annual Estate Planning Day Saturday, Nov. 14, at Northeastern University's Alumni Auditorium from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Dooley will discuss the impact of the 1986 Tax Reform Act on investment and saving strategies, as well as social security options at retirement. He is a member of the Boston and Massachusetts Bar Associations and the co-author of "Personal Financial Planning." Dooley has been a tax partner with Mullen and Co. since 1982.

Dooley is the father of three children and a director at the Cambridge Family YMCA.

Pappas helps Belmont school celebrate 60 years

Winchesterite Denise Pappas was the chairman of the Belmont Day School's 60th Anniversary Committee.

The school celebrated the anniversary Oct. 17 on the grounds of the school. Students and their families, past students and friends were invited.

Correction

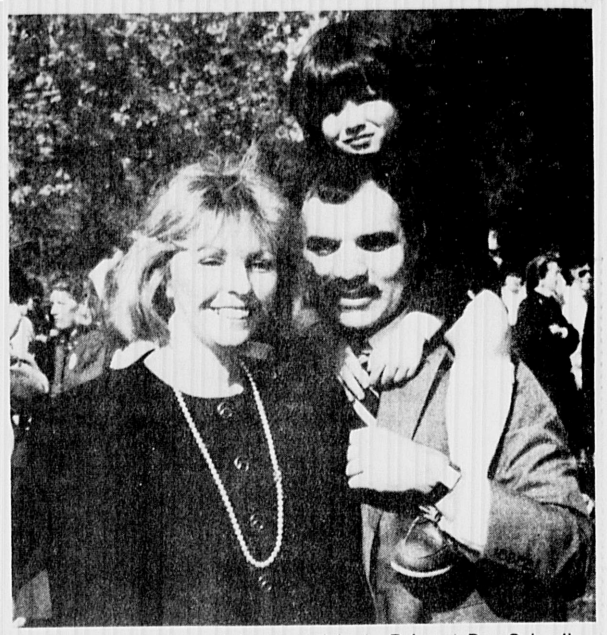

Last week in the Halloween photo spread we incorrectly identified a Muraco student dressed as Dracula as Daniel Alford. He was really Rory Hawkes of Sawmill Brook Road.

Three to perform with Masterworks

Winchester residents Richard Pharo, Constance Rosenberger and Terry Seferian will be among those participating in the opening of the 48th concert season of the Masterworks Chorale and Orchestra Sunday, Nov. 22, at 4 p.m. in Sanders Theatre in Cambridge.

Allen Lannom will conduct Bach's Christmas Oratorio. Featured artists include soprano Lisa Wolff, alto Melissa Thorburn, tenor Stanley Warren and bass Peter Allen.

Tickets are priced at $15, $11 and $7. Garage parking is available at no extra charge. Tickets may be ordered by calling 924-8073 (round the clock). All major credit cards are accepted.

Denise, Dean and Justin Pappas celebrate Belmont Day School's 60th Anniversary.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

DRY OUT THAT BASEMENT!

If you're a typical househunter, you're likely to eliminate a prospective home, even one you really like, if the basement has water stains on the walls or floors and smells like mildew. Before you do, however, you might want to get an expert's opinion to determine if the water problems can be solved.

Often, a basement can be dried out fairly easily. Maybe a new set of gutters, repairs to a plugged up outdoor drain, or simple regarding of soil around the foundation will solve the problem. A professional home inspector can give you an idea of the cause of the damp basement. He might also give you some idea of how much you will have to pay to waterproof. If the house is priced at top dollar, you might consider negotiating with the sellers, asking them to share in repair costs, especially if your alternative is to make no offer at all. If, on the other hand, the house is a "fixer upper" and priced accordingly, you could get an excellent value that more timid buyers passed up.

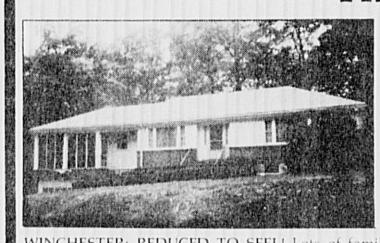

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling a home, talk to the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Come by our offices at 33 Thompson Street.

First Congregational celebrates Heritage Sunday

The First Congregational Church will celebrate Heritage Sunday Nov. 22 by honoring those persons who have gone into lay and ordained ministry from the church in recent years.

Valerie Russell, a former Winchester resident and prominent lay minister, who is presently the president of the City Mission Society of Boston, will preach at 10 a.m.

Members of the community are invited to attend the service as well as join the congregation at a reception at 5 p.m. in the Palmer and Tucker rooms.

Among those returning to Winchester will be: Carol A. Brink, pastor of the Origional Congregational Church in Wrentham, David W. Emmons of North Eastham, Lorain R. Heindel Giles, pastor of the First Congregational Church in Hadley, Stephen C. Greene of Orleans, and Richard Fernandez of the Northwest Interfaith Movement in Philadelphia, Pa.

This will be an opportunity for Forum alumni to get reacquainted. At 7:30 p.m. an Interfaith Hunger Service, sponsored and conducted by the youth church groups in Winchester, will be held in the Sanctuary. All are welcome to attend.

Residents may dispose hazardous wastes on Nov. 14

Marjorie Moore from the Winchester League of Women Voters, and Joe Tabbi, director of the Winchester Board of Health, met recently with Bill Linane, representative from Clean Harbors of Natick to finalize plans for the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day to be held on Saturday, Nov. 14 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Department of Public Works garage on Lake Street.

During questioning by League Public Relations Specialist Jeanette Baird, it was noted that flyers are ready for distribution through take-home by elementary school students, in grocery bags at Purity Supreme supermarket. Copies will also be available at the Jenks Senior Center and the public library.

Volunteers from the League will screen vehicles for proof of residency at the gate and hand out questionaires to be filled out by participants. Clean Harbors requests that people remain in their autos until experts check the contents of car trunks to make sure that everything is acceptable.

Tabbi notes again that batteries are acceptable, but asbestos is not.

Following is a list, repeated once, again, of household hazardous wastes that are collectable: drain cleaners, oven cleaners, furniture polish, metal polish, arts and crafts supplies, photo chemicals, floor cleaners, window cleaners, dry cleaning fluids, radiator cleaners, brake fluid, wax polish, engine and radiator flushes, transmission fluid, used motor oil, automobile batteries, rust preservatives, wood preservatives, wood strippers, oil-based paint, paint thinner, solvents, degreasers, sealants, pesticides, herbicides, insect sprays, rodent killers, pool chemicals, muriatic acid and no-pest strips.

Women's group holds dinner meeting

The Winchester Professional and Business Women's Group will hold a dinner meeting at Maximilian's Nov. 19 at 6 p.m.

The speaker will be Diane Bellavance, who will discuss how to handle the functions of advertising and public relations in business.

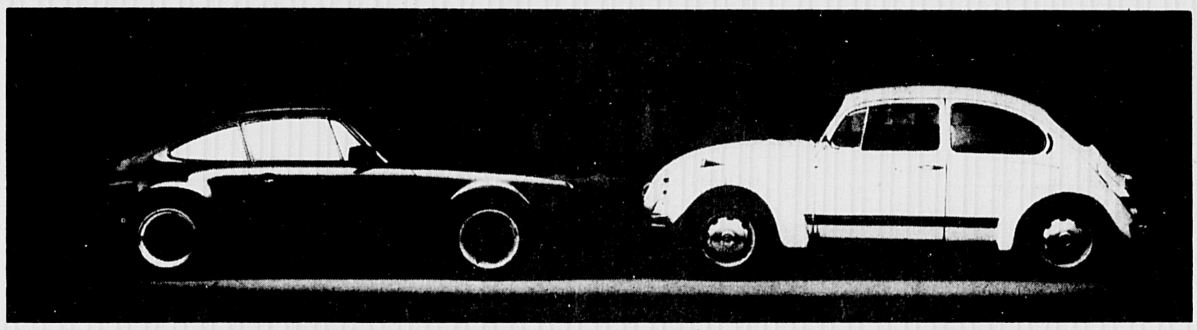

Bellevance owns her own public relations firm and has consulted with many small businesses in the Boston area. She has written a book entitled "Advertising and Public Relations for a Small Business," which is now in its fourth edition.

Members may invite friends and colleagues.

The menu will include spinach lasagna, grilled haddock or chicken Maximilian and a choice of desserts: ice cream with hot fudge or fresh fruit.

The cost is $20 for members and $25 for non-members.

Those who will attend are asked to send payment and choice of dinner and dessert by Nov. 16.

IF THEY WERE THE SAME PRICE, WHICH WOULD YOU BUY?

Now ask yourself the same question about double hung windows. But before you answer, consider the differences between a Marvin E-Z Tilt Double Hung window and an Andersen® double hung window.

A Marvin double hung window has sash that tilt into the room for easy cleaning and maintenance. Andersen doesn't.

A Marvin double hung has a lower air infiltration rating than Andersen's published test results.*

Marvin has a wood double hung window available in 98 standard sizes. Andersen doesn't have one.

A Marvin clad double hung is also available in 98 standard sizes. An Andersen clad double hung is available in 36 standard sizes.

A Marvin clad window has an aluminum clad sash and frame for a maintenance-free exterior, and an all-wood interior that accepts a beautiful finish. Only Andersen's frames are clad, in vinyl. The sash is prefinished. A wood interior is available only when ordered with a white exterior finish.

A Marvin window can be ordered with authentic divided lites for a true Early American look. An Andersen window can't.

A Marvin window can be ordered with real wood grilles. An Andersen window has molded vinyl grilles only.

A Marvin window is available with jamb extensions already installed by a factory expert. An Andersen window isn't, which can lead to expensive adjustments on the job site.

The comparisons could go on, but we think you get the point.

NOW, MARVIN QUALITY AT AN ANDERSEN PRICE.

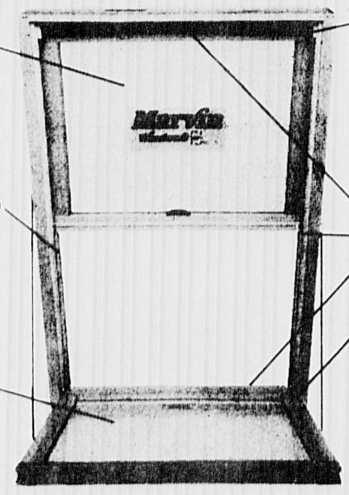

The simple law of economics would suggest a premium product can command a premium price. And Marvin Windows have.

But now Marvin has lowered that price. Lowered the price it costs to put the best wood double hung in your plans. The kind of window that not only sells customers, but sells homes.

We can't guarantee this price reduction will last forever, but why wait around to find out? See your Marvin dealer before you place your next window order.

Who knows? With the way Marvin windows sell homes, you may not care how much the car on the left costs.

For more information, call toll-free 1-800-346-5128. (In Minnesota, call 1-800-552-1167.) Or write, Marvin Windows, Warroad, MN 56763.

Girls win first game

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls varsity soccer team put together an excellent all around team effort Sunday evening to overpower Lynn English, 3-1, in first round MIAA Division 1 North tournament action at the Manning Bowl in Lynn. Earlier in the week, the Sachemettes secured a share of their 10th consecutive Middlesex League title with an easy 4-0 victory over Woburn.

The pressure was on the Winchester defense during the opening minutes of the game. Playing without injured starters Kelly Meehan and Sandra Bennett, the Sachemettes got great performances from Cara McDonough and Deborah Skahan and even better ones from Laura Rutherford and Jenna Maconochie as they held off an early Lynn English charge.

Once the Sachemettes got comfortable in the offensive zone, the oppurtunites to score began to present themselves. Denise Chabot put Winchester on the scoreboard halfway into the first half on a nice pass from Ingrid Spanjaard. Spanjaard led a few first half surges and appears to be fully recovered from a sprained ankle suffered two weeks ago.

Shortly after the score, Lynn English had their best scoring chance of the half. After Lynn winger Michelle Ford made a fine move to get past McDonough, it appeared she had a clean breakaway. But Rutherford made the defensive play of the game when she came out of nowhere to break up the threat while getting clobbered in the process.

The offense perked up after the near miss and with only 30 seconds left in the half, Amy Binding connected off a mad scramble in front of the net to give Winchester a 2-0 halftime lead. The Sachemettes completely dominated the second half. Forwards Emily Doherty and Margaret Cunningham showed all out hustle while halfback Julie Sexeny had a super game as well as the Sachemettes put on a clinic in aggressive soccer.

Debbie Nowell and Maconochie controlled midfield for Winchester. Nowell kept the ball in the offensive zone with her dribbling and fine lead passes while Maconochie constantly harassed the powerful Lynn English forwards.

Chabot showed a flair for the dramatic in the second half when she went down with a painful shoulder injury only to come back into the game five minutes later to score the game-clinching goal, her second of the game. Cunningham got the assist and should have had a goal of her own later in the half but the referee failed to notice the Lynn goalie was in the net when she made an apparent save on Cunningham's blast. Three goals were more than enough for the Sachemettes, however, as the team effort prevented English from getting off any decent shots on goaltender Allison Price. Lynn managed to score a token goal late in the game, but Winchester was in complete command.

The Sachemettes had no trouble disposing Woburn earlier in the week as Chabot and Binding each had a goal and an assist. After a slow start, Sexeny notched an unassisted goal from in close and two other goals quickly followed. Nowell set up Chabot for one goal and Binding deflected a Sara Ciotti pass to Cunningham for her goal and a 3-0 cushion. Coach Chris Scanlon started the seniors in the second half of the final regular-season game of their careers. Jen Ciotti, Amy Derry, Brenda Outwater, tri-captain Beth Small and Ashley Reeve were among the players and Jennifer Thorne at left wing and Jennifer Norberg at right fullback played particularly well in their last Skillings Field appearance. Junior Renee Aswad also played well while Meehan and back up goalie Julie Kennerson were kept on the sidelines with injuries.

The Sachemettes must conquer arch-rival and co-league champion Wakefield in order to advance to the sectional semifinals on Saturday.

Freshmen girls finish at 5-1

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High freshmen girls soccer team recently completed a productive season finishing with a 5-1-3 record. After losing the season opener against Belmont, the young Sachemettes went undefeated in their next eight games.

The team was led in scoring by forwards Cortney Perkins and Brittany Boulanger. Perkins scored seven goals and assisted on nine others while Boulanger was the team's goal scoring champ with ten goals in nine games.

The season began on a bad note when Winchester lost to Belmont, 4-2. Boulanger banged in the first goal of the season with an assist from Kerry Oliver and Amy Coakley scored her first goal of the season on a pass from Perkins. Despite the loss, coach Richard Trotta still received fine performances from forward Emily Lewis, halfbacks Sarah O'Connor, Kelly Campbell and Katie Fuller and fullback Jen Angeles.

The Sachemettes rebounded in their home opener against Stoneham, 3-0. Perkins had an outstanding game while picking up a goal and an assist. Jill Slater scored a goal assisted by Erika Gannon and O'Connor picked up an assist. Halfback Meaghan McKenna and forward Monica Slater also played well.

Winchester then experienced their first close encounter when they barely got past Burlington, 1-0. Boulanger provided the only goal of the game on a pass from Perkins. Fuller earned the shutout in net with help from fullbacks Pam Taylor and Kristin Scott. The combination of Boulanger and Perkins hooked up for the third consecutive game against Stoneham in a 1-1 tie. Goalie Katherine Ford was a standout in this battle as was forward Monica Slater and halfback Elysa Aswad.

The Sachemette offense exploded in the next game against Lexington as they whitewashed the Minutemaids, 6-0. Perkins had the hat trick while Monica Slater picked up three assists. Oliver, McKenna and Coakley also scored while O'Connor and Lewis picked up assists. Boulanger must have been home sick that day because it was the only game she did not score a goal in. Fine games were had by forward Michelle Tighe, halfbacks Melissa Soucy and Jen Murphy as well as fullbacks Deanna Dellachoppa and Stephanie Prevost.

Boulanger was back in the scoring column the next game against Woburn. She scored both goals while O'Connor picked up both assists in the Sachemettes 2-0 victory over Woburn. Taylor and Scott at fullback and forwards Gannon and Coakley all had outstanding games. They had a chance to avenge their only loss the next game at home against Belmont. However, Winchester came away with a 2-2 tie as Boulanger and Perkins took turns setting each other up for two scores. Ford had a good game in goal with help from Lewis and Scott while Coakley again played well up front.

The Sachemettes went back to their winning ways the next game against Stoneham, rolling over the Lady Spartans, 6-0. Monica Slater had two goals, O'Connor and McKenna each had a goal and an assist while Perkins added two assists to her totals. Soucy had a good game as did halfbacks Erin O'Neil and Elizabeth Holt. Gannon, McKenna and Boulanger also scored and Coakley and Jill Slater picked up assists. Winchester finished their season with a 4-4 tie against Burlington. Perkins had a great game scoring two goals and setting up two others while Boulanger had two goals and an assist. Monica Slater picked up the other assist. Lisa Kennerson and Kelly Campbell played well against the Red Devilettes.

Many of these players will advance to the junior varsity ranks next year and a lucky few just might make the varsity.

Sachems lose again, now at 3-5

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team lost their first home game of the season last Saturday when Lexington bowled them over, 33-14. The Sachems overall record dropped to 3-5 and they will be hard pressed to win their final two games to avoid finishing below .500.

Despite the final margin, the Winchester team played fairly well and they were in the game until the Minutemen ground game took control in the fourth quarter. The Sachem offense was moderately successful at moving the ball but turnovers again played a role in their decline. Lexington's ground game was so successful against the Phil Svahn-less defense, they did not even attempt a pass all day.

After the Minutemen raced to a 13-0 first quarter lead, the Sachem offense mounted an impressive drive at the beginning of the second quarter to propel themselves back into the game. Running backs Scott Garvey and Greg Winn were in top form as Winn bulled up the middle for good yardage while Garvey (21-129) raced around the corners for several key first downs. Garvey culminated the 12 play 80-yard drive with a five-yard scoring run. Clayton Wight added the extra point and the Sachems were back in business, 13-7.

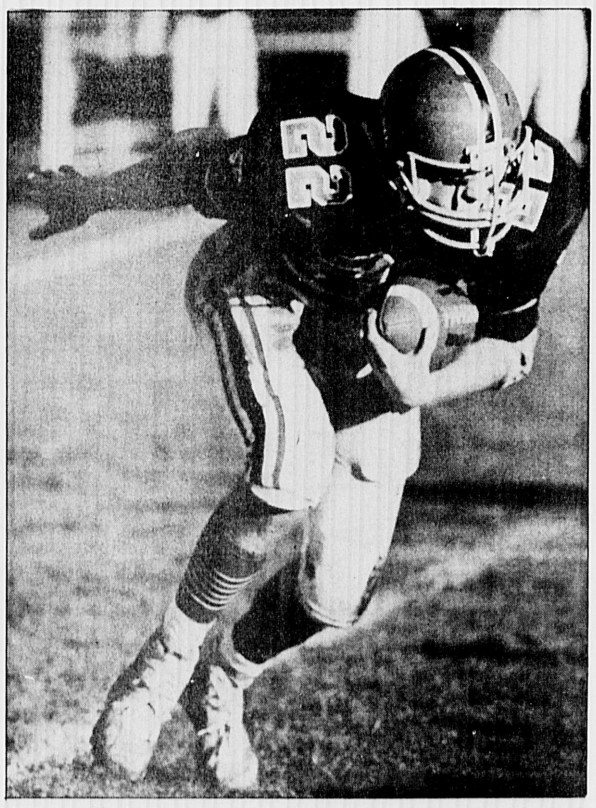

Lexington quarterback Lloyd Mumford wasted little time getting the points back as he juked then outran the Sachem secondary for a 56-yard touchdown run. Winchester threatened to close the gap again before halftime but a key fumble deep in Minuteman territory killed the rally.

Winchester used the entire third quarter to mount a long drive featuring the running of Garvey and quarterback Micky Feeley. Garvey finaly took it in for his second touchdown of the game and the Sachems were within six points, 20-14.

But Lexington blew the game open in the fourth quarter as the defense could do nothing to stop fullback Jeff Hagopian. The defensive line lost a key player last week when Svahn hurt his shoulder and his absence was noticable as the Minutemen ran up the middle at will. Two quick touchdowns later, the score was 33-14 and the game was history.

Fortunately, there is hope for the future as both the junior varsity and freshmen teams are having good seasons. Coach Dave Berman's team was 4-2 going into this week's matchup with Lexington while the freshmen team, coached by John Pirani is undefeated, 6-0.

The varsity will try to salvage at least one road win this season when they travel to Belmont on Saturday.

Boy's team wins in overtime

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys soccer team needed overtime last Sunday before they outlasted Saugus, 3-1, in MIAA Div. 2 North tournament play at Skillings Field. Last week, they defeated Woburn 5-1 and became co-champions of the Middlesex League with Wakefield.

The first half was evenly played which was surprising considering Saugus did not qualify for the tournament until the final day of the regular season. Jason MacConkey, Paul Erbafina and David Ducharme had the best scoring chances for the Sachems but there was still no score at halftime.

Saugus threatened early in the second half but goaltender Andy Shao came up with the big save to preserve the scoreless tie. Midfielder Erbafina took over from there and repeatedly led Sachem thrusts towards the Saugus goal but to no avail. Fullbacks Ducharme and Steve Reeve both had excellent games and Reeve and Paul Capodano executed a perfect give-and-go but Reeve could not get much on his shot.

As time began to wind down in regulation, the intensity of the game continued to grow. The Sachems were controlling the play but a hot Saugus goaltender was keeping them off the scoreboard. Finally, with six minutes left, Erbafina bounced a shot off the post and Vandy French tapped in the rebound to put Winchester on top, 1-0.

The defense let down a little after the goal and Saugus quickly took advantage tying the game only one minute after falling behind. The score remained tied as the two teams moved into overtime. Overtimes consist of two six-minute periods with the teams switching sides between periods. There is no sudden-death overtime until after this stage of the game.

Erbafina took charge immediately in the first overtime as he took a Ken Fowler pass, dribbled past three defenders before depositing the ball in the right side of the net. After the teams changed sides, Shao came up with a spectacular save to preserve the lead. Co-captain Rob Kean played a fine game and he capped it off by sending Fowler on a break down the left side. Fowler drilled it home from about 20 yards out with only 90 seconds remaining and the game was secured for the Sachems.

In their 5-1 triumph over the Tanners, Fowler and French connected for two goals each while Erbafina nailed a penalty shot to account for the fifth goal.

Mites unbeaten in 3 contests

KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

Winchester Mites walked all over Woburn Sunday with an 8-2 win, extending their unbeaten streak to three games in the Middlesex Youth Hockey League. The Sachems dominated from the opening faceoff, gaining the lead in the first minute of play.

"Woburn has such a strong hockey program that I expected more competition from them. This was our game from the start," commented head coach Ed O'Connell.

Scoring leader Steve Cuccinatti lit up the scoreboard after fifty seconds of play with a wrap-around goal. Cuccinatti finished the day with four goals and an assist.

Matt Dexter and T.J. O'Neil posted the next two points with goals 30 seconds apart to give Winchester a comfortable 3-0 lead. John Duval and Cuccinatti assisted Dexter's goal while O'Neil tipped in an Ashley Cannon shot.

Woburn did not give up though and scored on a break away. But the Sachems answered that one with two goals. Cuccinatti took a pass from Dexter at the red line, skated through the Tanner defense, and put a wrist shot in the bottom right corner for his third goal and Winchester's fourth. Cannon finished the scoring for the first period, sliding the puck over the line at the buzzer.

Duval got goal number six for the Mites on a breakaway and Cuccinatti deflected a Dexter shot for the seventh score in the second period. Woburn created more offense in the second but the Sachem defensive unit led by Mike Leonardi, Rocky Leo, Joey Palotta, rookie Matt Gillespie, and goalkeeper Dana LaPointe frustrated the Tanner attack and the middle frame ended with Winchester well out in front, 7-1.

Cuccinatti padded the Winchester lead in the middle of the third period but Tanner pride held together for one more goal in the last two minutes of the game and an 8-2 final.

Forwards Scott Philips and Matt Kelley also had strong games in helping Winchester to its third decisive win.

Cartmell becomes pastor of Second Congregational

Rev. Susan Cartmell has become the new pastor of the Second Congregational Church.

On Sept. 13 the congregation unanimously accepted the recommendation of the Pastoral Search Committee.

Cartmell was ordained in 1982. She has served on the staff of the First Congregational Church for the past six years as the Minister of Family Life (1981-1985) and Minister of Congregational Life (1986-1987). She has been a member of the Winchester Interfaith Council since 1981.

She grew up near St. Louis and was educated in Massachusetts. She received her bachelor's degree from Mount Holyoke College and her master's of divinity degree from Harvard Divinity School.

Cartmell and her family currently reside in Winchester. Her husband, Lawrence Ladd, is an administrator at Tufts University. She has three children: Jonathan, 9, Elizabeth, 4, and Sarah, 2.

The Second Congregational Church is a family church located in Winchester Highlands at the corner of Washington Street and Kenwin Road. Sunday Services and Sunday School are held at 10 a.m. followed by coffee hour at 11 a.m. The church is a member of the National Association of Christian Congregational Churches (NACCC).

The church was incorporated on March 13, 1906, but, its real history goes back beyond that date. During the 1880s a group of people from the highlands began having neighborhood prayer meetings in their homes partly because of the distance to town. As interest grew, the meetings were held in the waiting room of the Winchester Highlands Railroad Station.

A Sunday School was organized in 1881, and it is the oldest organization of the church that has carried on continuously.

In 1886, a corporation was formed that resulted in the construction of a chapel on Cross Street that served for 40 years as a social and religious center for the Highlands.

The Ecclesiastical Council admitted the new church as the Second Congregational Church of Winchester in 1906. The present church building was completed in 1926.

A ride to Cutter Village, June 1850

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY

Jogging smartly in our buggy toward Woburn, the creak and jingle of the harnesses and the crunch of the iron-bound wheels in the gravel of Main Street give comfortable presence to this summer day.

Excited children are rolling a hoop down the wood sidewalk at Main and Lake Streets, while behind them rises a classic symbol of Yankee enterprise: a manufactory overlooked by the prosperous homes of its owners.

This is the Cutter Mill, presently engaged in the sawing and finishing of fine woods — but formerly a carding mill — and in 1810, when John Cutter of Arlington bought it, a grist mill that processed the grain of Winchester farmers.

We pause as a team of oxen dragging a huge Mahogany log crosses in front of us.

Behind the mill, Horn Pond Brook has been altered by a dam in order to provide even power for the undershot waterwheel turning in the brook, and we can barely make out the heads of innumerable boys as they fish Cutter's Pond, which floods back over the area of our present D.P.W. due to the mill dam.

Our horse plods up the slight grade beyond the mill and we are immediately surrounded on all sides by substantial wooden houses of two stories enclosed by wood or iron fences. This is Cutter Village.

It is very peaceful and innumerable shade trees dapple the simple patrician homes of the Cutter family.

On the left side of Main Street immediately above the mill is the large, white house of Henry Cutter. It has a panoramic view of the mill complex and the pond to its rear. (This house still stands in 1987 as the Lane Funeral Home.)

The house immediately above it, and almost its twin, is the home of Henry's daughter, Mrs. Stephen A. Holt. (In 1987, the house has been converted to business use and is called "Cutter Village." Early in this century, the house was faced with stucco and lost much of its detailing.)

Above the Holt house is the cottage style home of Stephen Cutter's daughter, Mrs. Charles Hall. (It was removed in 1960 and a brick business block took its place.)

The right hand side of Main Street really belonged to Stephen Cutter and his heirs.

Stephen's house, nearly opposite his brother Henry's is large but simple with a gently peaked roof and a heavy bracketed cornice. It has a large barn on its south side, and the small front yard is enclosed by a granite and iron fence. (Stephen's house partially burned in 1960 and was demolished in 1961. The present Saltmarsh Agency is built alongside what was the drive to the barn.)

Above Stephen's house is a son's home, simpler than his father's place, but surrounded by a wooden picket fence and having a rather ornate carriage house on its north side. (Years later the barn was used as a welding shop, and the writer can remember having many a tricycle fork mended there. The house disappeared in 1954 and was replaced by a filling station.)

The final house — and one set back from the dust of the street is that of Stephen Cutter's daughter, Mrs. Oliver Richardson Clark.

This is a comfortable two story home with a large porch on three sides. One has a marvelous view of the new steam trains to Lowell from that porch. (This house was demolished in 1958 and the site used for business purposes.)

Mr. Clark hails us from the porch as we tie up to the granite hitching post and deliver the earthen jug of molasses ordered by Mrs. Clark.

As we leave Cutter Village on our way back to the square, we ponder which family anchors the two ends of Main Street in the most useful manner. Is it the Symmes Family up at the corner with its prosaic acres of farmland, or is it the Cutter Family with its rumbling mill and stylish homes?

The Window Place

For more than twelve years Neil Haggerty has been improving the appearance of area homes and businesses as owner/president of Prime Contracting Inc. In the course of remodelling hundreds of homes and building an impeccable reputation for quality workmanship, Neil discovered a need for a separate division specializing in windows; complimenting his already successful contracting business. In September 1986 The Window Place was formed. This division of Prime Contracting has a permanent showroom located in 601 Main St., Winchester where you are sure to find the window, blinds or shades which best suit your home or office.

With his extensive experience in the field owner Haggerty will help you choose the window that's right for your home or office needs. To help you select the blinds or shades which best with the decor of that home or office, decorating expert Theresa DeConto is available for consultation. Theresa who studies interior decorating at Framingham State College, is a lifelong Winchester resident with more than four years of experience in interior decorating, with a primary focus on window decorations.

After experiencing what he describes as an "overwhelming demand for specialization in "just windows," Haggerty formed the Window Place which he says has received a "phenomenal response."

If fact Haggerty explains that "Since the Window Place opened his company has experienced an unprecedented growth."

The Window Place offers a variety of windows including bay, bow, garden, and double hung models. All are custom-fitted and designed for the energy conscious consumer, and all are very competitively priced.

With a contracting background specializing in thermal insulation, Haggerty is more than qualified to assist you in selecting a window that will result in a substantial heat savings. As he explains, "When you want to make the right choice call The Window Place."

The Window Place is open Monday-Friday 10-6, Saturday 10-2, and Haggerty and DeConto are available by appointment at your convenience, for in-home consultation.

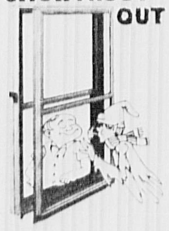

With a wide selection of windows, roller and pleated shades and mini, micro and vertical blinds, and a variety of name brands like Levoler, Kirsch and Delmar, you are sure to satisfy your window needs at The Window Place.

Housing Partnership Board passes by seven votes language because it did not specifically state that the board would meet with the MHP only after speaking with the town's elected boards.

Joseph Geary made a motion to substitute "with the approval of and in keeping with the direction of" for "after consulting with" in the newly amended article. That amendment also passed.

The board's duties under part 4.8.4 c were also amended by the meeting. That section now reads: "The Housing Partnership Board shall receive and be afforded a reasonable opportunity, not to exceed 30 days, to review all proposals for publicly-financed multiple-unit developments and to make recommendations concerning the inclusion of affordable housing in such proposals to the Board of Selectmen and the Planning Board."

Town Meeting member Roger Bauman questioned the wording of the article on the warrant. He said he was concerned that the partnership board would have the power to delay development projects if its mandate was to review linkage projects "before they are executed," as the original wording stated.

The article survived a motion by Michael Saraco for indefinite postponement by 23 votes. "We're talking about creating a new department," he said. "We're talking about spending money."

Saraco said the proper time to decide fiscal matters was spring Town Meeting, when the town finalizes the budget.

The Finance Committee recommended favorable action on Article 2.

Committee member Chester Haskell told the meeting that the partnership board could save the town money by helping to avoid situations where funding might be in jeopardy, creating housing efficiently, and, helping Winchester seek housing funds from the state and federal government.

Town Meeting decided to seek a grant from the state to hire a housing consultant after a vote to indefinitely postpone that article failed. Supporters of a Housing Development Department backed the bid for a consultant when Article 3 was indefinitely postponed.

Article 4 passed by 24 votes.

Study says school depression endemic

24 percent of the students, most of them female, the survey found, while almost 8 percent have used vomiting or laxatives as a weight control method.

Faculty survey

Questioned asked only of the faculty focused on its perception of support services and student needs.

Two-thirds of the faculty believes that students know where to go to get help. Students view the guidance department as a place to receive help for their emotional problems, more than 60 percent of the faculty agree strongly or mildly.

Faculty opinion differs widely on whether students believe it is appropriate to see a therapist for their problems, while 45 percent said the drop-in counseling center that opened last February was well received.

A vast majority of the teaching staff agreed that students use them as a source of emotional strength and that students are in need of more emotional help than they currently receive at school.

Bakow and Larocco said they were impressed with the close correlation between faculty and student responses. This, they said, shows a faculty that is in tune with its students.

The figures in the report have not been studied and, as School Committee Chairman William Jervey said, "I'm not really sure what it's telling us." The committee voted to created the task force to analyze the data included in the report, as well as grade and gender breakdowns of the information.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Mitsakos will take names of parents who are interested in becoming a part of the task force that will study the report. The deadline to submit a name is Friday, Nov. 20.

Leaf issue spins off whirlwind

What use trying to rake 'em?
Why can't the town trucks to the incinerator take 'em?"

The poem received a round of applause from Town Meeting, which then voted 69-53 for the amendment to remove the mention of leaves from Article 5.

Money for leaf-pickup was removed from the DPW's budget as a result of Proposition 2½ budget cutbacks.

Town Meeting began to argue the amended article, but a motion to postpone the article to a time certain by meeting member Robert Frank ended the discussion until this evening.

The questions of where residents can throw their snow, including the piles the town creates at the end of driveways, will get further discussion tonight.

Physicians recommend use of mammography

Nancy Reagan's breast cancer surgery has opened many women's eyes to the importance of early detection by self-examination and the use of mammography screenings. Early detection and prompt treatment is bringing new hope to the 112,000 American women who will develop cancer of the breast this year.

"More than 25 percent of all cancer diagnosed in women will be of the breast," said Jeanine Rousseau, chief technologist at the Winchester Healthcare Mammography Center. "The disease will develop in one out of 10 women in the United States."

Although the peak incidence is in the 65 to 70 age group, breast cancer appears in many women who are in their 40s. It is the leading cause of death among women age 40 to 45. The incidence of breast cancer rises dramatically in the immediate premenopausal period. After age 50, there is a flattening of this curve and then a low rise in incidence.

During the past decade, researchers have tried to identify factors that put some women at high risk and others at low risk. They have found the most powerful factor to be age.

Other factors include a previous personal history of breast cancer, a family history of breast cancer in a first-degree relative (mother or sister), or a personal history of a previous operation for cystic disease of the breast.

There are also a variety of risk factors relating to hormonal status. These include an increased risk in women with an early menarche, early establishment of regular menstrual cycles, or late menopause, and a decreased risk for women who complete their first full-term pregnancy before age 20.

Through early detection and prompt treatment about 87 percent of breast cancer patients could be saved. That's why a monthly breast self-examination should be a lifelong habit from teenage years on, even though this disease occurs most often in women over 50.

"Early detection with a film screen mammography will help to make the early diagnosis of breast cancer and, with appropriate treatment, increase the patient's longevity," said Dr. John MacDonald, of Winchester Hospital's radiology department.

Women age 50 and over should have a breast x-ray (mammogram) every year. Women between ages 35-40 should have a baseline breast x-ray and from ages 40-49 they should have this x-ray every one to two years depending on their physician's judgement.

With a clearer understanding of the roles of hormones and environmental factors that seem to relate to the initiation and growth of breast cancer, the ability may yet come for modification or even for prevention of the disease process in some cases. Until that time, early detection will give women the best chance for cure.

Winchester Healthcare Mammography Center at 955 Main St. offers women one of the most comprehensive programs of preventive breast care in this area. Its simple three-part program of prevention through examination, detection, and education has been designed to meet individual needs and concerns with sensitive, personalized care.

The center is open Monday through Friday. Additional hours will be scheduled as volume dictates. Every effort will be made to schedule appointments within 24 hours. The telephone number is 729-3145.

Hospital gala benefits maternity project

An estimated 250 individuals gathered at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Greenhouses on Route 3 Saturday, Oct. 24, for a dinner dance to benefit the Maternity Renovation Project at Winchester Hospital.

Mike Lynch, TV Channel 5 sportscaster, was master of ceremonies. He introduced Eugene E. Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital; Dr. James F. McDonough, chairman of the Renovation Project Committee; and Dr. John C. Going Jr., chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Each speaker commented on the project and fundraising efforts which are planned.

McDonough briefly outlined the history of maternity services at Winchester. The renovations, which began in June, will equip the hospital's maternity facility to handle many complications which may arise during the birthing process. McDonough expressed pleasure that the renovation project will enable Winchester Hospital to continue to be the birthing center women from surrounding communities elect to use.

Lynch also announced prize winners in the silent auction held just before the dinner hour. Prizes awarded included use of vacation properties, an oriental rug, clothing, sports memorabilia, and gifts donated by area merchants and benefactors.

Serving on the Winchester Hospital Maternity Renovation Project Committee with McDonough are the following: from Reading, Chester Putney, co-chairman, and Marcia Margiotta; from Winchester, Margaret Schleicher, co-chairman, Nurse Linda Going, chairperson of volunteers, Mary Arian, Mary Blackham, Dr. John C. Going Jr., Marta Harrington, Lanie Higgins, Marsha Lamson, Dr. Donald McLean, Cheryl Ferguson McLean, Natalie O'Connell, Dr. John W. O'Grady, Janet Palotta, and Maureen Rotolo; from Woburn, Dr. Richard A. d'Entremont, co-chairman; from Wilmington, Nurse Donna Flodin; from Ipswich, Nurse Jan Isbell; from Medford, Maureen Maganzini and Sheila McGlynn; and from Lexington, Nurse Regina Pesin.

The subcommittee responsible for this event includes Mary Blackham, Linda Going, and Cheryl Ferguson McLean.

What To Do

The mall: a place to live, shop, eat and keep healthy

"There are more enclosed malls (in the United States) than cities, four-year colleges, or television stations," says William Severini Kowinski in his book, The Malling of America. "Someday it may be possible to be born, go from preschool through college, get a job, date, marry have children, get a divorce, advance through a career, receive medical care, live a relatively full life of culture and entertainment, and eventually die and be given funeral rites without ever leaving a particular mall complex."

Creating and maintaining a shopping mall is big business. And the success of that business comes in creating the right image: securing the appropriate type of businesses that will draw in the desired clientele. It also requires a good team of public relations and marketing specialists to keep the public aware of what's happening at the mall. And why not? Malls have taken over as the place to go, whether you're a teenager or an adult. As town centers decline, malls fill a need in our fast-paced existence: a place to find retail shops, services, and, in some instances, entertainment under one roof.

Malls are classified according to size. Smaller complexes are classified as community malls, while the larger ones may be regional or super regional.

Local residents have their pick of places to do their shopping. Besides an abundance of large suburban malls, there are also a number of appealing mini-malls in places like Harvard Square. This article looks at four large malls and two mini-malls as well as the ultimate shopping experience, the West Edmonton Mall in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Arsenal Mall

The Arsenal Mall, located on the original site of the Watertown Arsenal, which was closed by the Department of Defense in 1964, opened in 1983. Classified as a regional, mixed-use project, the property contains offices, senior citizen apartments, a new Harvard Community Health Plan (HCHP) facility, and 92 stores to attract the shopper.

Said Cynthia Hall, general manager of the Arsenal Mall, "Customers perceive the Mall in two ways: as a convenience center where they can purchase what they need and leave, and as a traditional shopping experience, a place where they can bring the family and spend several hours shopping." Another important factor is accessibility. Located on an MBTA bus route (#70), the Mall attracts shoppers without cars.

Said Hall, "We are concerned with the customer and with the surroundings. For instance, a major customer service program called "We Care" is in the works, which includes seminars to educate store managers and a customer service center. A lot of people shop as an experience and a hobby, and we want to address their needs.

"When I say surroundings, I mean the integrity of the buildings. The interior of the Mall has been revamped with new plantings to add color and texture and a rotating schedule of flowers. Outside, new trees have been added. Our goal is to give people the idea that this is a wonderful place to be."

Anchored by Ann & Hope and Marshall's, the Mall features pushcart merchants and familiar retail stores, such as Cherry Webb and Touraine, Hit or Miss, Limited, Stride Rite. More specialized stores include Cutlery World, Earring Tree, Lady Grace, and 5-7-9. Service stores include Pearle Vision Center, Arsenal Dental, and i Natural Cosmetics.

The eateries at the Arsenal Mall are contained in an area called the Food Emporium, a collection of fast-food businesses in a clean, attractive, spacious, well-lit area. For the shopper who wants a quick bite to eat before or after shopping, the Food Emporium is an ideal set-up. For entertainment, though, you'll have to look elsewhere as there aren't any movie theaters here.

Maintaining an image as a Good Neighbor is also important to the success of the Arsenal Mall. The recent Hometown Festival featured several programs. The Pacesetters Program, started on Sept. 25, was a walking program for senior citizens, held in cooperation with St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton. The program focused on the Mall as a climate controlled, safe, and comfortable walking area. According to Hall, this program is not unique to Watertown. Other malls throughout the United States are sponsoring similar programs.

On Oct. 11, the Boys and Girls Club of Watertown used to Mall to stage a Ball to salute their volunteers. Oct. 17 featured a celebration of the new HCHP facility, with free health screenings and tours of the facility. Two editors from Glamour magazine visited the Mall on Oct. 23-24 to highlight new fashion trends, focus on gift giving and entertaining for the upcoming holiday season, and do makeovers. Said Hall, "Our promotions tend to be community or merchandise oriented. We educate people. You won't see a car or boat show here. We're here for retail."

Watertown

You might think that having another large mall just across the street would be a problem. Yet Patricia Stenson, the manager of the Watertown Mall, says that isn't the case: "If anything, the Arsenal Mall has increased our business because it draws from other communities. A lot of cross-shopping occurs because the stores are different."

Opened in November 1975, the Watertown Mall is classified as a community mall because it has two anchor stores (Bradlees and Stop 'n Shop) and a footage of 250,000 sq. ft. The Mall presently has 34 tenants.

One problem that malls face is finding tenants to lease space. Watertown Mall had this problem about two years ago, when the 10-year leases on the first businesses came up for renewal. Some stores elected to move across the street to the Arsenal Mall, leaving a number of empty stores. However, with the recent addition of five new stores (Tons of Toys, Sizes Unlimited, Dunkin' Donuts, Underground Camera, and Field Facts), the future of the Watertown Mall has brightened, just in time for the holiday season. At the moment, there is only one vacancy at the Mall, and Stenson expects to have that filled by early next year.

Stenson wants people to think of the Mall as a convenient, safe, comfortable, and easily-accessible shopping area with all types of products and service. Like its neighbor, the Arsenal Mall, Watertown Mall is easily accessible to customers with or without cars. (Take the #70 bus from Central Square.) For drivers,

What To Do

Story by Anne-Marie Seltzer

the Mall has 1,000 parking spaces.

Stenson said, "We draw our customers from all classes and economic backgrounds. About one-third of our shoppers come from Watertown and we have many repeat shoppers. Again, since the Arsenal Mall is larger, it tends to draw shoppers from other communities and they frequently come to our mall as well."

The mix of retail and service shops at Watertown Mall seems to give it a quality town center look. You can have your eyes examined (Opticians 3 or Primary Eye Care); get a new look (Snip Hair Salon); go to the bank (BayBank/Middlesex or Watertown Savings Bank); buy a card or gift (Balsam's); purchase specialty foods (Fanny Farmer, Lawson Farms, and the Nature food Centre); have lunch or dinner (Friendly's, Papa Gino's, or Dunkin' Donuts); and shop for groceries (Stop 'n Shop). Shoes and clothing for adults and children can also be had, without any hassles (Bradlees, Cummings, The Gap, Thom McCann, and Endicott Johnson).

The Watertown Mall also acts as a kind of town center by opening its doors to virtually every organization in Watertown and giving donations, hosting raffles, and sponsoring exhibits and programs. The Mall was the site of recent campaigns on "Say No To Drugs" and crime prevention. Child fingerprinting was also held there at the request of local parents. According to Stenson, a community safety program will be held at the Mall this month with demonstrations by the Watertown Police Department and Alliance Security Co., the Mall's security force. Santa will also arrive in a fire engine to the sounds of the Watertown High School Band.

The Mall is owned by the Watertown Mall Associates Limited Partnership and managed by Rosen Associates Management Corporation of Jericho, New York.

Chestnut Hill

The Mall at Chestnut Hill, an upscale regional suburban shopping mall with a great variety of small shops, is for the selective shopper, the discriminating shopper age 25 plus. Located five miles west of Boston on Route 9 in Newton, the Mall has the highest sales per square foot in the country. Its goal is not only to provide the finest shopping but to serve as a showcase for the finest talent in the area. The Mall has tied into the major cultural institutions in the area (Boston Ballet, Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Museum of Fine Arts, and New England Conservatory of Music, to name a few) and wants to be the entertainment center of the Chestnut Hill area. Sunday concerts are given on the Mall's grand piano.

The Mall is also noted for its indoor gardens, which were put in when the Mall was built in 1972. Allen C. Haskell, who created the floral arrangements for Prince Charles and Princess Diana's visit and Caroline Kennedy's wedding, designs the gardens every month. In December, there will be red and white poinsettas. In January, live birch trees will be strung with lights.

Anchored by Bloomingdale's and Filene's, the mall currently has 68 stores and there is a two and one-half year waiting period for leasing space. The atmosphere of the Mall as well as its shops is geared toward adults. Classical music, rather than the usual piped in tunes, creates a genteel feeling.

Eating at the Chestnut Hill Mall is also a more leisurely process, with regular restaurants rather than a common eating area with fast-food stands to serve the shopper. You'll never find a Burger King here, although you will find enough variety to suit your needs.

If you get a craving for fresh seafood, look for the Famous Atlantic Fish Company with its restaurant and bar. Lighter fare can be purchased at the Cape Cod Restaurant; Charley's Eating and Drinking Saloon; or Le Grand Croissant, with its specialty salads and homemade soups.

But the real reason to come to The Chestnut Hill Mall is the shopping. Here's just a sampling: Bloomingdale's; Victoria's Secret (fine lingerie and sleepwear); Quadrum (artists' jewelry); Scandia Down (down comforters, covers, and other bedding); Shreve, Crump & Lowe (jewelry and specialty items); Louis (America's best clothing store, according to Esquire magazine); Pappagallo (imported Italian clothing); Jaegar (contemporary English sportswear for women); Cache (updated women's apparel); The Coach Store (leather goods); Charles Sumner (designer salon for women); H.L. Rockinghorse (children's heirloom clothing, toys and gifts); The Circus (clothing and toys for children); and Adesso (contemporary European furniture and lighting).

The Chestnut Hill Mall is owned by C&R Management Corporation of Chestnut Hill.

Burlington

When it opened in 1968, the Burlington Mall was the largest shopping center in Massachusetts. Now, almost 20 years later, the Mall is undergoing a major renovation/expansion project that will add a second level with 72 specialty shops. When the project is completed in the Fall of 1988, the Burlington Mall will feature pastel color schemes of beige and rose, flooring of porcelain tile and marble, glass elevators, three large open courts with fountains and foliage, concealing neon lighting, tinted skylites running the entire length of the mall.

All this will enhance the image of this super regional mall, which is located on Route 128, as a safe, clean, and well-lit place to shop. Currently occupying more than 1,000,000 square feet, the mall has the four most popular anchor stores (Sears, Lord and Taylor, Jordan Marsh, and Filene's) in the Boston Metropolitan area.

With 96 retail stores, restaurants, service stores, and movie theatres (something the three previous malls don't have), the Burlington Mall attracts a clientele of adults and families from more than 30 towns, and office workers from the local industrial parks. The new stores are planned to attract the same shoppers and enhance the depth and variety of merchandise.

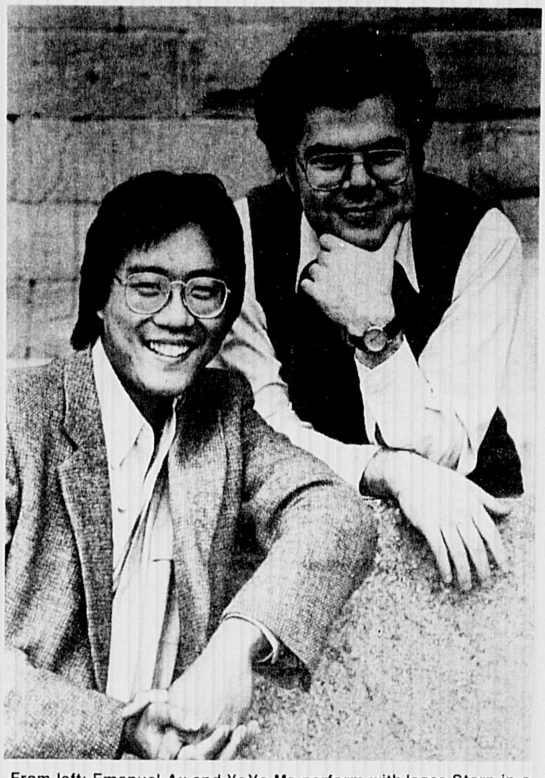

Of all the malls discussed here, the Burlington Mall has the widest variety of eateries to nourish the hungry shopper. A fast food court was added to the mall in 1981 and it includes stands dispensing salads, Chinese food, Haagen-Dazs ice cream, unusual coffees, shish kebab, and hot dogs.

People who prefer to sit down in a regular restaurant have their choice of seven places: Jimmy's on the Mall, Brigham's, Magic Pan, York Steak House, Pizzeria Regina, Legal Seafood, and Au Bon Pain. Prices vary, but York Steak House is especially good for families.

The stores at the Burlington Mall reflect the diversity of its clientele. Clothing shops include Kennedy's, August Max, The Lodge at Harvard Square, The Narragansett, Helen Olevson, Victoria's Secret, Ann Taylor, Casual Corner,

It is a starkly realistic view of the underside of life, where the inhabitants have sunk into the sinkholes of humanity; where the people hate each other and hate themselves; where the populace has reverted to their most base, animalistic instincts as the result of abject poverty! Few possess the drive and determination to escape, but Jim Cartwright did!

In its New England premiere, Road is Everyman's main street in a small, utterly depressed town, with its few business establishments and focal points...the bar, the pizza joint, the waterfront, and the dilapidated, ramshackle hovels where the townsfolk live, cluttered with Goodwill castoffs and five-and-dime furnishings. In its unlit back alleys sex is traded for a few swigs of liquor. Indeed, stripped down to the bare bone, the common denominator that predominates in Cartwright's tapestry is sexual activity...the cheapest form of diversion.

For the Gloucester Stage Company mounting director Grey Cattell Johnson assembled a cast of 30 equity and non-union actors and employed promenade staging, since the action takes place all around the theatre with the audience following the actors to each performance area. The quality of acting varies, but Grey's expertise with this type of staging and his ability to capture the raw, savage energy of Cartwright's scripts results in a most rewarding theatrical experience.

Cartwright assisted in adapting and relocating his story from a small town in England to Gloucester, but the change of locale does not work all that well and appears a superfluous effort. It loses some of its punch and authenticity in transition, especially since we do not visualize Gloucester as a disaster area. And while Cartwright's play is unquestionably effective, it is unevenly written. Some areas are very strong, others are weak and could easily have been eliminated, especially since the vehicle runs long.

The 'road' is like the midway of a carnival and the games of chance, the various attractions, the freak show, and the death defying rides are actually the lives of the inhabitants. Our tour guides, at various times, are Scullery (Jim Wrynn) and the Professor (Richard J. Dauphinee), who serve as joint moderators, like the Stage Manager in Our Town. Moving from one stall to the next, the audience become voyeurs. Outside, kids play hopscotch on the sidewalk; inside, you're invited to have a drink or two at Digger's Old Timers Tavern (with its red hot hits on Saturday nites featuring rock and roll), and mix and mingle with the rough and rowdy bunch of patrons.

We meet con-artist Scullery and his younger sister Louise (Paula Langton) as he dabbles with a piece of greasy machinery and she maneuvers for a piece of the mirror to finish applying her makeup. Scullery swills down a pint. Their folks upstairs are having sex on filthy sheets. Scully cruelly smears grease on Louise's face, but before she leaves, he hands her a dollar...

As Carol, (Victoria Gadsden) irons the dress she's going to wear that eve, her mother Brenda (Rita

What To Do

Unusual shops found at the local malls

(From page 3)

Lane Bryant, Size 5-7-9, Shelly's Tall Girl, and American Eagle Outfitters. For weddings and formal occasions, there's Priscilla, the bride's shop.

For shoes, there's Baker's, Florsheim, Thayer McNeil, Red Cross Shoes, Foot Locker, and Stride Rite.

Other unusual retail and service stores include The Irish Cottage, Things Remembered, Collector's Cabinet, Pad & Pen, Herman's, Eric Fuchs Hobbies, Victoria's Secret, Crabtree & Evelyn, Long's Jewelers, and Scandivanian Design.

Like the other malls, the Burlington Mall wants to be perceived as a good neighbor. A member of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce, the mall sponsors a local baseball team and a float in the Fourth of July Parade. A regular mall exhibit is Safety Town for children, featuring Big Wheels that kids can drive around.

Because of the construction, Christmas exhibits won't be as abundant as previous years. Special services will include the usual gift certificates and the shopper's shuttle to and from nearby executive parks.

The Burlington Mall is owned by CPI (Corporate Property Investors).

The Galeria

Located on John F. Kennedy Street in the Square, The Galeria is a collection of 16 shops that attracts customers from Harvard Square and out-of-town. According to Kathy DiBenedetto, marketing director, The Galeria is an exceptional, one-stop place for shopping, food, service, and entertainment. It is also a place that prides itself on serving the customer. She said, "Since the Galeria opened in 1975, we have given the customer old-fashioned attention, the kind of attention that used to be standard — taking the time to assess the customer's needs and then making the effort to help. Our merchants don't perceive a customer as just another sale."

Many of the shops are geared toward an upscale clientele aged 25 plus: Journeyman, Pappagallo, Liquidazione, an Italian design outlet; Alpha Omega Jewelers; Leather World; and Scandinavian Design. Service shops include Sasha European Skin Care; Oriental Tours and Travel, Diego at the Loft, Tanorama, and University Dental.

However, there are also places for shoppers of all ages, such as The Kitchen, the Janus Cinema, and eateries like Stock Pot and Haagen Dazs.

Parking, usually a problem in Harvard Square, has been solved through validated parking at the University Garage for The Galeria shoppers.

Upcoming plans include Christmas music during the holidays and a Preferred Customer Card. According to DiBenedetto, this card will entitle customers to discounts and specials at different stores.

A member of the Harvard Square Business Association, The Galeria and its merchants are anxious to be part of the Harvard Square community. "We also want people to think of The Galeria as a nice place to shop," said DiBenedetto.

The Galeria is owned under a limited partnership by Galeria Associates.

Charles Square

"At first, people though we'd distance ourselves from the rest of the community, but we don't. We are involved in the Harvard Square Business Association, sponsor photography exhibits, and participate in promotions," said Raoul Moore, property manager of Charles Square, the shops surrounding the Charles Hotel in Cambridge.

Geared toward shoppers ages 18 to 65 who come from Boston and as far away as Lincoln and Wellesley, Charles Square is a place where someone can spend a whole day, starting with a facial and workout at Le Pli; continuing with lunch at Rudi's Cafe; shopping at retail stores like La Sweaterie, The Talbots, Laura Ashley, Crabtree and Evelyn, Papermint, Zabin's for Children, and Benetton; and ending with a show at the Regatta Bar at the Charles Hotel. According to Moore, the merchants at Charles Square want to offer a pleasaurable, no hassle experience in a safe, clean and easily accessible environment.

Opened in November 1985, Charles Square has 15 stores and is fully leased. Said Moore, "One of the problems with any shopping area is finding out what works, what will draw the customer in. We are an upscale fashion mall with complimentary stores. However, in our case, upscale doesn't necessarily mean expensive."

Future promotions at Charles Square include Vermont Holiday Celebration Day on Nov. 27. Tied into the traditional Christmas Procession that begins at 5 p.m., the celebration will feature 20 food specialists from Vermont, offering samples of everything from lamb kabobs to ice cream. At 6 p.m., the Boston Ballet will present a preview of their production of the Nutcracker. Around 6:30 p.m., Vermont Governor Madeline Kunin will light the Christmas tree, a traditional gift from the State of Vermont, and the Mayor of Cambridge and members of the City Council will declare Vermont Holiday Celebration Day in Cambridge. Customers will have the opportunity to win a one-week ski vacation worth $1,500 during the Christmas shopping season. Slips will be available at the Charles Square shops and no purchase is required. The Celebration is sponsored by WROR-FM and New England Monthly magazine.

What's On The Boards

Chick) goes on a tirade. She'd go out but she has no money, no booze. She never washes, never changes her clothes. She laces into Carol's hanging out in bars and the dates she brings home and has sex with..."I can't stand the sounds!"

Molly (Jo McKinnon) is lonely, middle-aged and confused, with a flair for rhyme. She has a cup of tea, makes up her face, thinks she'll go out...but where?

The Professor has lost his wife, half of his stomach, and all sense of morality. His sole possession is a box filled with scribblings of recollections...memories of bums. During a meeting with Scullery the latter rues..."The world is a sewer...a big toilet!" When a free-swinging chick saunters by the Professor asks, "Can I come?" He follows her home.

With makeshift kitchen equipment The Warrior (Stephen Josh Collopy), an impassioned fighter, dedicated himself to isometrics and other exercise routines. The sweat rolls off his bare-chested, muscular body. He follows religiously a program of fitness, tactics, and new techniques, and recalls an incident when some uptown Salem faggots attacked him. But, with his prowess of karate he easily subdued them and offered himself to Budda and mantra...something to hold on to. Here, Cartwright's writing and Collopy's performance are both stunning!

Young Joey (Cord M. Reynolds) remains in bed day after day, refusing to see anyone or leave the house. His job was stolen and life is at a standstill. All ambition has been sucked dry...every day is the same. He is constipated on bitterness and blames businessmen and religion. "What is life all about?" he broods. Joey is on a starvation diet of sorts...until he sees a vision, an answer. His girlfriend Clare (Amy Klopotoski), unable to sway him, joins him on their only way out...death. A shattering and hypnotic segment!

Intermission is spent at the Old Timers Tavern drinking and dancing as disc-jockey Digger (Dennis DeGregorio) spins rock 'n' roll tunes, presents awful talent, and reflects on life there..."It's like swimming in egg!" Down the street two devil-may-care girls Tina (Heidi J. Dallin) and Lane (Vicki-Lynn Seebacher), who figure they're go-

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Buying fruit at a street market is among the activities of urban dwellers that set Suzanne Hodes's outdoor paintings in motion. The artist exhibits paintings drawings and prints in Sudbury this month.

Impressive work by Hodes

Line travels through Suzanne Hodes's works with a vitality that combines innocent exuberance with practiced visual probing. The 19 paintings, drawings and prints the artist exhibits at Julia Saul Gallery in Sudbury are lively, thoughtful pictures that connect artist, subject and viewer with a bond of shared experience and discovery.

Thematically the pictures fall into three groups: portraits, urban scenes and a series of monoprint impressions of a recent trip to the U.S.S.R.

The charcoal and chalk portraits, though they are without the color interaction of the other pictures, are the most immediately striking of the works. They have a directness and strength of scale that give them force. They also have a basic honesty.

In her self portrait, the artist looks straightforwardly out at herself and at the viewer. The mass of the body is described with a distinct lack of either drama or coyness, but with a kind of integrity in the observation. Emotion lies not in the figure's gesture or facial expression, but in the line itself which, while always at the service of the form it describes, never loses its energy, yet stops way short of bringing attention to itself as bravura mark-making.

The other portraits in the show are equally arresting, with the same sense of directness and monumentality. The artist's son at age 18 is darkened by white backlight pouring through a big kitchen window. His arm and elbow, all angular and adolescent, rest on a table alive with a linear swing of saucers and clutter.

The head is tilted down and turned to a three-quarter profile, emphasizing strong curves of the young man's face that tell of a seriousness and sensitivity his lanky youth belies.

The two other portraits, of Oskar Kokoshka (with whom Hodes studied) and Samuel Beckett are both drawn from photographs. But they do not sink into the murky, dying darks and frozen, rendered form that much drawing from photography does. By allowing the white of the paper's surface a major role in form and space description, and by using line to explore what is sculptural in the head and figure and clothing, Hodes achieves a balance of freshness and massiveness. The feeling in these portraits is not forced; it is alive in the process of their making.

The emphasis in the urban scenes is on space, light and movement. A full palette of color, albeit subdued to accommodate its inclusive range, is used with the same exploratory and structural vitality as line is in the portraits.

Hodes does not shy away from the density and activity of street life. Parking meters, signs, curbs and quirks of architecture are woven into the total fabric of the picture. Space is not compromised in the attention to such details.

Hodes has a light touch with a brush that appears to work the entire surface of the picture at once. She talks of beginning a painting: "I start working rapidly all over the canvas or paper. I block in the linear structure, add mass and color, trying to achieve a structured space."

Still, she knows when to bore in on a form and give it more weight than the rest of the painting. In Arrival, a man looms large at the front of the picture plane. Carrying brown suitcases, his dark, orangy garments and face, and his size, make him the focus of the cool, light-filled street and buildings surrounding him. As is always the case with street life, and the case with the urban paintings of Raphael Soyer, with whom Hodes shares a stylistic link, a narrative is suggested.

Two monoprints from a series of New York City's IBM building lobby are color statements of space and mood, also suggesting stories with their holiday decorations and people grouped and alone at the anonymous little round tables. The monoprint memories of icons and images in Russia are decorative and tile-like. They have an immediacy, fullness and simplicity of color that give them a more bouyant feeling than the other works, and they bring to light the range, the breadth, and the continued growth of this artist.

Suzanne Hodes's "People and Place" is on view through Nov. 14. Located downstairs from the Frameloft in Mill Village on Route 20 (Boston Post Road), Julia Saul Gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday until 8, and by appointment. Call 443-7078.

ing to wind up on the garbage heaps anyways, rip off Lenny's Subs and Deli (David Arsenault) while a derelict staggers by.

In a most touching scene Helen (Pat Flaherty), long past her prime, brings home a young, totally drunk soldier. She plans to seduce him, anxious to feel once more a lean young body next to hers. She desperately wants to be wanted and has prostituted herself. Nothing works out as expected and Helen is left with little but devastating shame. An excruciatingly pathetic moment beautifully written by Cartwright.

Others we meet are Barry (Dennis DiGregorio), Tina's sometimes lover; a crochety Mr. Bald (Bob Beard); juvenile delinquent Blowpipe (Guy Fiero); Jerry (Frank Donnelly), who questions nostalgically, "Where did time go?" from the genteel way of life during his time in service...to now; and Valerie (Genie Wills) in hair curlers and bathrobe, who is always borrowing because she has nothing.

Slovenly Brian (Jack Flynn) picks up fat, ugly boozer Marion (Anne Jenness) and takes her back to his miserable flat for a fast roll in the hay. Their volatile relationship is witnessed by Brian's young daughter Linda (Kelly Bernie).

In the most climactic interlude Brink (Bob Knapp) and his buddy Eddie (Manny Lopez), all spiffed up for a night on the prowl, pick up quiet Louise and her daring girlfriend Carol and the four return to Eddie's house. The boys attempt to manipulate them into the sack, but the girls object and threaten to leave. They chug-a-lug tumblers of wine and then, in a ritual of escape, the boys put Otis Redding's Try a Little Tenderness on the turntable and perform a rite of hope. With hope, there is a way out!

dary flamenco artists such as Vicente Escudaro. Depite his internationally recognized virtuoso status, Montoya does not read a single note of music. Throughout his life, he has, in the most traditional sense, collected flamenco songs, and arranged, performed and preserved them for future generations.

Flamenco music is characterized by an elusive gypsy quality — darkness of key, rhythmic drive, and extravagant embellishment through improvisation. It is most closely associated with the Spanish gypsies, but musicologists find its roots in Indian and Arabic traditions as well.

Until Montoya gave European audiences their first full solo concert of flamenco music in 1948, it was seen essentially as an ensemble art blending words, music and movement.

The program for his Boston concert will include many of the traditional flamenco themes that have brought him overwhelming and universal acclaim.

Remaining tickets for the Carlos Montoya concert are priced at $17.50 and $16.50 and are available at the Jordan Hall box office (536-2412), and through Concertcharge, 497-1118. Subscriptions to the 1987-88 Wang Celebrity Series are available by calling 482-2595.

B.U. Opera Theatre presents Transformations

Boston University Opera Theatre presents Conrad Susa's Transformations, an opera based on Anne Sexton's poetry. Performances are Thursday, Nov. 19 at 8 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 20 at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m.; and a Nov. 22 Sunday matinee at 3 p.m. in the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Ave. Tickets are priced at $8 and $6; $4 for students, seniors and Boston University Faculty/Staff/Alumni. For ticket information, please call 266-2549.

Transformations is a hilarious and chilling American re-telling of Grimm's Fairy tales including Snow White, Hansel & Gretel, Rapunzel and Rumpelstiltskin. The texts, penned by the late Pulitzer-Prize winning Boston poet Anne Sexton, are set to jazzy and surprising music by composer Conrad Susa.

Each poem is introduced by a prologue in which Ms. Sexton creates a uniquely contemporary vantage point from which to view the tale. To underscore her imagery drawn from American culture of the 1940's and 50's, Conrad Susa has created a delightful and varied musical palette that draws as freely from American popular music of the Swing eras as it does from more traditional operatic writing.

Transformations is directed by Will Graham and John Haber, with musical direction by Carol Lucas. For more information, please call 353-3345.

Edmundton Mall

The world's largest mall, the West Edmonton Mall in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, is so huge that it's been called The Eighth Wonder of the World. No wonder! The statistics are staggering: 5.2 million square feet in size (or 108 football fields); 53 women's shoe stores; 187 women's fashion stores; 138 eateries; 11 anchor stores; 19 optical outlets; two car dealerships; and 828 shops and service agencies. That's just for openers.

There's also a National Hockey League-size ice rink; 19 movie theaters; Fantasyland, the world's biggest amusement park with 47 rides, including the Drop of Doom; a dolphin show; art exhibitions; an 18-hole miniature golf course modeled after Pebble Beach in California; World Waterpark with 22 water slides, and a five-acre wave pool; a 160-acre Game Farm; a submarine ride where visitors glide past real sharks, barracuda, tropical fish, and coral reefs; and a reproduction of the Santa Maria, which floats on the mall's indoor lake.

If you feel that you need more than one day to see it all and shop it all, look no further than the Fantasyland Hotel. Of the 360 rooms, 120 are theme rooms, where guests can slumber in Arabian ("1001 Nights"), Polynesian, Hollywood, truck, Roman, or Victorian coach decor.

Feeling hungry or thirsty? Then head for the 35-store Gourmet Court with everything from French fries to calamari to Japanese shish kebab. Prefer the zip of Cajun and Creole food? Then visit the replica of Bourbon Street in New Orleans, where your food is served with the sounds of Jazz, Dixieland, and Blues.

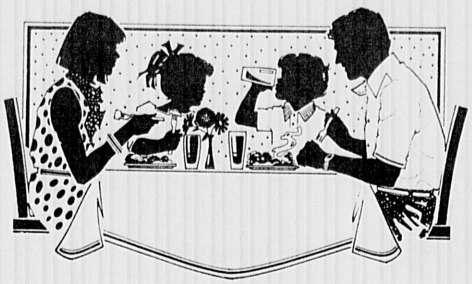

Shopping anyone? If you've never been to the tony designer shops in Europe, here's your chance. You'll find them in this mall on Europa Boulevard, a copy of Paris's Rue du St. Honore. Crucci, Cartier, Saint Laurent, Ralph Lauren, and Courreges all sell their wares here.

The brainchild of four Iranian brothers — Nader, Eskander, Raphael, and Bahman Ghermezian — the West Edmonton Mall is run by their family firm, Triple Five Corp. Originally opened in 1981, the West Edmonton Mall had 226 shops. By 1983, Phase Two has been completed with the hockey rink, Fantasyland, zoo exhibits, additional stores and eateries. Phase Three, which opened in 1985, included the Waterpark.

If you're wondering why Edmonton shoppers should have all the fun, don't despair. The Ghermezians are proposing an even larger project, The Mall of America, on the site of the Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, Minn., a suburb of Minneapolis.

The West Edmonton Mall is open Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, noon to 6 p.m. For information, call 403-444-5200.

TO YOUR HEALTH

Choate-Symmes, quality medical attention

Choate-Symmes Health Services, two private, acute care community hospitals in Woburn and Arlington, and the Regional Health Center in Wilmington are a comprehensive health care delivery system. The three consolidated in 1981 to form Choate-Symmes Health Services and have been meeting the health care needs of area residents since the first decade of this century.

Choate-Symmes, a 305-bed facility, has been a source of comfort and quality medical attention to the members of the Arlington Community, providing an outstanding variety of inpatient, outpatient, home care and community services.

Both Choate and Symmes hospitals have maximum care Intensive Care Units and 24-hour Emergency Walk-In Center known for their caring, professional medical staff. Chief of the Emergency Room at Symmes is Dr. Michael Erdos, an infectious disease specialist.

"We're here during the night and week-end hours when other health care alternatives are unavailable," Dr. Erdos said.

Pre-marital blood tests, tuberculosis skin tests, confidential pregnancy and AIDS testing are offered in the Emergency Room.

Committed to serving the needs of the older adult community, Symmes has special Geriatric Acute Care Units with a top-rated nursing staff which provides reassurance and quality medical care.

A popular option offered at Symmes is the Surgical Day Care facility, where one-day surgery patients are cared for and may return home the same day, for operations such as cataract surgery or minor gynecological procedures. Opthalmic laser (eye) treatments also are done by appointment on an outpatient basis. A decade ago, virtually none of this service was performed on outpatients. Endoscopic diagnostic procedures (gastrointestinal and pulmonary) are provided to outpatients, and oncology services follow a similar daily routine of availability. Optional Overnight Stay is offered as well.

The hospitals offer full Diagnostic Laboratory and X-Ray Services, and have outstanding oncology and cancer treatment units. One nurse said, "If a person in my family was diagnosed with cancer, I'd bring him to Choate-Symmes, because I'd know he'd be getting the best care."

A 65-year-old Arlington resident, Helene Nelson, diagnosed with cancer in May, 1986, credits Symmes surgeons and nurses with the remission of the disease.

"I have nothing but the best to say about the Symmes medical staff," Mrs. Nelson said. "They are compassionate, tender and they prescribed the right thing."

The hospital own a mobile CT-scanner and offer Argon laser treatment.

Top plastic surgeons are based at Choate-Symmes, as well as Rebabilitation Services which include physical and occupational therapy and speech/language pathology.

Social Work and Enterostomal Services and Nutritional Counseling are among the acclaimed services offered by Choate-Symmes.

Social Work Services traditionally have functioned on a stand-ready basis, and continue to counsel patients in oncology and emergency situations involving diabetes, psychiatric and rape crisis.

Grown to the largest of its kind in the state, Lifeline, a personal emergency response system for the frail or elderly living alone, recently signed up its 212th subscriber. With one press of a button worn on a neckchain, the Emergency Room at Symmes is notified the subscriber needs help.

Older adults enjoy Sunday Brunch for Seniors and Supper Club programs, held in the hospital cafeteria. Hot meals, good company and lively speakers are provided, all for $3.50.

Choate-Symmes also offers the WIC (Women, Children & Infant) program, a federally funded nutrition program for mothers who qualify and the Meals-On-Wheels program.

The American Diabetes Association's second largest chapter meets the second Tuesday of each month in the Symmes Hospital cafeteria, and the hospital is fast emerging as one of the leading treatment centers for diabetes, particularly gestational (that which develops during pregnancy).

The Caulfield Center at Choate Hospital provides a host of mental health help, including Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment.

The Pediatric/Adolescent Unity at Choate Hospital, staffed by a professional group of concerned physicians, offers experienced care for your child.

Community Health Education programs include cancer and hypertension screenings, stop smoking clinics, assertiveness training, first aid and CPR training, and Since 1979, Physicians Weight Loss Centers has helped thousands of Americans lose millions of pounds. We're a national organization with over 270 centers operating in the United States, and now Canada. We currently service over 35,000 patients daily.

The Arlington Center, at 22 Mill Street, has been open since January of 1986. We have helped over one thousand patients lose their weight.

We've aligned ourselves with the medical community acting as a bona fide support service by treating the non-emergent, overweight patients. Under close medical supervision, our patients lose a guaranteed three pounds each week.

Patients are taught how to plan nutritional well-balanced meals consisting of grocery store foods. Our Behavioral Guidance programs show the patient how to identify and then modify poor eating habits so they can stay slim forever.

The real strength of our program lies in our dedicated and compassionate staff...our center physician, Dr. Gigi Girgis, our director, our manager, and our staff nurses...caring professionals who understand the frustration of coping with a weight problem. We consider each of our patients' successes as personal victories.

We have restored trust in the weight loss industry. We invite you to join our center to witness the integrity and uncompromising service we provide to all our patients. See for yourself why Physicians Weight Loss Center is built on integrity and backed by results.

CAR CARE CORNER
By Dan Hogan, Service Manager

The valves line up on top of the cylinders, and there are two of them for each cylinder—an intake valve, which lets the gas/air mixture into the cylinder, and the exhaust valve, which lets the burned gases out...The valves want to open a precise amount, then shut tightly and completely when they're supposed to...Happily, most modern engines have valves that keep themselves adjusted, so you don't have to worry about them...but some older cars have a valve arrangement that needs periodic adjusting...When valves get out of adjustment, you can hear them—they'll make a ticking noise when the engine's running...If you begin to notice a ticking noise from the engine, look up your favorite mechanic and ask him about the matter.

The technicians at PETER FULLER OLDS are ASE certified. We keep a computerized history of all cars serviced here to notify you of preventative maintenance. Open 8-5, Tel. 924-8100, M/C, Visa & A/E accepted. We are located within walking distance to public transportation. Come to PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner."

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit – alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts – is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts.* The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.

Town meeting ends in flurry

Frontage requirement maintained, leaves okay

By SUSAN DIMMOCK
Special to the Star

After spending the first two sessions of fall Town Meeting haggling over the first four warrant articles, the Town of Winchester disposed of the remaining 19 articles in a third and lengthy session last Thursday.

Decisions on most of Articles 5 through 23 were reached with little or no debate during the four-hour meeting. Town Moderator John Sullivan seemed to echo the sentiments of most of those in attendance when he commented shortly after the meeting ended at 11:30 p.m. that he was "glad to get out of there."

Snow Throwing Regulated

The meeting opened by amending the scope of Article 5, which had been originally designed to prohibit the throwing of snow, ice and leaves "onto any street, sidewalk, gutter or other public place within the town." At the conclusion of the previous session of Town Meeting, Noreen Arcari, chairman of the committee on government regulations suggested that the throwing of leaves was already covered in Chapter 11 of Winchester's bylaws.

As amended, Article Five would prohibit the depositing of snow and ice in the street other than in line with that which the town itself has plowed. "You can plow as the town plows," clarified Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia. A voice vote was then taken and the article was passed with no opposition.

Disposal of the next article was not quite as simple. Article Six proposed decriminalizating the throwing of snow and ice in the streets, which was prohibited in Article Five. Damaging the town's grass borders and carrying truck loads that cause litter, also forbidden by Winchester's bylaws, were to be included in the decriminalization process as well.

Muggia, who presented the selectmen-sponsored article, explained that this process would enable the creation of a ticketing procedure to let the town collect specific fees for the commission of these acts without having to bring the violators to the Winchester court, as the bylaws currently dictate.

Sgt. James Pierce of the Winchester Police Department praised the article as "quick, efficient and economical," saying that it would increase public safety by allowing on-the-spot citation of violators and by posing a deterrent to future offenders.

But one meeting member wondered exactly how much snow would be too much snow to leave in the street; Pierce answered that "common sense" would be the guiding force in making such decision. The sergeant also said that if a town plow left snow on a particular individual's property, the town would then give that person an assigned spot to which the snow could be removed.

If the operator of a private plow were caught depositing snow illegally, Pierce continued, he or she would be fined. If such snow were found already deposited near a certain house, though, the owner of the house would be fined.

One man asked Pierce to explain the article's reference to damaging grass borders. Pierce responded that the digging up of grass and dirt, or the formation of ruts such as those which can result from parking a car, would be regarded as damage.

Arcari expressed dissatisfaction with the article, since a cited offender would still have the right to request a hearing, necessitating court action anyway. She also asked whether the article would create the need for a new town position to manage the clerical aspect of the ticketing procedure. She moved that the article be indefinitely postponed until such matters could be properly addressed.

Snow-Throwing Tickets Postponed

Although Town Council Douglas Randall explained that the police department would handle the entire ticketing process, the majority of meeting members supported Arcari's motion for indefinite postponement, 81-41. One Precinct Six resident claimed that Article Six would wrongfully relieve the town of its responsibility to prove a citizen's guilt, saying that now "the onus is on you to go to court to prove your innocence."

Planning Board Chairman Maryann McCall-Taylor then presented Article Seven, involving the regulation of irregularly-shaped building lots within single residence districts RDA-20, RBD-10 and RDC-15. Taylor explained that this article pertained to owners of single houses who wished to add an irregularly-shaped lot to their original lot; she expressed the planning board's concern over who would maintain the odd lot. Thus, if a proposed addition would exceed a certain degree of irregularity, calculated by the Planning Board as its build factor, the Planning Board would disallow it.

Selectman Mark Lombardi questioned the Planning Board's judgment in limiting its regulation to three single residence districts. He wondered whether such a narrow scope might not allow developers from neighboring towns to come into unregulated districts and do "hocus-pocus." McCall-Taylor responded that the proposed districts were the only ones selected for regulation because they were the only ones "built up" sufficiently to cause potential problems.

One meeting member expressed concern that Article Seven might hinder Winchester's search for land suitable for low- and moderate-income housing. He said that the proposed regulation might prevent various property-owners from selling excess land, land which could be used for such housing. This concern, as well as that of Lombardi, however, was overridden by the meeting vote. Article Seven received the support of two-thirds of the meeting members, a majority required for all zoning regulations, and was passed in a 99-24 vote.

Historic Lyceum Block re-emerges downtown

1851 building predates town hall by 30 years

By DON CUMMINGS
Special to the Star

The Lyceum Block, located along Mt. Vernon Street adjacent to the Main Street rotary, has been considered a Winchester eyesore for many years. But after the blueprints of local architect Alan Schoenegge become a reality, passersby should view a much improved aspect.

For some, the face might look familiar, since the block of buildings will be restored to its pre-1950 shingle-style appearance.

"We're providing it with a proper historical restoration," says Schoenegge, "By bringing back replicated white cedar shingles, pine window trim, gold leaf signage, copper flashing, granite water paving, and an ornamental cornice to cap the building."

Originally built in 1851, the Lyceum Block predates the Town Hall by more than 30 years. In its day, it provided the forum for all manner of meetings, entertainment and art. Such local luminaries as Wendell Phillips, Rev. Horace Bushnell and Oliver Wendell Holmes wove their magic within its walls. The original building was dressed in the Gothic Revival style of architecture. The shingle style came after reconstruction following a fire at the turn of the century. After another fire in 1950, the four-story bulding lost its top two floors. Until now, its second floor wore an ugly stucco face.

Ellen Spence, chairman of the Winchester Historical Commission, is pleased about the reappearance of the old look.

"The architect was sensitive to the original type of look," says Spence, "and along with being historically accurate, it should also prove to be a real improvement in one of the town's prominent spots."

Water leakage and cracks in the stucco made an overhaul a necessity. Schoenegge attributes the historical restoration to the concern of owners Henry Quill and Lawrence Murray.

"It was done because of their respect for the town's center," explains Schoenegge. "They wanted to provide an appropriate presence in the neighborhood."

Schoenegge anticipates the completed restoration to occur early next year.

Cable contract to be reviewed

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The Board of Selectmen started the wheels turning in the three-year process to decide whether or not to renew Continental Cablevision's license Monday night.

The Board directed the town's Cable Advisory Committee to begin the process of ascertainment, a review by the committee and selectmen. In the next three years, the town will have the opportunity to renegotiate some of the terms of its contract with the cable company and to decide how long a contract it would like to sign.

Cable Advisory Committee Chairman Lawrence Worthen said that the town should start the process whether or not it chooses to renew the contract, because it could lose bargain-

SIC to expand counseling

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The School Committee has approved projects proposed by the School Improvement Council (SIC) at both the McCall Junior High and Winchester High School projects for the 1987-88 school year.

The high school received $10,758 from the state. The SIC plans to use $5,400 of that money to continue counseling services made available to students last year. The council agreed unanimously that counseling services should be expanded and that the school department should begin to look for another method of funding the counseling.

The second largest sum will be used to purchase an electronic imaging system. The system, which will cost $3,500, is used to project images from a computer to a large screen. It will be used initially in the math, social studies, and science departments, but will be available to all faculty members.

Landscaping is the next concern of the council. It plans to give $1,000 to the Parent Faculty Association and the Student Union. The two will be responsible for developing and implementing an exterior landscaping plan.

The remaining money will be spent on an arts display case.

The McCall council has $4,438 to work with and plans six different uses for the funds.

The largest chunk, $1,189, is allocated for field trip scholarships. Priority will be given to students who want to go on the school's annual trip to Washington. The trip costs $431. The council will offer $200 scholarships for the excursion.

Another $1,000 will fund the McCall

Could land trusts make housing affordable?

By KATE O'CONNOR
Special to the Star

Some 100 New Englanders gathered at the Church of the Epiphany last Saturday to discuss the problem of affordable housing and learn about one of its more innovative possible solutions — community land trusts.

They attended an 8-hour seminar sponsored by the Institute for Community Economics (ICE) of Greenfield, a group that promotes the establishment of land trusts as a way to reduce spiraling housing costs. The session, called "The Community Land Trust: An Innovation in Community Development" sought to attract residents with varying social and economic backgrounds to discuss the home ownership problem.

Chuck Matthei, an ICE spokesman, explained the principle of the "community land trust." Taking the land out of speculation and putting it under the control of a trust comprised of community members creates more affordable housing, he asserted. The trust buys a piece of property, retains ownership of the land, and helps future homeowning families obtain bank financing for the value of their home, not the land.

The idea of a community land trust grew out of concerns for land preservation and affordable housing, which have accelerated as the real estate market heats up. Creation of a land trust is not a solution to the low- and moderate-income housing problem, but Matthei says it does have distinct advantages: housing remains affordable and available; and the money put towards the real estate will be appropiately spent.

Community land trusts, says Matheu, offer "another layer of protection to long-term affordability. We have to do more than simply throw money at the problem, but to take into consideration today's and tomorrow's needs."

Referring to land trusts as nonprofit and democratic housing projects that encourage representatives from both rural and urban societies, Matthei said the movement recognizes the need to reach out to citizens of diverse communities.

Community land trusts currently exist in Greenfield, where ICE is based, in Trenton, N.J., and in Burlington, Vt. The purpose varies from community to community. In urban areas, the sole concern is to purchase properties and reconstruct them. In rural areas, the trusts farmland.

"The theory is that the owner gets back whatever he puts in, plus an adjustment for inflation during the period, but does not receive the added value that the community has given the home," Matthei said. Because land won't be sold and resold, there is no increase in interest. And because no one makes profits, the housing itself stays affordable for the next buyer.

"The focus of such a workshop in Winchester is to educate the community," explained Richard Witt, asst. Rector of the Church of the Epiphany. "It is part of our commitment to educate ourselves, the residents of Winchester, about housing opportunities."

Witt believes that the issue of affordable housing has not been addressed seriously in communities like Winchester. Introducing such an idea to suburban Boston is "interesting", he says, because people from communities other than those where the community land trust is successful can voice unbiased and "seemingly innocent" opinions.

Winchester Selectman Tom Schmitt spoke of the concern with housing needs in Winchester and suburban Boston. He discussed the need for community interest in the issue of affordability. The concept of making housing affordable in a realistic way, such as the land trust,is a novel one to Winchester, he said. Until now, there has been much contempt and debate over a long-range housing plan, he feld.

Instituting a community land trust in Winchester would introduce creative options to such a controversial problem. "If it can be done in a way that is compatible to the community, it will be easy," Schmitt explained.

"Although people favor the community land trust system they also favor conservatism. Many people in Winchester don't want to surrender open space." Winchester is a relatively concentrated town, with many houses contained in a compact area.

Schmitt eluded to the various ideas that might frighten Winchester residents away from the land trust idea. A primary concern, he felt, would be concern that a land trust would put pressure on the school system. Perhaps people would feel that an average land trust recipient would bring large numbers of school-age children into the community.

Another cause for concern would be the possibility of land trust isolation, creating a "ghettoized" section of town. The zoning law could also cause multiple units to develop in a single-unit home area. "We need to consider consensus , so as not to

Sunday, November 15

At 9:48 p.m. police observed a white male standing on the sidewalk on Main Street. The man had a black and blue left eye, according to police reports.

The man said he was from Wakefield. A computer check showed default warrants on the man from the Woburn, Concord, and Springfield courts, police said.

The man was arrested on the default warrants, according to police.

At 8:14 p.m. police arrived at the scene of a single-car accident on High Street to find a 1981 Chevrolet Chevette wrapped around a tree, according to police reports.

The driver, a 17-year-old Woburn man, told police that an oncoming car travelling in the opposite direction forced him off the road and into the tree. No one was injured, according to police.

At 4:54 p.m. police were called to the scene of an accident on Cambridge Street near Bonnell Ford.

When the officers arrived at the scene, the drivers were exchanging paperwork. One of the drivers, a Ravine Road man, said his passenger had been injured in the accident and was complaining of neck and back pain. The passenger was taken to Winchester Hospital by ambulance, according to police.

The accident involved a rear-end collision between a 1983 Subaru and a 1987 Subaru, police said.

Saturday, November 14

The cars of a Wyomissing, Penn., man currently living in Brighton and a Wakefield woman collided at the intersection of Highland Avenue and Winthrop Street at 9:09 p.m., according to police reports.

The man, driving a 1978 Volkswagon Rabbit was heading west on Winthrop Street Extension. The woman's 1978 Chevrolet station wagon was driving on Highland Avenue when the accident occured, according to police.

The man also knocked down a street sign on Winthrop Street, police said.

The man was given a citation for violating the right of way in an intersection, according to police reports.

Friday, November 13

Police arrived at Quigley Court at 1:15 a.m. to find emergency medical technicians helping a woman who had facial lacerations and contusions, according to police reports.

Police overheard the woman tell EMTs she had been punched and kicked in the head and body, police said.

While the EMTs attented to the woman, police spoke to a neighbor who had been babysitting in the house when the assault took place. The woman said she was upstairs when she heard a commotion in the driveway of the house. When she looked out, she saw a fight between two other women and the neighbor. Pushing and shoving between the women resulted in a fight that moved into the kitchen of the house, the witness told police.

The witness told police she saw the woman being repeatedly punched by the two other women while she was lying on the floor, police said.

Another resident of the house told police the names of the two women. He said they had come to the house with two men, also known to the witness, who described their car. Police informed the dispatcher to give a description of the car over the police radio.

The male resident told police he did not witness the incident because he was in an adjacent room with one of the men during the fight, police said.

At this point Woburn police called Winchester to say they had stopped a car fitting the description and had arrested the driver for operating under the influence of liquor and had also arrested a male passenger. The driver and the other man were identified by name as the same men who had been to the victim's house earlier, according to police reports.

Police in the emergency room at Winchester Hospital questioned the victim, who told police she had been kicked in the face by women wearing work boots, according to police.

Winchester police asked the Woburn police to hold the women passengers of the car. The Winchester officers went to the spot where the car was stopped and spoke to the two women, according to reports.

Police reported that one of the women said she had been kicked by the Quigley Court woman. When police asked the suspect if she had kicked the woman, she said yes, according to police reports. The officer noted in his report that he saw no visible injury on the woman, nor did she complain of any pain.

She told police she had been assaulted outside the house by the Quigley Court woman while trying to get into the house to get her belongings out. She said the other woman saw the assault and came to help her by punching the Quigley Court woman, according to police.

The other woman told police she did not assault the victim. In his report the investigating officer said noted that he saw blood stains on her hands and abrasions on her right ring finger. He also said that her right shoe, a tan, work boot, appeared to be splattered with blood on the second lace from the bottom, the tongue and the right side.

Both women were wearing tan, work boots, which were kept for evidence, police said.

The Quigley Court woman was treated for a laceration above her right eyebrow and nasal contusions and later released, according to police.

Flags of many nations hang in Gifford Hall at the Crawford Memorial Church Christmas Faire.

Methodist Church readies Christmas Faire Dec. 11, 12

Gifford Hall at the Crawford Methodist Church will be decorated with flags from many nations for the chuch's Christmas Faire, beginning Friday, Dec. 11, from noon to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 12, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The flags were loaned by flag collector and co-chairman Fred Harrington. A world traveler and gift collector. Harrington brings an international flair to his gift table. New items at a substantial discount include one-of-a-kind gifts from England, Wales, France, Italy, Germany, Scotland, Denmark, the Netherlands, Japan, Mexico, Korea, Taiwan, Portugal, Hong Kong and the U.S.

There will be an array of pewter, glass, crystal, china, wood carvings and period pieces, both functional and decorative.

The public is invited to the event. Proceeds will go to the Church Organ Fund.

Missionary speaks on global awareness

At St. Mary's Parish there will be a program Sunday, Nov. 22, entitled, "Mission Today." It will be held in the Parish Hall from 7 to 9 p.m. and will include exhibits, a VCR presentation, discussion and sharing. It will be led by Sister Judith Sheridan, a member of the parish.

As a missionary with 16 years of experience in cross-cultural living and sharing, Sister Sheridan is a proponent of human bonds on many levels.

The public is invited to the program. High school students and young adults are particularly welcome.

Church organizes Christmas Goose Fair Dec. 4 and 5

The Women of Epiphany are preparing for the Christmas Goose Fair which will be held on the afternoon and evening of Friday, Dec. 4, and on the morning and afternoon of Saturday Dec. 5 at the Church of the Epiphany.

This year's fair chairman is Joan Wallwork, who is coordinating the efforts of dozens of helpers.

This year's fair will continue the three-year tradition of having a gourment cafe serving food during the fair. Marie Lee is buying huge quantities of food and persuading many Winchester Episcopalians to serve as waiters and waitresses for an hour or two on the fourth and fifth.

The white elephant table has for many years been a source of profit for the Women of Epiphany and for the charities to which the group contributes and also a source of "new" treasures for the bargain hunters who come to the fair. Frieda Lang is in charge this year.

Many local craftspeople set up their tables at the Christmas Goose Fair every year. A number are members of the church who contribute what they make; others are professionals from other towns. Their presence makes it possible for Winchester residents to do much of their Christmas gift shopping without traffic and parking problems. Ann Berger is in charge of that area.

A large number of elderly people and others who are able to help are telephoning fellow-parishioners, to ask them to contribute to the bake table. They report positive responses. A large selection of desserts is anticipated. Hilde Zerwekh found the telephoners and is collecting their responses.

Mary Govoni has been reminding all her friends to bring her their discarded costume jewelry. Peggy McCreery will once again be taking orders for Scandinavian cutlery.

The Parish of the Epiphany has members skilled at sewing whom Teddy Poulos is coordinating. Chris Mouradian is in charge of knitting. Marge Kaufman and her friends are working on quilts.

On Saturday morning there will be a special fair downstairs in the Sunday School area for children. Sue Haskell and Sarah Egeler are providing games and entertainment.

Laurie Malouf is collecting dozens of boxes of adult and children's books and records for the fair. She will accept donations of used books.

The annual Christmas Goose Fair is a way for the Women of Epiphany to come together to work and provide fellowship within the group and to make a significant contribution to worthy causes. All townspeople are invited to the event.

Library to hold public speaking seminar Nov. 23

"Techniques in Oral Reading" will be the subject of the 7 p.m. Nov. 23 meeting of the International Training in Communication organization at the Winchester Library.

June Pietrantoni of Medford will give an educational session on storytelling. Evelyn Tyner of Medford will lead a session on impromptu speaking and poetry reading. After the business meeting chaired by Carolyn Johnson of Melrose, a workshop on playreading will be conducted by Dorothy-Elizabeth Tucker of Medford. Guests are welcome.

ITC training is open to anyone wishing to gain confidence by developing more effective public speaking and leadership skills.

The Winchester chapter of ITC, celebrating its 40th year, meets every second and fourth Monday at the Winchester Library. For further information, call Carol Johnson at 665-1796.

Methodist church holds junior fair

The junior and senior high youth of the Crawford Methodist Church will be participating in the Children's Faire to be held on Saturday, Dec. 12, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Church and Dix Streets, under the direction of co-chairpersons Janice Dowd and Barbara Hawkes.

There will be games, many crafts, such as decorating ginger bread houses, and face painting as well as a magic show performed by magician Peter O'Malley beginning at 1 p.m.

The fair activity follows the children's scavenger hunt last week, in which they collected donations of food, clothing and other needed items from church members, under the leadership of Hope Oliver and Don Sutton.

They delivered this collection to residents of the Pine Street Inn in Boston.

Chamber sponsors lighting ceremony

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce invites the community to its annual Christmas Lighting Ceremony and Stroll on Winchester Common Dec. 3 at 7 p.m.

The evening's activities will include caroling by the elementary school chorus, open house in many shops and businesses and perhaps a surprise visit by Santa Claus.

On Sunday, Dec. 6, from 2 to 4 p.m., the Winchester Recreation Department and the chamber will cosponsor a hayride through the center area. Picture-taking at Topsy Turvy with Santa will also be available on both Thursday and Sunday afternoons.

On Sunday, Nov. 29, the chamber invites interested residents to help decorate the light poles for the holidays. Volunteers will meet at the chamber office at 9:30 a.m.

Media assocation honors Kraus

The Massachusetts Association for Educational Media (MAEM) held its annual fall conference at the Quality Inn in Chicopee Nov. 1 and 2. A highlight of the two-day event was an award presented to Sen. Richard A. Kraus (4th Middlesex) at the conference banquet.

Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education, Kraus was honored for his support and efforts in assisting M.A.E.M. to propose legislation that would provide for a competitive grant program for public schools across the Commonwealth to upgrade their library media resources. Also recognized for her invaluable assistance to the Association was Janet Daisley, legislative aide to Kraus.

M.A.E.M. represents more than 600 school and college library media specialists throughout the Commonwealth.

Police will begin to enforce night parking rules

The Winchester Police Department will be starting to strictly enforce the all-night parking law for the winter months, according to Police Chief John McHugh.

Article IV, Section 8 of Winchester traffic regulations says night parking is prohibited. No vehicle except those of physicians, nurses or clergymen while in actual attendance upon the sick, may be parked on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 1 a.m. and 7 a.m. of any day.

Violators will be subject to a fine of $5 for each offense.

Team dinners boost morale

By ELAINE ROSEN
Special to the Star

Why is the Winchester High School football team outstanding year after year? Whether they win the Superbowl Division 1 championship [1986] or the Middlesex League championship, Winchester is always a strong team with a long football tradition.

One answer is a unique Friday evening dinner shared by team members and coaches. Each week different parents host the dinner and provide food for up to 100 people.

Traditionally, the parents of the team's captains head the group. This year the parents of co-captains Greg Winn and Frank Gianci, Pat and Richard Winn and Mary and Tony Gianci, coordinate the efforts. The team dinners are held at the Christopher Columbus Club, the Sons of Italy or the Elks' Club. These groups donate the use of their meeting halls.

"The food is always great and we really appreciate our parents' effort," said an enthusiastic player, Andy Sexeny.

"It's a chance to relax together on an informal basis and we really enjoy it," agreed senior player, Jon Furey.

Frank Gianci summed up the feelings of several teammates at his table. "This is a family effort; we are grateful for the support of our parents. This gives us a chance to all be together the night before a game and to build a positive team spirit."

The coaches agree that parents' participation is the most positive form of support they have seen in any town. Assistant coach John Pirani voices the appreciation of the coaching staff for the good food and atmosphere parents provide.

"They want to know how the practices are going," Pirani said. "They want to know how the team is doing, rather than just their own son. They seem to be selfless in their dedication and they really feel a part of the football program."

The players, parents and coaches follow a Friday pre-game ritual. Right after school the team has a short practice, instead of the full afternoon practices of the rest of the week. Then they go home to change for the dinner, meeting at about 5:30.

Meanwhile, the parents who are hosting for the evening bring in the food. Dinner is generally pasta in some form, salad, soft drinks and several kinds of dessert -- cake, ice cream and brownies.

"The quantity of food is amazing," says Pat Winn. "When lasagna is served, there are at least eight large trays full, each one weighing about 20 pounds. Ten cases of soda are consumed each week. Parents either bake and cook themselves or buy the food. In any case, with the kids going back for seconds, we have to be prepared."

After dinner the team reviews films of the previous year's game and talks about strategies and key plays. Says Coach Pirani, "We prepare mentally. We re-define what we've worked on physically during the week."

After this short meeting, players join in a pep rally with the cheerleaders and then head home. Players are expected to be home early and to get a good night's sleep.

Keepng the players together for a relaxing and early evening may have been the impetus for starting this program. Coach Pirani remembers the first dinner about 10 years ago, hosted by Mrs. Ginger Maggio when co-captains were Wayne Maggio and Donnie Allard.

There were informal dinners at first, in homes when the numbers were small, because only the 'starters' were invited. However, for the past few years parents expanded the dinners to include underclassmen, junior varsity players and cheerleaders.

When the numbers increased, the members of the Cristopher Columbus Club donated their hall and hosting duties were borne by several parents each week. This year a group of 12 parents of junior players hosted a dinner at "The China Moon" in Stoneham.

Vincent E. Larocco, principal of Winchester High School, praises the efforts of the parents. Larocco says, "These dinners bring parents and kids together in a positive way. Rather than the kids feeling deprived that they have to stay in on Friday nights, parents provide a special dinner for them. It helps develop a sense of family between parents, faculty and kids. There is a lot of sharing and a good feeling of bringing people together."

In addition to the Friday dinners, Coach Manny Marshall meets informally with fathers of team members on Monday evenings. He plays the video tape of the previous Saturday game in a post-mortem session.

For this meeting, the Winchester Savings Bank donates a room. The fathers collect money through the year to help defray some of the team's expenses.

These efforts have made the football tradition a strong part of Winchester High School athletics. This year 34 boys came out for the freshman team, almost one third of all the freshmen boys. Almost twenty percent of all the boys in the high school play football.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.
Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight
New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss
BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.
No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."
There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).
Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.
Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.
"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.
The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.
Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept.W14 , Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Retired African archbishop to address parish

The Most Rev. Philip W.R. Russell, retired archbishop of Capetown, South Africa, will be the preacher and celebrant this Sunday at 10 a.m. at the Parish of the Epiphany.

Russell is the first occupant of the Coburn Chair for theology for the mission of the church. A native of South Africa, he is a graduate of the University of South Africa and Saint Paul's Theological College in Grahamstown. After serving parishes in Natal, he became suffragan bishop of Capetown in 1966. He was the bishop of Port Elizabeth and Natal before becoming archbishop of Capetown in 1981. He had served in that post for five years when he was succeeded by the Most Rev. Desmond Tutu.

The Outreach Committee of the parish is receiving offerings of non-perishable foods that will be used to fill Thanksgiving baskets for families in the city.

Unitarian church establishes memorial fund

A memorial fund to commemorate the life of Rev. Robert A. Storer, minister and minister emeritus of the Winchester Unitarian Church for 37 years, is being raised among his many friends in the congregation, the town and the area.

"Bob Storer, who died last March, was involved in the whole fabric of Winchester," said Thornton Stearns, fund chairman, in announcing the drive. "Because of his great humanity, it seems appropriate to establish a memorial that will continue to serve people." The goal of the fund is to raise $50,000, the income from which will provide an annual internship for a divinity student to serve under the direction of the minister.

Rev. Charles Reinhardt, the present minister, said that the fund would provide some financial aid to a student, and would allow the student hands-on parish experience and guarantee the church's financial ability to have a young person every year. "Bob would have liked this idea because he was so interested in the education of young people," Reinhardt said.

Among the many activities in town which Storer was involved a favorite was the Winchester Players, a group he served many years as director and sometimes actor. He was among the original ministers and priests to sponsor the ecumenical movement in town. He was a leader in the motion choir movement and wrote dramatizations and special services for use in all churches.

Gifts to the Robert A. Storer Memorial Fund may be made to the Winchester Unitarian Church at 478 Main St. The fund committee comprises Thornton and Phyllis Stearns, Rev. Charles Reinhardt, Celena Bradley, Bettina Harrison, Richard Spencer, Roy Cummings, Constance Blanchard and Herbert Black.

The Lyceum Block at 2-8 Mt. Vernon St. has reached a crucial phase of its renovation. The scaffolding came off the Mt. Vernon St. face Tuesday, revealing the authentic replication of the old facade for the first time. The old stucco still remains on the other sides. George Breadmore, a worker on the project, climbs over the scaffolding at top. Below left, the new shingles are visible. Below right, John Breadmore takes a plank from a fellow worker on the side facing the rotary. (Paul Drake Photos)

NEWS NOTES

Saltmarsh supports veterans' tax legislation

Legislation to increase the real estate tax exemption of qualifying veterans organizations has been passed by both the House and Senate and is now awaiting action by the Governor, Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh announced early this month.

"This is good legislation designed to help veterans organizations," said Saltmarsh, "and it is very appropriate that it was passed and sent to the governor the week we celebrated Veterans Day."

Saltmarsh said he supported the bill because it will, with local approval, increase the present tax exemption for real and personal property owned by veterans organizations from $400,000 to a new level of $700,000.

"In many ways this increase simply reflects the normal inflationary growth in the value of property," Saltmarsh explained.

Saltmarsh said the increased exemption would "Continue to allow veterans organizations to help veterans instead of channeling off funds to pay taxes."

"I certainly hope and expect the measure will be acted upon favorably by the governor," concluded Saltmarsh.

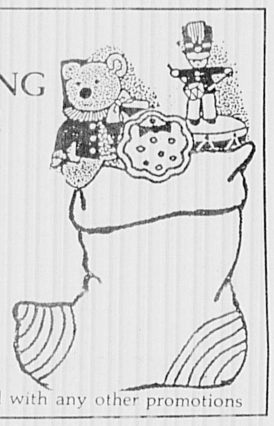

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, our papers will be published and delivered a day early. Please note the special Thanksgiving advertising deadlines:

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

To revive a center

The citizen's petition article at Town Meeting, Article 12, that called for the restriction of liquor licenses to the center of town was an odd beast of government, an evolution of ideas, a denouement.

It was offered and then withdrawn by the same group, causing hardly a ripple on the parliamentary waters. Charles Tseckares signed warrant for the sponsors and one of his colleagues recommended to Town Meeting that it be indefinitely postponed, to which the members readily agreed.

The issue had arrived stillborn before the public, solved before it became a real problem.

The article had as its roots the protection and nurturing of the downtown business district, the newly old-fashioned area called Winchester Center.

The article's proponents wanted to make sure all public houses that are issued permits for drinking find themselves in that district.

What is amusing is that the sponsors convinced themselves that the legislation wasn't necessary to achieve their ends. The situation tends to break their way anyway.

Dark rumors had been circulating that the article was aimed at poor Ginny Tahnk, the operator of the Gourmet Kitchen at 910 Main St. Tahnk has made noises about being interested in a liquor license for her liquorless restaurant, which evolved from a cooking school.

While a move to restrict licences to downtown definitely puts severe limits on any plans Tahnk might have to serve booze, there is certainly nothing personal in such a move. She just happens to be the only potential applicant for the third Winchester license, now on the market after having been wrested under duress from the old Dover Grille.

There is a great temptation to package the empty Winchester Terrace location of the former Grille with the available license, a convenient offering attractive to any enterprise capable of tackling the task of running a "100-seat, superior quality" establishment. After all, owning a large seating area and high-tech kitchen without the ability to serve drinks is next to worthless in today's world. So the capacity might be wasted.

On the other hand, where else in the center is there enough space to host the third license? One can only imagine someone buying a whole building and demolishing the walls between what are now boutiques.

While there is certainly no reason why the permit can't remain with the Winchester Terrace premises, there should be no theoretical limitation on the location of a superior class restaurant in town.

Article 12's backers were nervous that the economic boomlette they are trying to generate in the center might dissipate if viable establishments were to spring up in other parts of town.

However, they need not worry. The parking restrictions will in all likelihood save them the trouble of creating a new zoning bylaw. The center's businesses are exempt from having to provide parking for their clients. Therein lies the key.

The Gourmet Kitchen would have to find land somewhere nearby for parking. Land doesn't come cheap in Winchester anymore. Unless Tahnk can make a deal for parking with a large landowner in the vicinity, she can't make her expanded restaurant pass zoning bylaws already on the books.

The burden of parking provision virtually ensures that the next holder of the third license will operate from the center.

Town Meeting members felt good about their rubber-stamp vote to deny an article being withdrawn by its authors. It was a vote for democracy and free enterprise, a political no-brainer.

Of course, the reality is that with constraints such as those imposed by the town on any new restaurant that wants to serve liquor, the old Grille location is the only viable place for a wet restaurant at this time.

There is no question the town needs a third place to get a decent meal where the people can get something with which to wash it down. Winchester could probably support a fourth and maybe even a fifth such establishment.

The selectmen can confer available licenses on any restaurant they deem fit. The eatery must pass through all other boards' hoops, seat 100 or more and be superior, but after that the issuance is at the sole discretion of the selectmen.

The town can vote to increase the number of licenses up to the state limit with a majority referendum, but doing so will not promote the restaurant business outside the center. The zoning restrictions make it economically unattractive.

So we're back where we started with not much choice of nightlife in town.

Restrictions on the sale of alcohol have been a subject of American discussions for much of this century. New England retains some of its Puritan enjoinment against alcoholic consumption.

In a way, it's too bad. One feature that might draw the town together a bit would be a pub in the old English style.

It is true that insurance and police costs go up when an establishment serves more booze than food, but the pub has often served as a meeting place for those seeking a respite from loneliness, some warm company and a place to spend a few hours.

In the insular world of today's suburbs, a central gathering place with a wood stove and a pint might be a comfort.

Visiting Nurses thank Winchester

TO THE EDITOR:

Our thanks to the citizens of Winchester for their support of the Free Care Fund of Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Inc., during our recent fundraising efforts.

We also wish to thank McCord Winn for their generous donation during our Free Care Fund Telethon.

Success is near as we have $9,000 of the $10,000 telethon goal. There is still time to send in Free Care Fund pledges which can make the difference in reaching our goal.

The Free Care Fund provides help for patients who need care and do not have the means or the insurance coverage to pay the cost of services.

Last year Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Inc., provided more than $42,000 of free or reduced-fee services which benefited 197 patients.

Our thanks again to all in Winchester who have helped the Free Care Fund.

Pet lover decries new dog bill

TO THE EDITOR:

The worst and most expensive anti-dog, anti-dog-owner bill ever filed in Massachusetts was very quietly filed recently by the new subcommittee on dog laws, for the M.S.P.C.A.

The subcommittee of the House Committee on Counties consists of Rep. Daniel Bosley (D. of North Adams), Rep. Shannon O'Brien (D. of aide to Rep. James Brett (D. of Dor- aid to Rep. James Brett (D. of Dorchester).

Both Reps are new at the State House, and have held poorly attended "hearings," (with no notice to the public), in several locations, statewide, on dog-related issues, during August and September, with the M.S.P.C.A. lobbyists always there.

The bill they came up with would set up an all-powerful Animal Control Commission, which would be the only agency for all animal (dog and cat) matters in the state, dictating every single law and decision. A real police state.

It would act as a court (Kangaroo Court), for any and all "violations" of dog laws, decide on fines and sentences, decide if your dog is "dangerous" or "potentially dangerous," and other serious matters, and the dog owners only chance would be an appeal to a district court within three days of the Commission's decision.

If your dog is "dangerous" or "potentially dangerous," it would have to wear a red collar, or a yellow collar, for either category, and you would have to have a sign on your lawn announcing your dog's status.

You would also have to have $100,000 worth of liability insurance.

Since this is getting difficult in many states, and impossible to obtain in other states, you can guess what happens to the unfortunate dogs. They are "put to sleep," permanently.

The bill is a condensed version of the original "Animal Commission" bill with its "Special Permit Granting Authority," increased license fees for dogs ($15 unless your dog is spayed or neutered), increased kennel license fees (such kennel licenses are hard to obtain without this bill), and a general crackdown on pet ownership.

The big difference is that the "Commission" bill has been combined with the new "Dangerous Dog" bill, which is so virulently anti-dog, that people who read it can't believe it, but it's all too real. Things like, if a dog is "observed" off a leash, and off of its owner's property three times within a year, by the animal control officer (who has been hired, trained and licensed by the commission), the dog is designated as a "potentially dangerous dog."

Both categories of dogs must be tattooed with a special number, inside the upper lip, or inside the upper left rear thigh, have a special, extra registration, and special, escape-proof fenced enclosures.

There are 15 pages of frightening sections of this bill, which read like something out of a Gestapo paper.

We know that the 10-day holding period for lost dogs in our pounds would be cut down to five impossible days, because that's what the M.S.P.C.A. did in 1973, and it took my family and me two years to regain our rightful 10 days, fighting the M.S.P.C.A. all the way at the State House.

The best guesses, so far, as to the cost of this commission are, at least $250,000 a year, for salaries and expenses, so the taxpayers get socked again (dog license fees won't cover it, because the dog population will be cut down severely).

Please write your opposition to this police state bill to: Rep. Richard A. Voke, Room 237, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133 (Tel. 722-2380), and Sen. Patricia McGovern, Room 212, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133 (Tel. 722-1481) both Chairmen of Ways and Means Committee — or your representative and senator. We already have "vicious dog" laws on the books.

Artist backs Griffin's museum

TO THE EDITOR:

As the outgoing president of the Winchester Art Association and a resident of the town for the past 27 years, I would like to affirm heartily the prospect of locating the Arthur Griffin Grist Mill in Winchester Center.

During the years I have lived and exhibited here, the center has been through difficult times. It is now becoming an inviting place to spend time. The Grist Mill Museum would make it an even more attractive place. Winchester Center would be culturally, as well as commercially, a picturesque New England town to visit and return to.

Arthur Griffin's 50 years of photographic images celebrate New England, Boston, and Winchester, his home town. How fitting it would be to gaze upon pictures of nature in all seasons and then step outside his handsome museum to stroll past the duck pond, the historic town hall, and the well-maintained common park. School children, for example, could see New England as it was in the '30s and '40s, or ordinary and famous people who lived here and were photgraphed by Arthur Griffin. They could connect to a sense of history and region without leaving Winchester Center. Art lovers and specialists would be drawn to the center because Arthur Griffin has generously offered to share his exhibition space with other town artists. In the center which has supported the three-year-old Winchester Art Association Gallery there would be a big, beautiful space in which to enjoy the visual arts.

To me, the crucial location for the Grist Mill Museum is the center of town. The center is the heart of Winchester. My great pleasure is to travel, to discover and to paint the heart of a place. To find the unique and particular charm of its buildings which also offer the thirsty traveler a cup of coffee.

In Arthur Griffin's work there is a sense of place, craftsmanship and time which has made it famous. How fortunate we would be if Winchester would accept it and we could find the Grist Mill in the center.

Resident urges others to see Griffin's works

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently, I had an occasion to visit the Main Street branch office of the Winchester Savings Bank. In the lobby of the bank there is an exhibit of the works of Arthur Griffin, truly one of the world's greatest photographers.

Everyone should visit this exhibit (there is also one at the Winchester Public Library) to fully appreciate the beauty captured by Mr. Griffin's lens' eye. No written description could possibly do justice to these magnificent scenes of natural beauty.

We are extremely fortunate to have both Mr. Griffin and his works here in Winchester. Both are National Treasures of which Winchester can be very proud.

Starting school means a lot — to a three year old

By TERRY MAROTTA

In September, at three-and-a-fraction-years old, our little boy started school.

On a golden fall morning, I dropped off this third child of mine, this last frail bridge to the earnest young woman I was once with my high hopes and by bluejeans. He held tight to my hand when they rang the schoolbell; dropped it finally; cast a last baleful look in my direction; and shuffled off through the doors, round-shouldered, eyes on the ground, like a Lifer just entering the Big House.

I weathered a quick moist squall of mother-tears, and gulped hard; briefly considered shopping uncontrollably, or boarding an airplane, or calling up some old drinking pals; but instead turned homeward to take up the weighty mantle of adulthood.

The child, for his part, got through the morning. When I picked him up at noon, he said he'd learned a thing call ed the Hokey Pokey Dance. The following day, he'd played a game called The Cheese Be's Alone (the Farmer in the Dell, we figured). By the close of the week, he seemed quite perky climbing into the car. "How was school today?," I asked. "Fine. I hit a boy with a stick," he told me. And added, by way of reassurance, "It's OK: he liked it."

But then the trouble began. He grew more attached to me suddenly. It got so no one else could dress him or help him in the bathroom. Once, with me away on the only overnight of my fall, he refused to open his eyes in the morning: "Because when I do, I won't see Mummy."

Then too began the trouble with the cats, "scary cats", he called them. He drew dozens of them at school, snarling point-eared fierce-whiskered things. He even dreamed about them at night and woke crying "Cats! A bad cat is here; he was here a minute ago!"

The bad cats came straight from his sub-conscious, and had, it seemed, no analog in waking life. Our cat is a great furry fool of a thing with broad human cheeks so fat she locks like Dom DeLuise. She sneaks Doritos when she can; she thinks string beans are alive. When the kids are at school, she sleeps sweetly among the bed dolls, and has manners nicer than a nun's.

But still the dreams persisted. And the demands upon the lady-in-waiting. He yelled at people a lot. He even hid his sneakers in a desk drawer, where they stayed hidden for nearly a week, in the vain hope perhaps that, sneakerless, he'd be forgiven school.

And then one day he adjusted. His artwork runs toward the human now and not the feline. His manners grow downright gracious — they're almost as nice as the cat's — thanks, I don't doubt, to the standard of courtesy observed at the preschool. The other day he actually raised his hand to speak during dinner.

It's hard starting a big venture like school. My cousin tells a story about her little boy who came home from Day One and said "First Grade was fine," evidently figuring he'd have just the one day of it, and the second day would be Second Grade and so on.

We can all understand the basis for his hope. As a First-Grader myself, I recall opening, in the waxy milk-scented cafeteria, the lunchbox my mother had packed for me that morning, packed with her very own hands. And I put my head down upon it, and I wept, yearning for the sight of those hands, yearning to be a little kid again, trailing along after her among the sunny dust-motes, at the peaceful business of making the beds.

I got used to school though, as my own little boy seems to be doing. He has years of it ahead of him: 14 to earn a diploma; another four to get a degree; more after that if he hopes to pin a Scrabble of letters at the end of his name.

He thought it was a big deal, this starting school. He was right; it's among the biggest.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL
Volume 13-Report No. 46
Massachusetts House and Senate
November 9-13, 1987

The House. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on five roll calls from the week of Novemoer 9-13.

PACs (H 3675)- House 120-14, gave near final approval to a bill limiting annual contributions to candidates from political action committees (PACs) to $1000 and from state political committees to $3000. Supporters said this will limit the influence of hundreds of special interest committees.

Opponents said the bill is ineffective because it does not put a limit on the total amount of PAC contributions a candidate can accept.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh did not vote on #1.

Caps (H 2675)- House 109-37, rejected an amendment prohibiting candidates from accepting more than a combined total of $25,000 from PACs in any one year. The House also 100-46, rejected an amendment limiting candidates to an aggegate annual PAC limit of $2,500 for state representative; $4000 for state senator or county office; $50,000 for governor; and $25,000 for all other statewide offices.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed. The first is on the $25,000 cap. The second is on the cap based on individual offices.

Saltmarsh voted yes on both roll calls.

In Session (H 3675)- House 126-20, rejected an amendment prohibiting any PACs or lobbyists from contributing to candidates while the legislature is in session.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

DAs (H 5829)- House 108-23, refused to consider its earlier approval of a bill hiking the salaries of the state's district attorney's by $10,000 from $62,500 to $72,500 retroactive to January.

Bill supporters said the hike is well deserved and noted DAs have not had a raise in five years.

Opponents said a $10,000 retroactive hike is excessive.

A Yea vote is for reconsidering passage of the bill. A Nay vote is for the bill.

Saltmarsh voted no.

The Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on roll calls from the week of November 9-13.

Environment (S 2039)- Senate 38-0, gave near final approval to a $540 million package providing for an environmental enhancement and protection package for the state.

Supporters said the bill is a comprehensive program for public access and conservation, preservation assistance to cities and towns, restoration of recreational facilities and protection of water resources.

A Yea vote is for the bill.

Senator Richard Kraus voted yes.

Table Gay Rights (H 5469)- Senate 22-17, refused to table the "gay rights" bill prohibiting discrimination in housing, employment, credit and public accomodations based on sexual orientation.

Bill supporters said the measure is simply a civil rights bill which protects the fundamental rights of gays.

Opponents said the bill is anti-family, condones gays and encourages unnatural acts against nature and the bible.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted no.

Ballot Questions (H 5469)- Senate 23-16, approved an amendment placing the "gay rights" question on the November 1988 ballot as a non-binding referendum asking voters whether they approve of it. The Senate 27-12, also approved placing a non-binding question on the March 1988 presidential primary ballot asking voters whether the law should be repealed and delaying implementation of the law until July 1988.

Amendment supporters said voters should have the right to express their opinion.

Opponents said the legislature should not have to put basic civil rights questions on the ballot.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed. The first is the November ballot. The second is March 1988.

Kraus voted no on both roll calls.

Promote (H 5469)- Senate 35-1, approved an amendment prohibiting any public school teacher from the practice of homosexuality with the students and taking away employment protection for any teacher who does.

Amendment supporters said this will prevent teachers from condoning gays and promoting a gay sexual orientation as an acceptable lifestyle.

Opponents said the amendment is vague and unfair and could even prevent a teacher from having a gay relationship with a consenting adult because under the amendment it could be viewed as promoting homosexuality.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

Most people assume that the highest bidder will always get the nod from a home seller, but in many situations this is not the case. The highest bidder does not always win. A smart seller will often accept a lower offer from someone who is certain to qualify for a mortage rather than worry about a financially shaky buyer who might not even qualify for a loan to consumate the sale.

If the market is one where homes don't stay available for even a short time at the asking price, the buyer might want to make the offer one that will be hard to refuse. For example, sellers are very impressed if you can strike the finance contingency clause from the contract. (This is the clause that releases the buyer from the contract without losing the deposit if he cannot qualify for a mortgage.) However, do not even CONSIDER scratching the mortgage contingency clause unless you have the cash on hand to complete the transaction.

Derek Benoit

Benoit to be on national TV

On Oct. 23, 7-year-old Derek Benoit of Mystic Valley Parkway, traveled with his family to New York City to tape an interview for the Juvenile Diabetes National Telethon to be aired Nov. 29 on U.S.A. Cable Network at 7 p.m.

The segment will be inserted into the live broadcast originating from Los Angeles, hosted by Michael Landon and Gloria Loing, featuring Mary Tyler Moore and many other well-known Hollywood celebrities.

Stewart Damon, also known as Dr. Alan Quartermaine of General Hospital, interviewed Benoit and his father along with a young female marathon runner from Tennessee and a former Princeton football player presently teaching in Houston, Texas.

Benoit has had juvenile diabetes since age 3 ½, and he was asked to represent young children across the country afflicted with this disease. He is presently a second grade student at Lincoln School, and his teacher is Sally Walter.

Mirak honored for service as library trustee

Alice K. Mirak was honored for her service on the board of trustees of the Winchester Public Library Nov. 17. The reception preceded an informal lecture by Robert Hale.

Mirak served three full terms on the board from 1978 to 1987, a period when the impact of escalating costs, the changing needs of Winchester's population, and proposition 2½ had a significant effect on the library's budget and operations. "The board accepted these challenges positively and optimistically," Mirak said, "and, through careful planning and thoughtful leadership, the library was able to regain much of the lost staff and services the budget cuts had forced and emerged as a leaner, better functioning institution."

Also during this period, the Winchester Public Library expanded its collection to include more audio visual materials and took a leading role in establishing the Minuteman Network, an automated resource-sharing system which allows access to the collections of 18 public and two academic libraries. Mirak says the library is now very well-positioned to meet the changing needs of today's library patrons.

A strong promoter of the use of the library as a cultural center for the town, Mirak supported the addition of the art gallery and expanded arts programming. She also encouraged the development of the Friends of the Library, a volunteer group that provides programming, fundraising and advocacy services for the library.

Mirak describes her time on the board as "one of the most pleasant volunteer experiences I have ever enjoyed. I have great respect and admiration for my colleagues on the board. Each brought different skills and background to the board and we worked together closely as a team."

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

PLUMBING

The plumbing is one of your home's more mysterious systems. Most of the pipes are hidden in the wall, and when you have a problem, you'll probably have to call in a plumber. Because plumbers charge hefty rates, prospective buyers are frequently frightened away by evidence of leaky pipes, ceiling stains below shower pans, or antiquated bathroom fixtures.

If you're planning to sell, it's a good idea to make sure your plumbing problems are solved before you place your home on the market. After the plumber finishes his work, you should take care of any cosmetic damage that leaks may have caused. Are plumbing repairs cost-effective? Most sales agreements contain clauses calling for all systems, including plumbing, to be in working order. If you have a problem, you'll probably have to repair it before settlement in any case. Doing it ahead of time eliminates plumbing as an issue in the property's sale. Having your plumbing in top condition will also make your home seem well cared for, and this makes it more attractive to potential buyers.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

SENIOR NEWS

Men's group holds forums on issues of current history

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

A group of very able men from all walks of life meet biweekly on Wednesdays from 10:30 a.m. to noon at Jenks Senior Center to discuss varied subjects of interest.

Between a dozen and a score of retired men join forces in the conference room on the lower level of the new wing to share ideas together about economics, scientific achievements, U.S. foreign relations, education, medicine, business, and a variety of pertinent problems that are shaping current history.

Physicians, college professors, businessmen, government officials, merchants, legislators, teachers, lawyers, bankers, economists, accountants, engineers and others share their knowledge during an hour and a half of open discussion.

The men, who demonstrate interest in a forum type of approach as a medium for discussion, have held important positions in various fields of endeavor. They are concerned about the future of our town, our state, our country, and the world at large in terms of the heritage that will be passed along to youths who will take up the leadership reins for the tomorrows that lie ahead.

These discussions can be called a "living history" and should be recorded since they reflect the trend of the times in a scholarly manner. Men who are interested in participating are invited to attend the next meeting in December.

Volunteers needed for the "Eating Together" program

Elaine Di Pietro, site manager for the "Eating Together" program at the Jenks Senior Center Wednesday and Friday noontimes, is in dire need of volunteers who will assist with clean-up operations following the meal.

This is not difficult because of the throw-away type of tableware, but it is time-consuming for the site manager who has to handle this work before writing daily reports that must be submitted to the Minute Man Home Care Corporation.

Those willing to volunteer are asked to call the Jenks Senior Center receptionist (721-7136) to leave a name and phone number in order that Elaine Di Pietro can make contacts.

55 Alive Mature driving course at Jenks Center

The American Association of Retired Persons extends a significant service to older drivers by conducting a refresher course as a nationwide, comprehensive curriculum concentrating on driver education for older Americans. There are approximately 45 million registered drivers age 50 and over, constituting 30 percent of all drivers on the nation's roadways.

Alfred Barrios of Reading will conduct a course at the Jenks Senior Center Dec. 1 and 2 consisting of six separate sessions over a two-day period. Each participant will be charged a minimal fee to cover materials. In order to know how many people will be interested, it is necessary to call the Jenks Senior receptionist right away (721-7136) indicating interest in participating.

A significant number of drivers behind the wheel today learned how to handle a car by experimenting in a field or in some out-of-the-way place. They did not have the benefit of driving instruction, but learned through experience. Neither was it necessary for them to take a test prior to obtaining a license.

Since handling a car is very demanding, it is of vital importance to keep abreast with rules and regulations of the road, interpreting such signs as "No Passing" and "No Turning," the meaning of painted lines in the road and other directives that must be followed.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles states that most accidents happen in urban areas at a speed of 40 m.p.h. with people 65 years and over making up at least 11 percent of the entire driving population.

It is important to be aware of the effects of certain prescription drugs that cause drowsiness and slow reaction to emergencies. About 25 percent of the drugs used by seniors cause drowsiness and a slowing down of thought processes. This condition is at the root of not only fender-benders, but accidents of a more serious nature.

The course 55 Alive/Mature driving will be available to a limited number of people. Come and discover how to help to reduce the number of accidents by an increased awareness of existing driving problems. A certificate of completion will be awarded to each participant following the two-day workshop that will consume a total of eight hours.

VCR canceled

The Video Cassette Recording scheduled for Dec. 4 will not be shown until January to make the meeting room available for workers to set up for the Mini Fair Saturday, Dec. 5 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Winchester High School holiday concert at Jenks Senior Center

As part of the year long celebration of the arts for the 350th anniversary, the Winchester School Department of Music will present a holiday concert in the new auditorium at the Jenks Senior Center Dec. 15. The entire community, both old and young, is invited free of charge to hear the musical renditions of the students.

Lynne Rahmeier will direct the chorus and Mary Alice McCann, Winchester High School Orchestra director, will lead several instrumental ensembles.

Seasonal music will be featured and a reception will be provided by the parents of the performers. There is much talent among the members of the high school student body. Add joy to the holiday season by attending the concert and viewing the student art show exhibits.

Day trip to Danversport Yacht Club

Gateway Travel and the Winchester Seniors Association Recreation Committee have planned a trip to the Danversport Yacht Club for lunch and the enjoyment of a big-name band Sunday, Dec. 6.

The bus will leave Jenks Senior Center at 11 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. The menu consists of boneless roast beef, tossed salad, vegetable and potato, rolls, butter, beverage and a delicious dessert to top it off.

Entertainment will be provided by Ted Herbert's 17-piece band and Ed Palladino with his accordian. There will be door prizes for each table. Helen Murphy is in charge of arrangements.

Recorder lessons

A group is at work at the Jenks Senior Center learning how to play this age-old instrument .

Under the instruction of Jennifer Southcott of the Winchester Music School, classes are held at 1:30 p.m. every Tuesday. More participants are invited to enjoy learning a new art.

The Shoppe

The Shoppe, recently established in the lobby of the Jenks Senior Center, is off to a good start.

All people who wish to put handmade articles among items for sale should contact Regina Karnilla. They will net two-thirds of the cost if the article is sold and the Winchester Seniors Association Ways and Means Committee will keep one-third of the selling price.

The plea at the moment is to encourage people to add to the store on hand. Recently, a gift of 15 jars of homemade raspberry jelly sold almost as soon as it was placed on display. This indicates that saleable items do not have to be confined to knitting and stitchery, but can cover a wide range of articles.

Day trip to the Wayside Inn

The annual trip to Longfellow's Wayside Inn in Sudbury will take place Thursday, Dec. 10.

The meal consists of frosted fruit salad, Yankee pot roast with jardiniere sauce, baked potato, tossed salad, green beans almondine, coffee or tea, rolls, and Boston cream pie.

The bus leaves Jenks Senior Center at 10:30 a.m. and returns at 4 p.m. Mary De Courcy is in charge of arrangements.

Mini Fair at Jenks Senior Center

The annual Mini Fair at the Jenks Senior Center is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This occasion provides an opportunity to do some holiday shopping in comfort. The booths offer aprons, baked goods, books, gifts, men's boutiques, women's boutiques, knit goods and a snack bar.

The showing of the video tape (VCR) on Friday, Dec. 4 following the "Eating Together" meal at 1:30 p.m. will be canceled to allow workers to set up the Meeting Room for the fair.

Florida trip donated by the Winchester Cooperative Bank

The Winchester Cooperative Bank donated to seniors two round-trip tickets to Naples, Fla. The drawing took place on Oct. 24 at the bank.

Winners were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scotti of Robinhood Road. Edwin Goodwin, president of the bank, and officer William Wright of the Winchester Police Department supervised the drawing, which was done by Kathy Indigero.

Following advertising of the gift trip, 84 entries were received by the bank.

Sachems make final

Capodanno goal ousts Belmont

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

Paul Capodanno's goal with only 46 seconds left in the second sudden-death overtime period gave the Winchester High boys' soccer team a 2-1 victory over Belmont and a spot in Friday's MIAA Div. 2 North final in Chelmsford. The Sachems reached the semifinals after pushing past Wayland, 3-1, last Saturday morning.

Winchester has generally coasted along through the tourney, letting their opponents get in their licks before turning up the play a couple of notches towards the end. This style almost backfired against Belmont, as an inspired Marauder team had the Sachems on the ropes a couple of times before Capodanno and goaltender Andy Shao bailed them out.

After soundly thrashing Belmont, 5-1, only two weeks before, it would be easy to see how the Sachems might take the Marauders lightly. Belmont, however, was embarrassed by their previous showing and were out for revenge.

Belmont controlled much of the first half and had several good chances to score. Shao came up big each time to keep the Marauders at bay. Meanwhile, Paul Erbafina and Capodanno narrowly missed down the other end, as the Sachems slowly put their offense together.

Finally, Winchester got on the board on a beautiful passing combination. Steve Reeve chipped the ball towards the front of the Belmont goal. Vandy French then headed the ball to Ken Fowler who finished the play off with a header of his own into the right side of the goal.

Early in the second half, the Sachem defense suddenly fell upon hard times and Belmont was quick to capitalize. The Marauders tied the game on a partial breakaway as the defense had trouble handling the ball at midfield. Shao never had a chance as the ball was slipped into the left corner of the net.

The fullbacks recovered nicely thereafter and it was the Sachems' turn to flex their offensive muscle. Mike McGeehan twice had excellent scoring chances, but was denied by sterling goaltending. In fact, the goalie was the only reason this game went to overtime as Fowler, French (twice), and Erbafina all were robbed in the waning moments of regulation. During the final minute, Belmont had a corner kick but Jack O'Callaghan headed it out of trouble.

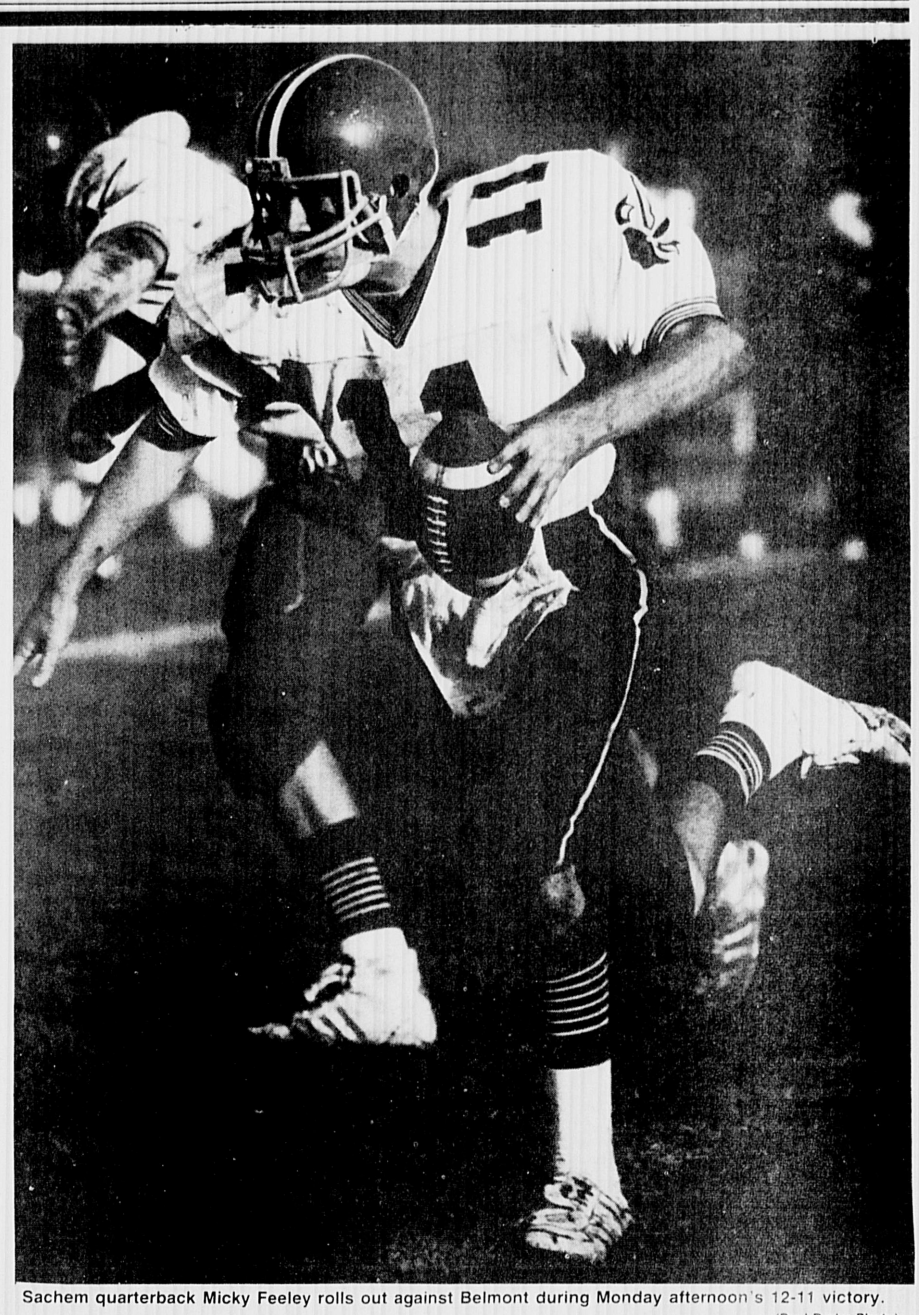

Winchester had a chance to break the tie in the first overtime period, but an indirect penalty kick went wide. During the second overtime, Shao made an acrobatic save which kept the Sachems alive.

Nothing much happened in the first sudden-death overtime nor the second, for that matter, until French sprung Capodanno loose in front of the net. He dribbled to his right before firing the winning blast into the far corner.

Winchester had a less dramatic struggle last Saturday against Wayland. The two teams spent most of the first half checking out each other's moves, as neither team had any particularly good scoring chances. But Jason MacConkey made the most of his as the right winger hustled in and banked a shot in off a Wayland fullback to put the Sachems up 1-0. French had an excellent chance to increase the margin, but he rushed his shot a bit and it sailed over the net. Wayland managed to knot the score with only four minutes left off a wild scramble in front of Shao.

In the second half, it was Capodanno who again came through with the winning goal. On a well-executed play, Erbafina found Capodanno streaking towards the net on a penalty kick and he redirected it for the go ahead goal. The Sachems poured it on after that and Capodanno poked in a loose ball for an insurance goal. Fowler and David Romboli picked up assists on the tally and it was full speed ahead for Winchester towards a second consecutive MIAA State Div.2 title.

The Sachems will square off against the winner of the Lynn English-North Andover game in the final starting at 6:00 p.m.

JV girls end season undefeated

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls junior varsity soccer team closed out a successful campaign with a convincing 7-0 shellacking of Woburn. The Sachemettes ended the season with an impressive 12-0-2 record and the distinction of being Winchester High's only undefeated soccer team.

Denise Delaney and tri-captain Christine Sullivan led the scoring onslaught with two goals each while Mary Sampson, Danielle Berkhout and fullback Kelly Scott all tallied once. Fullback Laurie Pedulla scored the prettiest goal of the game but it was called back on an offsides penalty.

Coach Paul Austin was extremely satisfied with the way the season went and looks forward to seeing several of his players making significant contributions for Chris Scanlon's varsity squad next year.

Sachems sink Belmont on Wight's field goal

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

Clayton Wight booted a 31-yard field goal late in the fourth quarter to give the Winchester High football team a 12-11 victory over Belmont for their first road victory of the season. The Sachems could salvage a .500 season if they score an upset of Woburn in the traditional Thanksgiving Day game Nov. 26.

This was the second time this season the reliable kicker pulled out late game heroics, as coach Manny Marshall continues to turn to him in the clutch. Wight provided all six Sachem second-half points, as he also connected from 29 yards away late in the third quarter.

Trailing 8-0 in the second quarter, Scott Garvey, who had another excellent game, collected a Micky Feeley pass and then made like Stanley Morgan, darting through the Marauder secondary for a 53-yard touchdown reception. Marshall decided to go for two but Feeley never got the pass off. Winchester had one more oppurtunity to score before the end of the half but a swing pass to Garvey failed on fourth and goal from the Belmont 6-yard line.

Greg Winn had another solid game rushing the ball as he led the Sachem ground attack with 66 yards on 11 carries. Feeley had a fine game throwing the ball and the confidence he picked up will be necessary for a good outing against Woburn. Craig Driscoll also played well catching three passes for 51 yards.

After Wight's first field goal put Winchester in front, 9-8, Belmont drove early in the fourth quarter all the way down to the Sachem 1-yard line. But an excellent defensive front led by Todd Crandall, Frank Gianci, Doug Clarke and Mike Smith forced the Marauders to settle for the field goal, 11-9.

The Sachems then began the march which would lead to Wight's dramatics. The key play was a 43-yard Garvey burst over the right side of the Belmont defensive line. With 3:05 showing on the clock, Marshall went to his kicker to go for the win. His kick was clean, but it took a high arc and barely cleared the crossbar as about 50 ardent Sachem fans and the rest of the team roared their approval.

The Sachems got fine special teams play from Ted Welch and Ray Bustamante. In Belmont's last stand, Winchester yielded one first down before a Clarke sack finalized the outcome. The Sachems improved their record to 4-5.

Sachem girls corner kick Wakefield out of tourney

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' varsity soccer team pulled off their biggest triumph of the season Sunday afternoon when they knocked off arch-rival Wakefield, 3-2, in MIAA Div. 1 North quarterfinal action.

"It was as great a victory as I've been a part of in ten years of coaching," said proud coach Chris Scanlon.

Wakefield began the season by handing the Sachems their first Middlesex League loss ever. Winchester turned its season around after traveling to the Warriors' home turf halfway through the year and shutting them down, 1-0, behind the great goaltending of Allison Price. This set up Sunday's rubber match for league supremacy, but Winchester would have to do it without Price, who broke her hand in practice last Friday.

In steps Julie Kenerson. The reserve goalkeeper had not played a single minute all season due to a serious shoulder injury and was not cleared to play until the day before Price went down. Kenerson made the most of her opportunity and played an outstanding game in net, showing remarkable poise in the most trying of circumstances.

Last week's freak snowstorm gave both teams more than enough time to prepare for battle. Wakefield carried the play in the first half, as Winchester seemed to have trouble working out the kinks of a one week layoff. The Warriors had several chances to take control of the game but were turned aside by Kenerson and their own impatience on offense. With starting fullback Sandra Bennett out for the playoffs with a bruised foot and fullback Kelly Meehan on an emergency only basis due to a ligament injury, the defense was under a lot of pressure.

With only five minutes left in the half, Wakefield finally broke through. Kenerson made a fine stop on Warrior standout Mary Beth Sydlowski, but the rebound trickled over to two Wakefield players who had enough time to flip a coin to see who would tap it home. Considering how the half went, the Sachems had to be happy to be down by only one goal at the intermission.

Winchester came out strong in the second half. Sparked by an incredible array of corner kicks by Cara McDonough and the unlikely scoring touch of fullback Deborah Skahan, the Sachem girls turned the game around. Suddenly it was Wakefield who was struggling to stay alive.

Skahan had not scored all season long, when she redirected a McDonough corner kick to put the Sachems on the scoreboard. She had just received an earful from the coach.

"Deborah is our center-header on corner kicks," said Scanlon. "I told her to go out there and make something happen and she did."

Less than a minute later, McDonough launched another corner kick out in front of the net. Chaos reigned in front of the net just as it had all season in these situations but this time, instead of frustration, Winchester had a goal and the lead. Skahan was awarded the unassisted goal when the ball bounced in off a Wakefield defender.

The climax of McDonough's performance came only a couple of minutes later when she unloaded the shot of the year. Her blast from the left corner soared through the air, twisted around the crossbar, and caught nothing but twine just inside the far post.

"It was the most beautiful shot I've ever seen," said Scanlon. "And I've been around soccer a long time.

Wakefield stepped up the pressure and kept the Winchester defense on its toes through the rest of the game. Julie Sexeny was outstanding at breaking up Warriorette threats and Jenna Maconochie also had a strong game on defense. Wakefield broke through for one more goal but Winchester held on the rest of the way to capture the victory.

The next stop is in Andover where the Sachem girls will play under the lights for the second time in three tournament games.

In the 200 medley relay, Liz McCann, Wendy Boerner, Kathy McGillicuddy and Juliet Estridge placed seventh and did a season best time of 2:05:85. McGillicuddy also received fourth in the 50 freestyle and seventh in the 100 freestyle.

Winchester's 100 freestyle relay, Valerie Fleck, Erica Fleck, Katherine Martinelli and Estridge placed ninth.

The girls were pleased with their times and places and hope they can do as well, if not better, this weekend at the State Meet at Northeastern University Saturday afternoon beginning at 2:00 p.m.

Streaking Mites trash Lexington

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

The Winchester Mites ruined the day for yet another opposing goaltender. The Mites once again scored in the double digits, defeating Lexington II 13-0 to remain undefeated in the Middlesex Youth Hockey League.

Netminder Dana Lapointe recorded his first shutout, aided by the strong defensive play of Mike Leonardi, Joey Palotta, Matt Dexter, and Rocky Leo. The defensive unit shut down all of Lexington's offensive threats.

The potent Winchester offense exploded for seven goals in the first period. The scoring was led by Steve Cuccinatti and T.J. O'Neil, each netting four goals. O'Neil's first goal was a joint effort with winger Scott Phillips. Together the linemates opened the scoring, both poking a rebound from a Pat Aufiero shot over the line two minutes into the game.

Cuccinatti, assisted by John Duval, made it 2-0. Then, on their next shift, Duval and Cuccinatti teamed up to assist Phillips on the second of his pair of scores.

Back-to-back goals by T.J. O'Neil, assisted by Ashley Cannon and Rocky Leo, and a pair by Cuccinatti ended the scoring in the first period with the Sachems comfortably ahead, 7-0.

Winchester continued to pepper the Lexington goalie throughout the middle frame, but the Minutemen hung tough for two thirds of the period. With five minutes left in the second period Cuccinatti got goal number eight on a breakaway. Duval padded the lead with another breakaway goal and the Sachems entered the third period up 9-0.

Pat Aufiero put Winchester in the double digits after taking a pass from Matt Kelley and beating Lexington's goalie low on the stick side. Defenseman Rocky Leo scored an unassisted goal breaking through the defense and sliding a wrist shot through the netminder's legs raising the score to 11-0.

Duval and O'Neil finshed the scoring with unassisted goals and Winchester had victory number four in the books. This week the team takes on Newton and hope to extend their winning streak to five games.

Mary Jacobs

Art association holds raffle

The Winchester Art Association, which holds ongoing free exhibitions of its members' work, announces its 1987 fund-raising raffle. On Dec. 6 the holder of the lucky ticket will be able to commission a portrait from Mary Waters Jacobs.

Jacobs, who teaches an adult education course in portraiture at Winchester High School, is an award-winning artist specializing in pastel portraits. Perhaps the most outstanding of her many prizes is the Richard Mitton Memorial Award for Best Portrait in Show at the Jordan Marsh annual exhibition.

Her commissioned work hangs in various public buildings and corporations throughout New England. Two of the most recent series are those of the 11 past presidents of the NuWorld Bank displayed in the Boston headquarters and the portraits for the "Hall of Fame" gallery in the foyer of the sports complex building at Merrimack College in Andover.

Long a member of the Art Association, Jacobs' work is also in the Winchester Tennis Center. She studied at the Vesper George School of Art and the Scott Carbee School of Art, where one of her teachers, Waldo Murray, had studied under John Singer Sargent.

The raffle drawing will be held in the Gallery during the opening of the Holiday Prize Show. Tickets may be purchased for $1 each until the day of the drawing.

They are available from any member of the Winchester Art Association or at the gallery during open hours, from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. The gallery is located at 585A Main St.

Winchester wins AAA pedestrian safety award

AAA Massachusetts has presented Winchester with a national award for no pedestrian fatalities.

The special plaque was awarded to Chief of Police John P. McHugh by Caroline J. Hymoff, manager of Safety Services for AAA Massachusetts.

"This AAA National Award is for no pedestrian fatalities for the year 1986," Hymoff said in a statement accompanying the plaque. "We congratulate the police and local officials who helped achieve such a fine showing in national competition with 1,009 similar communities across the United States."

Communities participating in the AAA program are judged with others of comparable size and characteristics. They are evaluated on their maintenance of accident records, safety legislation, enforcement, traffic engineering, quality of school traffic safety programs and active public information and education programs.

This award is part of AAA's nationwide program to give recognition to local officials who are working toward greater pedestrian safety. Started in 1937, AAA's Pedestrian Safety Program has helped to reduce pedestrian deaths by 47 percent.

Youth Center offers gift certificates

The second is the Junior Ski Trip to Smuggler's Notch, Vt., the weekend of Friday, March 11 to Sunday, March 13. Accomodations will be at The Village on Smuggler's Notch.

Perenick attends Veteran's Day observance

Brigadier General Charles Perenick of Wildwood Street represented the New England National Guard unit at a wreath-laying ceremony at the grave site of General of the Armies John J. Pershing in Washington, D.C..

Perenick was joined at the ceremony by British Defence attache Brigadier Tim Thompson and Canadian attache Brigadier General R.I. Stewart. The three dignitaries represented the Allied Forces who fought in France during "the war to end all wars."

Perenick also met with retired Col. Harold Ogden, a former Melrose resident and one of the few surviving Yankee Division veterans who fought in World War I.

During his visit with Ogden, Perenick discovered that the former doughboy commanded a Yankee Division company now under the command of the general's son, Capt. Charles Perenick Jr.

Perenick was promoted to his present rank in September, shortly after reporting to the assistant command assignment in August. The 37-year National Guard veteran also serves under the division flag with his brother and two sons.

The Pershing memorial service is an annual tradition of the American Legion's Unknown Soldier Post 44 of Washington. The graveside ceremony held at Arlington National Cemetery honors the meory of Pershing, who commanded the American Expeditionary Force during World War I. This year, Post 44 honored the 26th Infantry, which was the first American unit to arrive in France during the war.

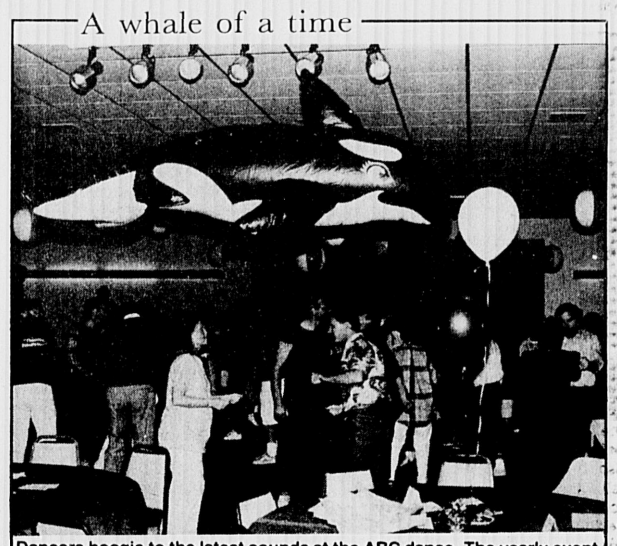

According to Maj. Michael Erhartic, the Yankee Division distinguished itself in WW I by spending more time on the front than any other American unit. The division was also the first American unit decorated by a foreign country, receiving the French Croix de Guerre, Erhartic said.

SCHOOL NEWS

V-O holds Indian festival

Vinson-Owen School grade 1 through 3 students participated in Diawali, an Indian holiday, coordinated by the school's librarian, Gerry Driscoll with help from Maura Albert.

After an introduction by principal Dick Young, Mrs. Banerjee discussed the meaning of Diwali and its similarities to holidays in other cultures. The talk was followed by a traditional Indian dance performed by Anjali Midha, grade 2.

The students each had a chance to participate in six different activities. They drew the traditional good luck symbols used as holiday decorations, saw Indian dolls and other Indian artifacts, tried on Indian clothes, had a tika (red dot) painted on their foreheads, learned the story of Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth, set up traditional Diwali lights (diwa) and tasted Indian holiday treats.

Grade 4 learned about the Diwali holiday from classmates Sukanya Lahiri and Meghan Misra with assistance from Courtney Simson. Grade 5 viewed a video of an assembly on the subject.

Ruchika Mandhyan and Priya Bhargave modeled Indian dress as they explained about the Diawali holiday for their sixth grade class.

Project 2000

Assistant Superintendent David Ackerman teaches a lesson on fractions to Miriam Foley's third grade at Vinson-Owen School as part of Project 2000, a program designed to promote critical thinking in the classroom.

Keefe reports health education progress

With the first quarter coming to a close, Jan Keefe reports the sixth grade has done a fine job in working on the basic skills of field hockey (dribble, push pass, straight tackle and lunge) and exploring some game strategy. Along with soccer and football, the AAHPERD Health-Related Physical Fitness test which measures endurance, muscular strength and flexibility was successfully administered.

In health education the first lesson involving self-concept was presented. The lesson elicited interesting responses to a completion exercise and a lot of class involvement. The second lesson, also dealing with self-concept, will be presented Nov. 12 along with teacher follow-up activities.

Ask the Educator

Q: For those who might be new to town, what does CSA stand for?
A: Community School Association.

Q: What is the purpose of CSA?
A: CSA is a service organization whose purpose as stated in its constitution is "to build and maintain an active interest in the Winchester Public Schools, to act as liason with the Parents Associations, the School Department, and the School Committee to further communication among school chapters and to work together for the benefit of all students."

Q: How do you feel CSA meets its goal?
A: First, many of our board positions have a counterpart on each of the seven school boards. For instance, our library chairman chairs a committee made up of library chairpeople from each of the schools. This enables us to coordinate activities and be aware of the concerns of each of the schools. When a common concern arises, we are aware of it, and can help in achieving a satisfactory solution.

In the area of enrichment, by having all the elementary schools, plus Bartlett and St. Mary's participate, we are able to block book enrichment performances, which reduces the cost to each school, enabling everyone to get more for their enrichment dollar. In addition, the CSA enrichment committee is aggressive in seeking grant monies to further offset costs. These efforts have enabled the committee in recent years to bring the schools closer to $1,000 of enrichment programs for their initial $500 investment.

We also sponsor the Elementary All Star concert, which features the all star chorus, all star band, and all star orchestra. The proceeds from this concert are given as scholarships to an outstanding art and music student from the graduating class at the high school.

We also represent the schools on such committees as the Winchester Interagency Council (WIC), and the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, both service organizations in town. We are also a contact point for groups within and outside of the community. For instance, this year we were contacted by the Museum of Science about a project called COSMOS that they are sponsoring.

Perhaps our most important function is to be responsive to the concerns brought to us by the schools. Last year we formed a committee to study the outdoor education program, which has historically been a fifth and/or sixth grade educational camping experience. Schools had concerns about the organization and funding of this program, and we feel great progress has been made.

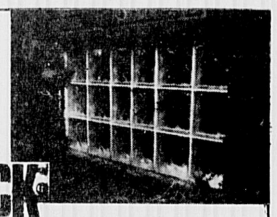

Also, we like to closely follow the school budget preparation, to understand its process and seek input from the community.

Q: It looks like you're a very busy and involved group. Are there any special plans for this year?
A: Yes. We are very involved in updating the elementary school handbook. Right now, individual schools have their own books and the administration has a book that gives an overview. We are hoping to combine the books and create a comprehensive one that will be useful to parents in all the elementary schools.

Of course, we will also be very actively involved in the 350th birthday celebration for Winchester, and in the schools' plans for their Celebration of the Arts.

(responses by Liz Wolfson, current president of CSA)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident decries plastic bags

TO THE EDITOR:

The scene this week was a familiar one. I shopped at Purity Supreme in the companyof my 3-year-old son who variously decides to imitate a.) Yvon Chouinard and climb the steep sides of a display rack; b.) Charles Lindberg and solo from a height taller than his head; c.) the sundry goods sold in that store and ride on the automated conveyor belt at the check-out.

Is it any wonder that I'm too distracted to notice that the bag boy has put all of my purchases into the dreaded plastic bags before I can stop him?

A-a-a-a-g-g-h-h-h-h! Pla-a-a-astic! Resigned, I put my small son and the floppy parcels into my cart and went into the November darkness. At the car, I tucked the preschool edition of He-Man into his carseat and began rummaging in the cart for the pears, heads of garlic and cartons of yogurt that have rolled from those unstable bags around the inside of the buggy.

Most of the parcels lift easily but one contains three half-gallon cartons of milk, several pounds of bananas, the renegade pears and a box of tea. It rips, as will its sisters when I remove them from the car upon reaching home.

Heading down Washington Street with what I naively assume to be the right of way, I am forced to stop at the intersection of Mystic Valley Parkway by the continuance of a lost driver from last year's Le Mans. Stopping is safe for my car, my small passenger and myself but not for the yogurt and the milk which have spread all over the floor of my van.

At home, I play seek-and-ye-shall-find-it with my groceries and wonder if the yogurt has been sufficiently cultured to respond to my whistle. One of the milk cartons is a loss and the rest of its contents have to be transferred to a pitcher.

Hand-carrying most of my purchases, as the bags are now beyond helping me, I make the porch. Only 20 more feet to the refrigerator. Maybe I should be like a French housewife and bring a few string bags with me: at least they would arrive home intact.

Although I have used Purity's plastic bags less than a dozen times, not one has ever arrived at my house whole. They serve no purpose. At least 75 percent — if not more — of the paper bags arrive at their destination unscathed. Furthermore, they are so handy; they carry newspapers to the dump, hold garbage, wrap books, make children's masks. All the plastic bags do is make more garbage, non-biodegradable garbage.

Yes, I know a plastic bag costs one cent and a paper bag costs three. Besides the obvious "you get what you pay for," a viable, useful container to bring my purchases from the store to my home should be part of the service the store provides. I am not served if the bag the store gives me expires before it reaches my house, one mile away. And I'm less served by something that may end up choking our already over-crowded dumps for eternity or choking any ailing marine life that remain in Boston Harbor.

Although there is nothing I like better than a bargain, I avoid "false economy," i.e., saving $.12 on salad dressing when I prefer mayonnaise.

Purity Supreme may post signs that say they like their plastic bags but they do present an unflattering public image. They say we don't care what happens to the customer's goods once the cash is in our hands; so what to the environment; goody, we saved two cents.

I often shop at Heartland, Purity Supreme's warehouse store operation, where I am charged $.03 per bag. If the cost of the bags means that much, I will gladly pay for them because I don't like plastic bags.

Susan Wozniak Barrett

Land trusts, viable or not?

damage character and to bring together a broad cast of people," the selectman concluded.

According to literature and case histories on land trust programs available at Saturday's seminar, each community trust can set its own formula for income and family size to qualify for a home, often with consideration given to people already living in the designated neighborhood. A possible risk of the system can come from the attitude of those who can afford housing under the present system who may not want to risk their capital.

To some, homeownership is an unrealistic dream at the end of a long tunnel of complications and headaches. Preserving land "in trust" can help a community provide housing for those most in need, according to information presented on Saturday.

Cable contract to be re-examined

ing power without the ascertainment.

Worthen said the town cannot negotiate for different cable rates, but can ask for changes in local programming, training, and customer service as well as equipment upgrades and improved consumer satisfaction.

"A lot of people, and I for one, am not happy with this company," Selectman Mark Lombardi said. "The real question is, do we want this company? Just because they're here doesn't mean they're the right company for us."

Denying a cable company a renewal is not easy, Worthen told the board. The town is not the last resort for a cable company. The company can appeal to the state, and Worthen said that as far as he knows, no cable company has been denied a renewal license.

Federal regulations relating to denial are stringent. Worthen suggested that if Winchester put Continental Cablevision on notice for a violation or concern and the notice was not addressed, the town might have grounds for denial.

"I think the town should consider all options and act in the best interest of the town," Selectman Thomas Schmitt said. "If the negotiations get tough, then they get tough."

Selectmen Robert Deering questioned the reporting process Continental uses for complaints. Worthen told him the company only reports written, unresolved complaints to the town. "We tried to get them to change their policy on that, but I guess we weren't very persuasive," Worthen said.

The Cable Advisory Committee will undertake a survey of cable subscribers and non-subscribers to judge the level of satisfaction and get a better idea of any problems residents may be having with the service.

The town has until September, 1990, to hold public hearings and negotiate with Contintental. A renewal contract must be signed or denied between June and September of 1990. Worthen said one of the biggest points of negotiation is the length of the contract. The cable company will be looking for a long contract so it can spread out any capital expenditures over as many years as possible. Worthen mentioned a five-year renewal, but said the figure was only one option.

The Selectmen agreed to look into other cable companies during the three-year period.

Town meeting finishes off with a flurry of votes

Article Eight was passed as well with little discussion. Joseph Riga of the Winchester Housing Authority presented the article, which sought to appropriate $124,000 in town funds for the construction of five units of low-income family housing. Riga spoke of the 1982 decision of the Winchester Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and Housing Authority to provide seven units of such housing to the town, and said that while two units had been contructed since that time, five more were required to fulfill "Winchester's obligation."

In answer to one meeting member's question, Riga said that he had the written assurance of the ECOD that it would finance any "significant" disrepancy between the $124,000 to be allotted and the actual contract bids received by the town. The Finance Committee, the Board of Selectmen, and the Planning Board each recommended favorable action on the article and the motion was then approved.

Meeting members also lent their support to Article Nine, which proposed that Winchester accept as a gift a monetary contribution by the family and friends of the late Betsey G. Morton, to be used for the Winchester public library. The article was passed with no opposition, and Sullivan expressed gratitude on behalf of the Board of Library Trustees, which had submitted the proposition.

Wetland Protection Enhanced

An addition to the Winchester bylaws was made with the passage of Article 10. Susan Levine of the Winchester Conservation Commission presented the article, designed by a subcommittee of the WCC to protect town wetlands by "control of activities deemed to have adverse effect upon wetland values." Levine said that the proposed Winchester bylaw would closely parallel the state Wetlands Protection Act, but would "fill in gaps" left by that act.

One man asked Levine whether a procedure had been discussed to settle possible conflicts between the Winchester bylaw and the state WPA. Levine answered that Article 10 had been drafted as a supplement to the WPA and so should not conflict with it; in such an unforeseen case, however, the state law would take precedence.

Wade Welch expressed concern that Article 10 would too greatly expand the role of the WCC, the members of which are unelected. He claimed that a town wetlands bylaw would hurt both local builders and people who wished to move to Winchester by making the building permit process more costly and more complicated. Despite such objections, however, the article was passed in a 69-54 vote.

Article 11 proposed that the town "accept the recommendation of the Committee on Names in selecting a suitable name for an area of park land...now known as the Wadleigh School site." A motion was made and easily approved for indefinite postponement of this article.

Justin McKee, a member of the citizens' group that had submitted Article 12, successfully presented a motion for its indefinite postponement. The article had originally been designed to limit the issuance of liquor licenses outside the Winchester Center Business District.

Daniel Ahearn and R. Elkins Marcus spoke in support of Article 13, a citizen's petition drafted by Ahearn to move that the town consider the acquisition of "the land lying between Pond St., Horn Pond Mountain and Cambridge Street" for "open space and conservation purposes." The article proposed that a study of the land be undertaken by the WCC and the Board of Selectmen, the findings of which would then be reported at spring Town Meeting.

Marcus, speaking on behalf of a group of Winchester residents known as the Horn Pond Mountain Preservation Association, said that this land is currently up for development. He expressed his belief that any such development would severely affect the "very unique"character of the area, comprised in part by its various species of rare and endangered plants. Marcus also said that development would also exacerbate current traffic and sewerage problems on Cambridge Street.

Ahearn added that Horn Pond Mountain has been visited and esteeemed by botanists for more than 200 years. He attributed the land's unusual nature to its neutral pH, which contrasts with the acidic pH of the land surrounding it. Ahearn said that development of the Horn Pond Mountain tract would "risk damage to an irreplaceable resource, not just to [Winchester] but to the state and the nation."

A representative of local developers opposed the motion, pointing out that "the land in question is a rather small section of the so-called Horn Pond Mountain area." He said that while he understood that the article proposed only a study of the area, the results of the study could have a serious effect on the outcome of the land. He suggested that the town not make the "substantial investment" the study would require.

Horn Mountain Study Okayed

Most of the meeting members present, though, supported one woman's plea that Winchester "give this land at least a chance," and the article was passed.

Articles 14 and 15, when first addressed, were postponed until the end of the meeting. At that time Insurance Advisory Chairman Duffy spoke in their support. Article 14 proposed an increase in the life insurance of town employees from $2,000 to a maximum of $5,000; Duffy said that this would cost the town $15,000 over the next year.

The Finance Committee recommended unfavorable action, and one meeting member suggested that such a proposal might interfere with the regular bargaining process between employers and employee groups. The article was overwhelmingly defeated in a voice vote.

Article 15 was likewise soundly defeated, after another unfavorable recommendation from the Finance Committee. It had been designed to allow town employee groups and town management to bargain for the town to pay a greater share of its employees' health insurance.

Donald McNamee presented Article 16, a citizens' petition by Douglas E. Dalton calling for the town to establish a five-member commission to evaluate the Winchester Fire Department. McNamee said that such problems as the availibility of modern equipment and the lack of adequate training of firemen could be resolved by this commission.

Fire Dept. Study Rejected

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer opposed the article, saying that the process for the evaluation of any Winchester department is always supervised by the town itself. He also stated that since the fire department is very technically oriented, its evaluation should be carried out by qualified professionals, similarly to the way in which the town is audited or the water and sewer systems evaluated. A voice vote was taken and the article was loudly defeated.

Muggia presented Board of Selectmen-sponsored Articles 17 and 18, both concerning the lease of a specific parcel of town land for the establishment of the Arthur Griffin Old Grist Mill Museum.

Muggia said that Arthur Griffin had met with Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh and others in the past to discuss possible sites for a museum Griffin wishes to donate to the town. Several sites had been rejected for reasons such as the town's desire to preserve open space and traffic considerations.

Muggia went on to advocate indefinite postponement of Articles 17 and 18, which would thereby prevent the lease of the latest potential site to Griffin, and both articles were in fact indefinitely postponed. Muggia did say that she supported Griffin's plan and urged him to continue to try to find a suitable site for his museum.

A motion was made to indefinitely postpone Articles 19 and 20 as well. Both of these articles concerned the portion of land owned by the town commonly known as the Woburn Loop. Article 19 was designed to change the zoning of the Loop from that of a General Residence District and a Limited Light Industrial District to that of a Multiple Family Residential District. Article 20 proposed Winchester's sale of the Woburn Loop.

Chairman of Precinct Eight Michael Saraco spoke in support of indefinite postponement of this article, saying that he had been "instructed by a unanimous vote" of a number of Precinct Eight residents to do so. Indefinite postponement of both Articles 19 and 20 was subsequently approved with no voiced opposition.

McCall-Taylor presented Article 21, designed to amend the zoning bylaws with regard to off-street parking facilities. The article proposed a change in parking stall width from 9 feet to 8½ feet, and a change in stall length from 19 feet for angle parking and 22 feet in parallel parking to 17 for angle parking and 20 feet for parallel parking.

McCall-Taylor said that such changes would free space that could then be used for landscaping and aisles. She emphasized that the article would not affect space available for building, only that for parking.

Lombardi contended that while the article might not increase space available for building, it would allow for greater density in such space - more units per apartment building, for example. He expressed his belief that this was wrong and therefore opposed the article. Daniel Chane spoke as the sole Planning Board who also opposed the article, expressing his belief that such alteration of parking stall sizes would be a disservice to those who might have difficulty maneuvering their cars, particularly elderly people.

Narrower Parking Spaces Rejected

The 43-60 vote failed to provide the two-thirds majority necessary for the zoning change; Article 21 was thus defeated.

Article 22 also proposed a change in the zoning bylaws, such that the minimum lot frontage of 200 feet would be reduced to 50 feet on a cul-de-sac in a RA district. McCall-Taylor spoke in support of the article, saying that a similar provision had inadvertently been left out of the original zoning bylaw and so should now be instated.

Lombardi asked McCall-Taylor whether there might be a specific developer currently requesting such a rezoning for a specific location; McCall-Taylor replied that Charles Ferrari had in fact done so for the Woburn Loop. Lombardi then opposed the article, saying that it would "tailor-make the zoning bylaw for the sale of the Woburn Loop."

While McCall-Taylor responded that Article 22 was not solely designed for any one developer, the article was defeated in a 54-57 vote.

Under Article 23 various reports were presented to meeting members. Chane outlined the progress of plans to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the settling of Aberjona Valley, and a Waste Study Report completed by a six-person committee was received and placed on file.

Collecting antiques:
It helps to know what's what

A child's rocking horse keeps watch over the goods at Irreverent Relics on Mass. Ave. in Arlington.

The buying of antiques and collectibles — whether by the serious collector for investment purposes or by the casual collector who wants to decorate a house or apartment — is one of today's most popular activities. Yet, there are always questions and concerns. Where can one buy antiques? How do you find a reputable dealer? What are the current popular items? To find the answers, it's often best to talk with an expert. During a recent conversation, Nancy Skinner, president of The Robert W. Skinner Gallery in Bolton, New England's largest auction house, and Karen Keane, its vice president and general manager, shared some information about antiques.

First, what is an antique? Technically, it's an object that is at least 100 years old. However, there are times when this definition may not hold up. Said Keane, "An antique can also be the best design from a period. For instance, there are many precedent-setting designs in chrome during the Art Deco period of the 1920s. We consider them antiques, even though they aren't 100 years old.

"The term 'collectible' is jargon. A collectible is not necessarily a work of art. It can be an object from any age, something that is easily identifiable. Anything can become a collectible."

Antiques are also subject to trends, periods when a particular piece of furniture and accessories is especially desirable. Said Keane, "In some ways, the antiques business resembles the stockmarket since it has its ups and downs. Markets — in this case, a specific period of furniture — play themselves out. Demand gets to a fever pitch, then stops.

"For instance, during the 1970s, art glass, such as Tiffany glass, was in vogue. People were constantly seeking it. The same was true of American Indian jewelry. Tastes change and now the emphasis is on the arts and crafts movement furniture from the turn of the century in American: oak furniture, American pottery, and sterling in simple design. Mid-priced paintings by lesser known artists are also popular now."

In order to become a knowledgeable collector, education is important and Keane suggests contacting people in the business. "There are numerous options open for the novice collector," said Keane. "At Skinner's, we have Discovery Day one Friday morning a month at our Bolton gallery. There isn't any charge and it gives the public an opportunity to look at American antiques and estate goods. They can also get a flavor for prices, since auction merchandise is sold at wholesale prices. Our staff is also on hand to answer questions and give advice."

Added Skinner, "Places like the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, the Textile Museum in Lowell, Historic Deerfield in western Massachusetts, and the Shelbourne Museum in Vermont are also good sources of information. Sturbridge Village also sponsors Collectors Weekends, a series of seminars on antiques."

One important problem facing the potential buyer is the dealer. Is the dealer reputable? Is the merchandise being properly represented? Again, education plays an important part. Said Skinner, "Don't be afraid to ask friends who they buy from, and whether they're heard of any problems with a particular dealer." Sometimes a Better Business Bureau can also be helpful. Also, check out local antique dealers associations. "But," cautioned Keane, "It's important to remember that there isn't a lot of legislation regulating the antiques business." Added Skinner, "Any dealer who is reputable will always stand behind the merchandise, which includes giving a refund if the buyer can prove misrepresentation. Be wary of a dealer who refuses to do this. For protection, the buyer should always get a signed sales slip with a description of the item and the price."

Keane also suggests that "you read up on periods and styles that are of personal interest, such as Art Deco or English furniture, and check reputable antiques price guides to get a feeling for the current market."

According to Skinner, one of the biggest mistakes people make when buying an antique is looking at price alone, buying it because it's cheap. She said, "First of all, you shouldn't buy an antique just because of the price. You should buy it because it's pleasing to you and it's something that you can live with for a long time.

"As far as furniture is concerned, antiques are a better buy than reproductions, since the reproductions often cost more. The same is true with brand new furniture. It, too, may cost more than an antique. No matter what it's age, an antique is still appealing because it has stood the test of time. If you invest a little money in an antique now, you can always upgrade, sell it after 10 years and get something better. Investing in antiques is a better use of money."

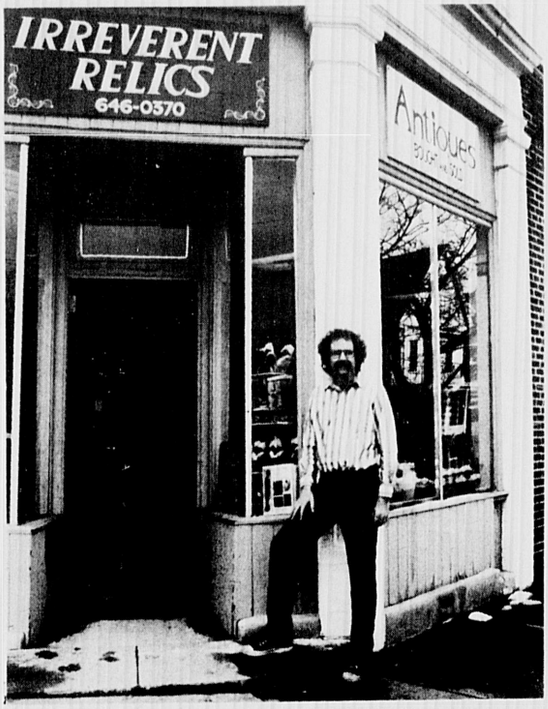

Skinner advises people who purchase antique furniture to leave it in its original state. She said, "People will often strip away its patina, or finish. That's often where the value comes from. When that's gone, so is the value.

"If you have very early American furniture, make sure it's in a room with some humidity. Those pieces were put together with glue and without some moisture, they'll come apart."

Antique quilts and textiles also need special care. According to Skinner, always keep a quilt away from sunlight so it won't fade and wash fabrics by hand rather than machine, unless you know for certain that the fabric can take it.

While there currently isn't any one specific region in Massachusetts that is noted for its antiques, the area around Townsend is drawing a lot of dealers. Said Skinner, "Places with historic sites often seem to draw more dealers, places like Plymouth and Salem."

Skinner said, "Antiques can fill two functions. They can appeal to the serious collector or simply delight the person who wants to fill a house with old things, many of which were hand crafted by the experts of their time."

Appraisals can help

At some point, you may need to have an antique appraised for insurance or estate purposes, or just to satisfy your own curiousity. It's important to always go to an experienced, reputable appraiser.

Skinner's, for instance, will do a verbal appraisal free of charge, as long as the customer makes an appointment approximately two weeks in advance.

Written appraisals, which state the description of an object, its history, origin, and value, can be given for a cost of $100 for up to six items. It generally takes about four weeks to receive the written information. Again, an appointment must be made two weeks in advance.

Appraising estates costs considerably more, $100 per hour with a minimum charge of $500. The results are given in writing, usually within four weeks.

For information about appraisals, call the Robert W. Skinner Gallery at 1-779-5528. Skinner also has a gallery in Boston.

Where to buy antiques

Those who wish to shop for antiques and collectibles can do their hunting in small shops, co-ops, large shows, and auctions. Some general information follows, and a partial list of shops, co-ops, and upcoming shows is included at the end of this article.

Information on auctions, shows, and shops can be found in weekly calendars, Sunday classified sections, and specialty publications. Two good sources are the monthly Mass Bay Antiques, published in Ipswich, and New England Antiques Journal, published in Ware. While both papers offer yearly subscriptions for $10 and $15.95, respectively, copies are often available at antiques stores and shows. Copies of Mass Bay Antiques are usually free; New England Antiques Journal costs $1.50 per issue. A third trade paper, the Newtown Bee out of Newtown, Conn., is also sold by subscription.

Shops are often managed by a single owner or shared by many dealers as a co-op, a concept that's become very popular over the past 10 years. For the public, shops and co-ops are like permanent shows, with a variety of merchandise presented in an atmosphere that's informal and fun. (Great for browsing and the admission's free!) Note: if you're planning to visit a specific shop, call ahead first as antiques stores are often open "by chance."

Antiques shows are scheduled year-round by experienced show promoters as well as non-profit organizations who wish to raise funds. The average admission to a show runs between $2-$4; however, discount coupons are frequently printed in local antiques newspapers.

Although some shows have specialized themes, most offer a general line of antiques and collectibles sold by dealers from as far away as New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania as well as the six New England states. The largest local show is Brimfield, an outdoor antiques extravaganza in May, July, and September that draws dealers from around the country.

Auctions are frequently held at established houses like Robert W. Skinner, Bolton; Dick Withington, Hillsboro, N.H.; Richard Bourne, Hyannis; and Sotheby's, New York City, to name a few. Most people who work at auction houses are glad to answer questions about antiques and collectibles. Consult a trade paper for schedules.

To make the most of your buying or browsing expedition, here are a few things to consider:

Do crowds make you crazy? If so, you better avoid the large shows at The Northeast Trade Center in Contemporary dance, music and theatre alive and well in Boston

Twyla Tharp Dance performs at 8 p.m., Nov. 21 and 3 p.m., Nov. 22, the Wang Center.

Twyla Tharp dance at Wang Center

Twyla Tharp Dance comes to the Wang Center Nov. 20-22. Performances are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 and Sunday at 3.

Among the works performed in Boston by Twyla Tharp Dance is In the Upper Room, choreographed by Tharp and set to music by Philip Glass. Dancers in sneakers contrast and interact with dancers on pointe. The work is fast paced and witty, and juxtaposes Tharp's sense of drama with composer Glass' controlled minimalism.

Tharp has danced choreographed and directed for stage, film, and television. Regarded primarily as a choreographer, she has created over 80 dances for her own company as well as for Mikhail Baryshnikov and the American Ballet Theatre, and the City Center's Joffrey Ballet. In addition, in 1984, she collaborated with Jerome Robbins to create "Brahms/Handel" for the New York City Ballet.

The Boston program for Twyla Tharp is as follows: Friday, Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 22 at 3 p.m.: Baker's Dozen, choreographed by Twyla Tharp, music composed by Willie The Lion Smith, and In the Upper Room, choreographed by Twyla Tharp, with music by Philip Glass. On Saturday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m., three works: choreographed by Twyla Tharp; Sue's Leg, with music by Fats Waller, Fugue, and Nine Sinatra Songs based on various popular Frank Sinatra songs.

Tickets are $28.50, $25.50, $20.50 and $15.50, and are on sale at The Wang Center box office or through Ticketmaster 787-8700.

Kronos Quartet

Kronos Quartet, contemporary music ensemble, will tour New England for the first time, with the support of the New England Foundation for the Arts. The tour includes the performance of a new work by jazz artist/composer Ornette Coleman with guest oboist Joseph Celli. Performances take place in eight New England communities through Nov. 28.

Called "a supercharged group of musical pioneers" by the Los Angeles Times, the Kronos Quartet is known for its extraordinary technique and musicianship as well as its commitment to the creation of new music and evocative interpretations of 20th-century works. Sporting punk haircuts and unconventional dress, the quartet performs the range of works from Dmitri Shostakovich to Jimi Hendrix and draws an unusually diverse audience for chamber music.

The New England tour includes performances of five works: In Honor of NASA and Planetary Soloists written by Ornette Coleman especially for Kronos Quartet and featuring guest oboist Joseph Celli (formerly director of Hartford's Real Art Ways); Peter Sculthorpe's Quartet No. 8; Ben Johnston's Amazing Grace; Kevin Volans' White Man Sleeps, Dances 1 and 2 written for Kronos; and Alfred Schnittke's Quartet No. 3.

Performance dates include Wesleyan University, Middletown, CT on Nov. 19; U. of Bridgeport, Bridgeport, CT on Nov. 20; Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, MA on Nov. 21; U. of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA on Nov. 22; Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H. on Nov. 23; Charles River Concerts at Northeastern University, Boston, MA on Nov. 28.

A.R.T. opens with Gillette

The American Repertory Theatre (A.R.T.), under artistic direction of Robert Brustein, opens its season with a new production of Gillette, by the award-winning playwright William Hauptman on Friday, Nov. 27 at 8 p.m. Staged by A.R.T. Resident Director David Wheeler, Gillette runs through Jan. 22 and is joined in the repertory by Robert Brustein's adaptation of Luigi Pirandello's Right You Are (If You Think You Are), which begins previews on Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. and continues through Jan. 31. Official opening of Gillette is Wednesday, Dec. 2 at 7 p.m.

The American Repertory Theatre presented the original version of Gillette in the Theatre's New Stage series in 1985 where it proved to be one of the most successful projects in the series. The enthusiastic and constructive audience and critical response to the original production encouraged Hauptman to develop the script further, in association with director

Gone: the glitz and the glitter

LA CAGE AUX FOLLES, a musical in two acts, with music and lyrics by Jerry Herman; book by Harvey Fierstein; choreography by Scott Salmon; settings by David Mitchell; costumes designed by Theoni V. Aldredge; lighting designed by Jules Fisher; musical direction by Randy Booth; direction by Fritz Holt and James Pentecost after Arthur Laurents. With Larry Kert, Harvey Evans, Dan O'Grady, Sheila Smith, Wendy Oliver, Bob Carroll, Kent Gash, Wade Collings and Patricia Arnell. At the Wang Center for the Performing Arts. Closed.

It was far from 'the best of times' for La Cage aux folles! Where did the magic go...the glitz and the glitter? The bus-and-truck company that played the Wang Center was like 'a faded rose'!

The six-time Tony Award-winning Best Musical of 1984 might have proven an enjoyable evening for first-timers, but for those who were part and parcel of its world premiere here in the Hub in 1983, and who couldn't bear to have the show depart without seeing it a second or a third time, it was a bitter disappointment.

Based on Jean Poiret's comedy, over six years on the Paris stage, France's longest running show, and a universal smash as a film, La Cage aux folles is a tender love story with all the heartaches and laughter of any tempestuous romance. The twist here is that it concerns two middle-aged men.

La Cage aux folles is a famous San Tropez niteclub. It is also the most notorious on the Riviera, featuring the most beautiful female impersonators in the business. The flamboyant star of the show is lovable, sensitive, temperamental Albin (Harvey Evans). The club's owner and impresario is Georges (Larry Kert). The two have lived together for 20 years and have raised Georges' son Jean-Michel (Dan O'Grady) as devoted and dutiful parents.

When Jean-Michel announces his engagement to Ann (Wendy Oliver), Albin ponders, "Our baby's getting married...where did we go wrong?" Anne's father is the puritanical Deputy General of the Tradition, Family and Morality Party and an avowed enemy of all homosexuals. When a meeting is arranged for both sets of parents all bedlam breaks loose.

Between the outrageous antics of the black butler Jacob, who would rather be the maid Claudine (Georges notes, "It he loved me, he'd vacuum!"), the transformation of the wildly gay apartment into a monestary-like retreat with icons, the clearing out of Albin's froo-froo frocks, Georges' posturing as a retired foreign legion diplomat, and the tutoring of swishy Albin to adopt the masculine stance of Uncle Albin, the tempo keeps moving at a zany clip. And a last-minute regrets note from Jean-Michel's natural mother allows Albin to substitute, wherein his charade turns from triumph to disaster to triumph!

Booking "La Cage" into the Wang was a gross mistake; all intimacy of this tender love story is lost in the cavernous theatre. And the problems with the acoustical system proved horrendous. This was a chintzy production, what with its scaled down cast (30 to 24, swing performers, four to three), and second-rate scenery and special effects.

Gone were David Mitchell's romantic and magnificent original settings and the exciting flying pieces, the drops, the hoists, swings and fire poles. Watered down were Theoni V. Aldredge's breathtakingly gorgeous and lavish costumes and Jules Fisher's incredible lighting.

Jerry Herman's tuneful score remains top-draw with With You on

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

An extraordinary world!

Morgan Bulkeley's work is marked by the unflinching fusion of concrete reality with a fertile, uncensored imagination. His ease of handling with a wide variety of mediums and materials and his uncanny ability to translate life experiences into universally symbolic, yet highly individualized, visual terms, give the 20 year retrospective of his work at the DeCordova Museum depth that equals its breadth.

Beasts and birds, bloated blades of grass and funky facades of Somerville and Cambridge triple-deckers, Warhol soup cans and Magritte clouds, birch trees, band-aids, blimps, feathers, teepees, pockmarked twigs and insistently perforated colanders all present themselves with both humor and foreboding to the viewer entering the museum's main gallery. They are as inevitably symbolic as they are destined for change and transformation.

Stronger than the urge to translate is, for the viewer, the urge to press forward with this artist who plumbs the corners of consciousness, giving equal time to the memories and fragments of the past, the dilemmas and tragedies of the present, and the uncertainties of the future.

And so press forward we do.

Beyond the big paintings of the mid-seventies to the mid-eighties and the recent small painted carved wood sculpture, are two distinct and cohesive groups of work in the alcoves at the big gallery's far end. On one side an early black wall sculpture, Box Building of 1967, is a collection of terms — a point of reference — for the work of the sixties that shares the walls with it, as well as elements of the work to follow.

Shallow and divided into rectangles of varying sizes, the box becomes a compartmentalized container of objects and images. We see the prefiguration of windows that contain visual riddles — separate worlds — in the buildings of Bulkeley's paintings of the seventies and early eighties. The drawings, watercolors and collages nearby are similarly divided into rectangular compartments. When color is present, it is dark and grayed. Entrapment and claustrophobia reign over the images inside — limbless figures, bottles, insects — stretched or squashed to fit their cubicles.

The other alcove is lined with gouache paintings of intense color saturation and dense configuration. The intersecting lines that boxed in images have given way to narratives that read through the space of the whole picture. The world of nature figures prominently in these works, with pungent green vegetation in a Garden-of-Eden setting and blue, blue sky promising release from the depicted enclosures of the city.

We learn from curator Rachel Rosenfield Lafo's catalogue and from a videotape of the artist that these paintings were inspired by Persian miniatures, and that the dark boxes of the sixties were Bulkeley's first realization that his work was connected to events occuring in his environment: he had moved to Newark, N.J. in 1966 and was witness to the violence and chaos of race riots.

We learn, too, that the large, blackened wood sculpture filling an upstairs gallery is out of context. Summers, Bulkeley lives and works in the Berkshires, where the sculpture is placed in the fields surrounding his house. A feeling for the massiveness and grace inherent in natural forms characterizes these sculptures, which suggest an abundance of influences, from the totems of other cultures to the weighty mass and curvy appendages of Miro, to the enclosures of Bulkeley's own work. The marks made in carving the wood are compared by the artist to the brushmarks of his later paintings.

Lafo points out, as well, that the paint application in the later works is a conscious "loosening up" by the artist from his earlier emphasis on surface detail and meticulous control. We see in the pastels, contact sheet of floor drawings, and oils on paper in the upstairs galleries, Bulkeley moving toward what he terms the "slathering on" of paint.

Along with the change in paint handling is a change in spatial presentation of the paintings. The buildings that once pushed against the frontal plane of the picture, to be penetrated by the windows of enigmatic narrative content, begin to open up to the space of the streets and passages around them in 1984, so that odd, shrouded figures may walk through. Events begin to occur outside the buildings as well as inside them.

Finally, in the latest works in the show, the space is opened into a landscape populated with birds, animals and furry human-like

Morgan Bulkeley: Two Decades is a full and extraordinary journey through the life of an artist who takes a no-holds-barred hard look at himself and the world, allowing all the ambiguities to make appearances.

Writing does no justice to the visual revelations of Bulkeley's work. There is still time to see this remarkable exhibition, on view through Nov. 29, and it should not be missed. The DeCordova Museum is located on Sandy Pond Road in Lincoln and is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends. Call 259-8355.

What's On the Boards?

La Cage

My Arm, The Promenade, Song on The Sand, Look Over There, The Best of Times and the plaintive I Am What I Am, and the choreography by Scott Salmon is lively, creative and varied. Indeed, the rousing can-can number by Les Cagelles proved to be the high point of the show!

What made the original production so special was that director Arthur Laurents held his actors in check. Georges and Albin were portrayed as sympathetic human beings, which was part of the charm. Leads were careful not to overplay their characters. Under the misguided, shoddy direction of Fritz Holt and James Pentecost, the very qualities Laurents stymied are milked to death!

Georges and Jacob burlesque their roles as flagrant homosexuals, faggoty and tasteless. The result is an off-center focus with audiences laughing at them rather than with them. Georges should have taken heed of his own dialogue, "Discretion is the better part of marriage"!

Harvey Evans is commendable as Albin and undoubtedly would have shown to even greater advantage in a superior production. As Georges, Larry Kert is just plain terrible. For the most part he has little projection and his singing voice is painfully thin. Had he concentrated less on showboating and more on acting, which was totally flat and insincere, he would have been better off.

Dan O'Grady as Jean-Michel displays a most pleasant singing voice (something the original was devoid of). Sheila Smith is fine as Jaqueline, owner of the niteclub; Wendy Oliver is winsome and winning as Anne; and Les Cagelles, even though slimmed down from an even dozen to eight, are excellent.

Gillette

Des McAnuff, with whom Hauptman had just collaborated on the premiere musical Big River at the A.R.T.

A second version of Gillette was staged by McAnuff at his theatre in La Jolla, California in the summer of 1985. Since that time Hauptman has revised and expanded the scope of the play introducing four new characters and seven new scenes providing greater dimension to many of the characters and depth to the ambition and scope of the play.

The boom or bust themes of the play have taken on even more significance today than in 1985. The plot continues to focus on the adventures of two drifters, Mickey Hollister and Bobby Nobis, who arrive in the modern-day boom town of Gillette, Wyoming looking for freedom, love, and coin in a down-and-out world of bikers, cowboys, prostitutes, and oil riggers. Confronted by high inflation and unscrupulous business operators, the two are tested to the limit of their resources. When they meet two strong-minded women, even their friendship is threatened. For Mickey, the older of the two, this may be his last chance to score, while Bobby, the innocent, is getting his first taste of freedom and life in the real world.

Subscriptions to the entire five-play Mainstage series are still available for as low as $55. Subscription information and individual tickets are available by calling the A.R.T. Box Office 547-8300 seven days a week between 11 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or by stopping by the A.R.T. at 64 Brattle St., Cambridge. Tickets range in price from $13 to $26, depending on the day or night of the week and location of seats in the theatre.

Student, group, and senior citizen discounts are available. Performance times are as follows: Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m.; Sunday evening at 7 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

Stuffing adds panache and should reflect the season

Of all the components of a traditional Thanksgiving feast, the stuffing usually gets the least attention.

It is monochromatic alongside the kaleidoscope of fresh vegetables, crudites and relishes.

It is soft and squishy compared to the crackly mahogany skin of the turkey and the nutty cranberry confiture.

But its fragrance and moisture-maintaining qualities add panache to the plebeian all-American bird. And the wealth of regional recipes available today gives the tradition-bound cook a chance to experiment and create a new family tradition.

Since Thanksgiving is a celebration of the harvest, it is appropriate that the turkey stuffing, too, reflects the autumn season with a variety of ingredients.

Start with ground beef and sausage, wild rice, soaked and squeezed bread cubes or a blend of these.

Then add crunch with walnuts, pecans or macadamia nuts. Add richness with roasted chestnuts. Add zest with green apples and citrus juices.

Dried apricots, prunes and figs give bread stuffing a chewy texture and deep fruity taste. Raisins soaked first in cognac or port wine impart spirit. Fluffy scrambled eggs add a soufflelike lightness.

Parmesan cheese gives a elusive creaminess and a salty savor that obviates the need for additional salt.

And aromatic herbs such as sage, thyme, rosemary, chervil and parsley add personality. Each time the oven door is opened, the bird sizzles, crackles and sends inviting herbed smells throughout the house.

Chef Dennis Barry, 34, educated at the Culinary Institute Of America, doesn't remember the turkey stuffing of his youth too well, but is sure that it was "fresh bread stuffing; not from a package."

Barry will stuff his turkey with bread stuffing ("I like to use day-old French baguettes...the semolina dough is richer tasting") moistened with fresh turkey stock and seasoned with minced celery and fresh sage. He cautions that sage plants vary in intensity of flavor and recommends that the cook first make a sage "tea" with boiling water to determine how potent the leaves are. "Then mince the fresh, dry sage leaves and add to the stuffing accordingly," says Barry.

Cindy Black, executive chef of the Piret's chain, likes the classic bread stuffing, but with a difference. "I like it soggy," the busy but unflappable chef says with a laugh, "real soggy."

Black starts with a sausage and garlic base. "Then I add lots of onion, lots of sage, turkey stock and fresh bread...that's what makes it so soggy," she says.

Although the home cook can "doll it up with chestnuts and other things," Black insists that the simplest is the best.

Doug Organ grew up in San Jose, Calif., on packaged stuffing. "But my mother did cut her own celery and carrots," quips the 24-year-old chef. "That's about the closest she got to homemade."

Organ is not a big turkey-stuffing fan. "I cook a turkey dinner for my family but I never stuff the bird," he says, "I always find other things to do with it."

Has he, in fact, ever prepared a stuffing for poultry, we asked? "Gee, not that I can remember," says Organ, "except for helping my mother open the package."

We offer these recipes taken from America's various regional cuisines.

GRAND MARNIER APRICOT STUFFING

1 cup diced dried apricots
1½ cups Grand Marnier
Turkey liver and heart
1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter
2 cups coarsely chopped celery
1 large yellow onion chopped
1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 pound herb stuffing mix
1 cup slivered almonds
2 cups chicken stock
½ teaspoon dried thyme
Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Place apricots and 1 cup of Grand Marnier in small saucepan. Heat to boiling, remove from heat and set aside. Simmer turkey liver and heart in water to cover in small saucepan for 5 minutes. Set aside to cool.

Melt ½ cup butter in large skillet over medium heat. Add celery and onion and saute for 10 minutes. Transfer to large mixing bowl.

Cook pork sausage in same skillet, crumbling with fork until no longer pink. Remove from heat and add to celery mixture.

Add stuffing mix, apricot with liquid and almonds. Finely dice turkey liver and heart and add to stuffing mixture. Stir to combine.

Heat remaining ½ cup butter and stock in small saucepan just until butter melts. Pour over stuffing mixture and add remaining ½ cup Grand Marnier. Stir well to moisten stuffing. Season with thyme and salt and pepper to taste.

Makes enough for a 21- to 24-pound turkey.

The Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Rd., Lexington, presents Atlantic Bridge with Jane Rothfield on fiddle and banjo and Allan Carr on guitar and mandolin in a 3 p.m. free concert of Celtic and American music, Nov. 29. Call 861-6559.

VEAL, PORK AND SAGE STUFFING

¾ pound finely ground lean veal
¾ pound ground pork
2 cups finely chopped onions
2 cups finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon garlic
1 bay leaf, finely chopped
½ teaspoon dried thyme
2 tablespoons dried leaf sage, chopped
1 cup fresh or canned chicken broth
2 cups oven-baked bread crumbs, baked until golden brown
½ cup finely chopped parsley
¼ cup melted butter
1 egg, well beaten
Salt to taste, if desired
Freshly ground pepper to taste

Put veal and port in large skillet without fat. Cook, stirring and chopping down with side of heavy kitchen spoon to break up lumps. Cook until meat gives up its liquid. Then cook until liquid is evaporated.

Add onions, celery, garlic, bay leaf, thyme and sage and cook, stirring, until meat starts to brown on bottom. Add broth and cook, stirring all around the bottom to dissolve brown particles that cling there.

Scrape mixture into mixing bowl and add bread crumbs, parsley, butter, egg, salt and pepper. Blend well. Set aside to cool. Yield: About 6 cups.

CORN BREAD-SAUSAGE STUFFING WITH APPLES

12 tablespoons (1½ sticks) sweet butter
2½ cups finely chopped yellow onions
3 tart apples (Johathan and Winesap are good), cored and chunked; do not peel
1 pound lightly seasoned bulk sausage (breakfast sausage with sage is best)
3 cups coarsely crumbled corn bread (preferably homemade)
3 cups coarsely crumbled whole wheat bread
3 cups coarsely crumbled white bread (French or homemade preferred)
2 teaspoons dried thyme
1 teaspoon dried sage
Salt and fresh ground black pepper, to taste
½ cup chopped Italian parsley
1½ cups shelled pecan halves

Melt half of butter in skillet. Add chopped onions and cook over medium heat, partially covered, until tender and lightly colored, about 25 minutes. Transfer onions and butter to large mixing bowl.

Melt remaining butter in same skillet. Add apple chunks and cook over high heat until lightly colored but not mushy. Transfer apples ad butter to mixing bowl.

Crumble sausage into skillet and cook over medium heat, stirring, until lightly browned. With a slotted spoon, transfer sausage to mixing bowl and reserve rendered fat.

Add remaining ingredients to ingredients in mixing bowl and combine gently. Cool completely before stuffing bird; refrigerate if not used promptly.

If you do not wish actually to stuff bird (goose or duck, for example, can make the stuffing greasy), spoon it into casserole. Cover casserole and set into large pan. Pour hot water around caserole to come halfway up sides. Bake for 30 to 45 minutes at 325 F, basting occasionally with cooking juices from bird or with reserved sausage fat, if necessary.

Makes enough stuffing for a 20-pound turkey, to make 12 to 14 portions.

Where to buy antiques in this area

Woburn. As a rule, these shows have about 365 dealers and are heavily promoted and popular.

How much time do you have? Large shows can take an entire afternoon, especially if you take your time and look at every booth.

What do you want to see? Read the antiques papers for descriptions of upcoming shows and auctions. Shop ads will often include a specialty if there is one. By the way, the term "general line" usually means a little bit of everything — jewelry and linens to furniture and china.

How much can you spend? Show dealers and single shop owners may reduce a price slightly, and you should ask. Co-ops prices usually stay as marked, unless the dealer happens to be around when you visit. (Co-op dealers aren't at the shop every day.) However, if you see something you want, always ask, "Can you do better on this?"

CAR CARE CORNER

By Dan Hogan, Service Manager

Next time you've got your grubby clothes on, locate your wheel lug wrench, pry off all the hubcaps, and see if you can get all the wheel lugs loose... Just bust each one loose, then tighten it up again... If they'll all come loose fine—think no more about it...But every now and then, you'll try this and find that one or two nuts just won't budge, they've been on there so long that they've just about sent down roots...If you find any like this, try all the tricks you know about how to deal with stuck nuts...and if you fail, go down to your favorite dealer and have them "free them" up with their wrench. This little inspection and fixing...it now & then-you have to will spare you from getting a flat in the middle of nowhere and finding a lug nut that Samson at his hairiest couldn't bust loose.

Town looking at $1,350,000 deficit in 1989

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The Town of Winchester will face a budget deficit in fiscal year 1989, a report by Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer predicts.

To maintain the current level of services in FY-89, the town will have to spend $34.25 million, but will only raise $32.9 million, according to the report. Maurer predicts that the deficit will increase another $500,000 in FY-90.

The town has two options: reduce spending, or increase taxes. Maurer outlined five alternatives that the town can opt for when creating the 1989 budget.

Selectman Mark Lombardi said at the Board of Selectmen's meeting Monday night that he prefers Maurer's first option, reducing spending.

"I like the first plan," Lombardi said. "Live within your means."

Maurer's other alternatives include the creation of a water and sewer enterprise fund. Under the fund, all water and sewer costs would be separated from the Department of Public Utilities budget. All the funds for water and sewer expenses would come from a user fee.

The third alternative combines use of the enterprise fund with an increase in fees for specific municipal services.

Another option calls for appropriating money from the stabilization fund, which currently has

Baptist church picks up pieces in aftermath of four-alarm fire

Pastor Huegel estimates replacement cost at $500,000

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

With the initial shock behind them, members of the First Baptist Church and its pastor, Rev. William Huegel, are making plans to rebuild the church they would have rededicated on December 6.

A four-alarm fire blazed undetected the morning of Nov. 19 for an estimated three hours, destroying much of the remodelling the church has undergone in the past six months. Huegel said he hopes to reproduce that work as closely as possible and as quickly as possible.

Sunday services for the First Baptist congregation will be held at the Jenks Senior Center until Huegel can make more permanent arrangements.

The flames spared the new kitchen, ladies' parlor, offices, and classrooms in the basement, although those rooms did sustain smoke and water damage, according to the pastor. The social hall located in the basement was destroyed.

Winchester Fire Chief Robert McElhinney said the probable cause of the fire is spontaneous combustion of linseed oil rags. The rags were stored in the church' basement by painters and construction workers renovating the building.

McElhinney said he believes the fire smoldered for hours before the first alarm was sounded at 6:29 a.m. by police officer Lewis Best.

When the first fire squad arrived, firefighter Tim Coss said the smoke was so thick he couldn't see the building. "The fire burned through four-inch timbers," Coss said, "That's how intense it was."

"We had a brand-new alarm system that was very elaborate. It had a panel on the wall, so when fire personnel got there, they could tell where the trouble spots were," Huegel said. The church's new fire alarm system was scheduled for hook-up to the fire station some time next week. There was no working system when the fire broke out.

Fire Chief Robert McElhinney estimated the damages at $400,000. Huegel called that figure conservative. He said the church's pipe organ alone will cost between $150,000 and $200,000. He estimated $500,000 as closer to the actual figure.

Huegel said most of the damage occurred in front of the sanctuary; the altar, pulpit and communion table were badly burned. The church lost choir robes and hymn books that had been stored in its music room as well.

"Insurance will cover a significant portion of the costs," Huegel said. "We had as much insurance as we could get." To supplement the insurance payment, the church will set up a fire fund to receive donations.

Don't bloat, gloat this Thanksgiving

By MARGARET McINDOE
Special to the Star

The words "holiday" and "feast" are synonymous in many languages. Religious and family gatherings prompt people to plan, prepare and consume rich delicacies they do not eat at other times during the year.

Individuals whose diets contain caloric, sodium, sugar, or other restrictions often find holiday periods especially difficult. While others anticipate indulging in overeating and rich foods, they are forced to observe restrictions in order to maintain their health. Although families and friends include them in celebrations, the search for appetizing foods everyone can enjoy can create frustration. As a result, people on restricted diets eat separate meals or are excluded from gatherings that involve eating and drinking.

Pamela Cote, cheif dietician at Winchester Hospital, says "Holiday feast planning for restricted diets can be as rewarding as any other type of menu planning. This is a time when most cooks take extra time to plan menus. It is possible to keep 'the old favorites' and make them fit restricted diets. The extra thought requried to consider these diets can be especially rewarding."

Anyone who plans to cook for a restricted diet should first consult the ingredient list for a recipe. Most cookbooks have lists of ingredient substitutions that help make food acceptable for restricted diets without altering the taste of the dish.

Except for occasional cakes and breads that require specific balances among ingredients, cooks can reduce the amount of sugar and other ingredients by a third or half. In many others, substitutes can eliminate sugar, salt, or other ingredients almost completely.

Likewise, although many people do not like skim, low-fat, and non-fat dry milks, they can be used without noticeable taste changes. Low-fat yogurt is a good substitute for sour cream and mayonnaise as a topping, thickener or base for dips.

Vegetables and meats can be cooked and served with broth, salt substitutes, herbs, spices and flavorings instead of butter, margarine or creamed sauces.

Bakers may consider substituting

Students study roots of Thanksgiving feast

The elementary schools around Winchester have been gearing up for Thanksgiving Day. Here's a quick peek at a couple of classrooms:

Giving is the theme for the holiday season at Muraco Elememtary School and Kathleen Driscoll's kindergarten class has been preparing for the Thanksgiving holiday with a concentration on the Native Americans.

In a classroom decorated with maps showing the settlements and a teepee constructed by Miss Driscoll's brother, the students have studied the way the Indians lived, what they ate, their weapons, and even symbol writing. The class also tried their hand at Indian pottery.

The class will be joined by the other Muraco kindergarten, David Worthen's class, for an Indian-Pilgrim feast. Pilgrim and Indian costumes will be worn for the celebra-

Certain people mind the store during the Thanksgiving holiday

By GEORGE NORMAN

While most people are home celebrating the Thanksgiving holiday Kathy Johnson will be working. Johnson is an emergency room technician (ERT) at the Winchester hospital.

When asked how she felt about working holidays, she said "Thanksgiving is a time for family, and I come from a big family, so I feel bad." At the same time, Johnson says "helping people is fulfilling" in its own right.

Johnson worked last Thanksgiving and because of this, says her boss, Joanne Dyson, "This year she had a choice between Christmas or Thanksgiving and she chose Thanksgiving."

"She feels bad about me working," said Johnson, laughing and looking at Dyson, "that's why she's having my husband over for dinner." Johnson said she is newly married. She is used to working on holidays but her husband doesn't like it.

When asked what her husband thought about her having to work on the holiday, Johnson said that she didn't want to repeat that information for publication. Dyson said that she and Johnson's husband will sit back and talk about how nice it is not to have to work on a holiday, but she then laughed and said, "seriously, we'll miss having her there."

Johnson and Dyson both agreed that the anticipation of working on a holiday is worse than the actual work itself. Dyson said of Thanksgivings

Great cellist tries to keep his head in a star's glittering world

By MARA ROSENBLATT
Special to the Star

The last thing one would think reknowned cellist and Winchesterite Yo-Yo Ma would talk about is the town dump, but he says his family loves Winchester, particularly the dump.

"Everyone gathers there, whether it is the local politicians who are campaigning or neighbors you haven't seen in awhile If you need to know what is going on in town, it's at the dump," laughed the 32-year-old Ma in a telephone interview last Wednesday.

Currently on tour with violinists Isaac Stern and Emmanuel Ax, Ma discussed the difficulty of balancing his career, which leads him all over the world on tours, with wanting to be home with his family. "Both are very important to me and it is hard to combine the two," he commented.

He and his wife Jill have two children, Nicholas, 4, and Emily, 2. "When they were very young, I could take them along, but now with school it will be less easy," said Ma.

When asked if it is hard to combine the emotional expression of playing with the demand of a concert tour, Ma said, "It comes with the territory of being a professional. . .There may be late planes and lost luggage, but when you're on stage, you turn a switch and concentrate on the music. But it is not anonymous like pop concert tours. I have developed friendships over the years of playing and have learned a lot about different communities. It keeps me interested in the tours."

The trio he was performing with was staying at a friend's home. During the interview, a maternal voice picked up another extension and asked if Ma was feeling okay and would like some breakfast. Hearing his scratchy voice, she offered to get a doctor. "Sophie, I'm really perfectly okay and will be right out after this interview." After she put down the receiver, he said, "See what I mean?"

Ma's warmth and exuberance flowed through the phone lines. He wanted an update on the weather, saying it was probably nicer in Winchester than in overcast Palm Springs.

Concern for one's happiness is a priority for Ma. Ma, who has been compared to such masters as Rostropovich and Casals, performed his first public recital at the age of 5. Additionally, he has been honored with Grammys in each of the last four years. Part of his goal is to change the image classical seems to have.

"It has a bad name, people tend to think of it as elitist. But if you look at Mozart and Schubert, they barely had enough to eat."

Who listens to classical music now and will that change? Ma thinks the audiences are changing and would like to help expand them. "My colleagues and I agree: we love college campuses. The students are unbelievably enthusiastic." He sees the involvement of more students as a fresh reaction.

When his children were born, he also decided that he wanted younger children to experience classical music and went on Sesame Street, and Mr. Roger's Neighborhood. "I wanted to break down the barriers. If a kid grows up seeing a cello, then they will think this is part of their world." He feels that even if they lose touch with listening to classical music in their teens, they may be interested in it later.

But for those children who have a great interest and talent (child prodigies), Ma emphasizes well-roundedness. Music families are not unlike tennis families, suggests Ma. "But the achievements are dependent on the individual," he says. Luck, drive, and talent are other key developmental factors.

Ma was born in Paris of Chinese parents. He began his cello studies with his father at the age of 4. Later he studied with Janos Scholtz and in

Kraus backs bill for next session

Nov. 4 was the deadline for filing bills for the 1988 legislative year. Beacon Hill was a flurry of activity as legislators, lobbyists and citizens worked to get sponsors for hundreds of new and refiled bills.

Sen. Richard A. Kraus (D-Arlington) signed on to many bills for the 1988 session that would affect education, human services and the environment.

Included among the new and refiled bills Kraus sponsored are:

*an omnibus legislative package that focuses on improving student learning and improving the conditions of teaching in the Commonwealth;

*the Up to Poverty bill, which would raise AFDC benefits up to the nationally determined poverty level. Currently benefits in Massachusetts fall much below this level;

*the JCAH accreditation bill, which would require that state mental hospitals be brought up to the standards set by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals;

*the Toxic Use Reduction Act, which would encourage the reduction of toxics in industry;

*the Household Hazardous Waste bill, which would re-fund a grant program for towns to sponsor household hazardous waste collection days;

*three bills relating to the impact of Hanscom Air Force Base on nearby towns;

*a state funded "circuit breaker" bill, which would rebate a portion of the amount of property tax paid by homeowners and renters with incomes of less than $30,000.

"The next legislative year promises to be a full and challenging one. I am hopeful that the legislature will be able to act on a number of important and necessary bills," Kraus commented.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, November 22

At 10:44 a.m. a Rock Avenue man called police to complain about youths congregating in the wooded area at the end of the street, police said.

In the warm months, the man told police, the young people party and subject residents to loud and obscene language. In the winter, the man said, he cannot hear the youths, but he believes they have been stealing his firewood. The resident said he believes they start bonfires to keep warm outside at night with his wood, according to police.

Wood disappears every weekend night, he reported. According to police reports, the resident estimated that 1½ cord of 14-inch split oak was missing.

Saturday, November 21

At 6:53 p.m. police arrived at the scene of a five-vehicle accident at the intersection of High and Cembridge Streets.

A tractor-trailer that heading east on High Street lost air pressure, causing its brakes to fail. The truck was involved in an accident with three cars: a 1979 Mercedes-Benz box truck driven by a Brookline man, a 1974 Chevrolet Malibu driven by a Govenors Avenue woman, and a 1985 Chevrolet hatchback owned by a Dracut woman. The cars were stopped at a red light on Cambridge Street. All three cars sustained extensive damage to their right sides, according to police.

The tractor-trailer then was involved in a collision with a 1987 Cadillac driven by a Ridge Street man. The car was pushed into the middle of the intersection. The Cadillac was the first car stopped at the same traffic light. It sustained extensive rear-end damage, police said.

The truck came to rest on Cambridge Street. The left side of the tractor and trailer were damaged, but no one was injured, according to police.

The truck driver was issued citations for faulty equipment and having no license in his possession, police reported.

At 1:52 p.m. police arrived at a home on Meadowcroft Road to investigate a burglary.

The couple who lives in the house said some of the woman's jewelry was missing from their bedroom, according to police reports. The only times the house was not occupied was Friday, Nov. 20, from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. and from 2 to 3:30 p.m., the couple told police.

Police searched the house and found a screen in the master bedroom window had been cut. The window was not locked, police said. The couple indicated that the damage was new. Police believe the bedroom is the only room the intruder entered, as nothing else was missing, according to reports.

Friday, November 20

While on patrol at 6:06 p.m., a police officer noticed a man he recognized driving south on Cambridge Street in a blue Chevrolet pickup truck, according to police reports.

Since the officer said he knew the man did not have a valid driver's license, he pulled the driver over at Wildwood Street and asked for his license, police said.

A computer check showed no record of a license for the man. Police then called the registry. The registry records showed that the man's license had been revoked and that he was eligible to re-apply, according to police.

The driver was arrested on charges of operating without having obtained a driver's license, police said.

Arlington Appliance shop seeks to provide local touch

Peter Freedman, owner of Patriot Appliance, believes the appliance industry is changing.

"There was a time when only a large department store could properly serve the needs of the consumer. Now, the trend is shifting toward the smaller, local, independent dealer who can offer customers a good selection of quality name brands, discount prices, and something that is frequently missing in a large store — personal service," Freedman said. Located at 1201 Massachusetts Ave., Patriot Appliance opened its doors on Sept. 1.

Although this is the first business that Freedman has owned, he has 15 years of wholesale and retail experience in the appliance industry. He also believes in the old-fashioned notion that "The customer must come first."

He said, "Providing the consumer with excellent service, wide selection, and discount prices are my primary concerns. This isn't a place where customers will be greeted by a kid off the street who only wants to make a sale. Nor will I be conveniently absent if there's a problem. My time is also available for someone who just wants advice on what model to buy."

Freeman chose Arlington because of its location and he hopes to service people from Belmont, Winchester, and Lexington as well as Arlington. As for the name, he said "Arlington was the birthplace of Uncle Sam and you can't get more patriotic than that!"

Patriot Appliance on Massachusetts Avenue in Arlington Heights brings large products to the local scale. (Paul Drake photo)

Patriot Appliance sells merchandise small and large, from Walkmans, irons, and humidifiers to dishwashers, stoves, and refrigerators. Freedman will also order any appliance that isn't in stock. During the holiday shopping season, Freedman expects his most popular items to be televisions and VCRs.

Because Arlington has a high senior citizen population, Freedman offers special service on television sales. "If someone buys a set from us, we give free delivery and free hook-up to cable or a VCR," he said.

Hand in hand with television sales goes television repair service, and Freedman offers that as well. He said, "Avery's, the business that occupied our location for approximately 54 years, repaired televisions and we're carrying on that tradition. I've negotiated with a TV repair person to give our customers free repair estimates, a service that many businesses do not offer. If the television can't be brought into the store, then there is a charge of $34.95. However, half of that fee is applied toward a new set, if the repair estimate exceeds the current value of the set."

Prices at Patriot Appliance vary according to manufacturer, model, and size. Said Freedman, "There are models to match every budget, from top of the line names like KitchenAid, Maytag, and JENNAIR to more modest manufacturers like Whirlpool, Hot Point, Frigidaire, Tappan, Caloric, and many others.

He believes that the biggest mistake consumers make is purchasing an appliance based only on the price. "You have to look at the quality, the features, and the benefits of a particular item. There are times when you may spend a bit more on a appliance, but you will save in the long run because of the service record and longevity of the product."

Thus far, people have been very receptive to Freedman and his business. He believes that "people today are looking for an alternative to the large, impersonal department store. The malls do a high volume, but their prices don't favor the consumer." However, he quickly admited that "a local business can't survive without the support of the local residents. The smaller merchant simply doesn't have the marketing and advertising budget that larger stores have."

To Freedman, success in business means establishing a good reputation in town, and supporting the business and his family. Patriot Appliance & Television is located at 1201 Massachusetts Ave. in Arlington, MA. Their store hours are Monday through Wednesday 9:00-5:30; Thursday and Friday 9:00 to 8:00; Saturday 9:00 to 5:00 and for the holiday season Sunday 12:00 to 5:00.

Soviet emigre gets to visit his children

By MARA ROSENBLATT
Special to the Star

Although he has lived there for one year, the walls of his Swanton Street condo are bare.

It is not that Soviet emigre Boris Galinsky, 40, doesn't have the money; he spends most of his time and money on gifts for his children. They are still in Odessa, a city in the Ukraine, U.S.S.R.

Galinsky (name changed at his request) with a cleft chin and bright blue eyes looks like a short Kurt Douglas. He was granted permission to leave the Soviet Union five years ago. His ex-wife decided to stay and keep their two children, a daughter, 14, and a son, 9. He hopes for the day when they will be old enough to decide to join him. But for now he fears that publicity will harm his children's chance of emigrating. "I was told that if I left Russia, I may never see my children again," he explained with watery eyes. The Soviet authorities were wrong.

Recently, Galinsky has benefitted from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's "glasnost" or "openness." Galinsky has just returned from a 10-day visit with his family in Odessa. He still cannot believe he went back.

"All I had to do was present my passport to the travel agent." One month later he touched down in the Soviet Union. Galinsky also knows of emigres who hold green alien cards who have returned for a short visit. A emigre must live in the United States for five years in order to apply for citizenship.

Will this openness continue or is this a friendly sign before the U.S.-U.S.S.R. summit scheduled for Dec. 7 in Washington, D.C.?

Some U.S. officials are thinking that glasnost has reached its limits, referring to the recent ousting of Boris Yeltsin as head of the Moscow Communist Party. The general feeling in the U.S. is that if a government cannot condone criticism, then it is not a very open society.

Galinsky commented on some noticeable changes during his recent trip. "I met a taxi driver who owned his taxi, but had to pay the government 500 roubles ($750) a year for the privilege. Galinsky said that only in the summer months did he earn near 1,000 roubles each month. The other parts of the year are slow.

Galinsky also said more shops looked run down and out of stock. It took him four hours of searching to find fresh milk for his friend's grandchild.

"American Jews are unique in their fight to help other Jews," he said, but he is still fearful and distrustful of the Soviet government. He doesn't think the new trend toward perestroika (reconstruction of the economy) will be lasting. "It might give Russians some hope, but it is basically the same ideology with new words," Galinsky remarked.

Galinsky's views of a major Soviet societal change are simple: "One, the KGB and police are too strong, no one would try to overthrow them, two, people do not know what freedom is, they do not believe there can be another society that works better than theirs, and three, people are only concerned with how much they can steal from their government," said Galinsky.

He noted that life in the Soviet Union gets worse when a person is known to have applied for an exit visa. His friend, Alexander Feldshtein, who has been waiting for 10 years was initially demoted from department manager of a factory to an entry-level assistant. Now he makes a minimal salary as a construction laborer.

B.U. professor to speak on 'post-crash' economics

Professor David McClain, chairman of the finance department at Boston University and former senior staff economist, President's Council of Economic Advisers, will speak about "Investing in the post-crash economic environment Tuesday, Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

His talk will cover such timely topics as: What factors contributed to the crash? How have policymakers here and abroad responded to minimize the economic damage? How does this compare with the 1929 experience? What contributions will easy money, a weaker dollar, budget-deficit discipline and foreign economic growth make to the correction of our economic problems? Can we avoid a recession? What kinds of investments are likely to perform well in the post-crash international economy?

These questions, and those from the audience, will be addressed in McClain's remarks on the national and international scene. The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library, and is free to the public.

Football team banquet Dec. 6

Donations may be made in care of Richard J. Winn, 23 Carter St. in Winchester.

Fit for a sheik

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, former Saudi oil minister, enjoys an after dinner coffee at Ristorante Lucia. Yamani was there last Friday night with a food taster, his wife, Tamam Alanbar, and plenty of limousines and bodyguards. Carney Gavin, curator of the Harvard Semitic Museum, was showing Yamani the town, and the sheik wanted to try Gavin's favorite restaurant. According to reports, Yamani is going to send Lucia's owner, Fillipo Frattaroli, a new recipe for pizza. (Paul Drake Photo)

Hospital friends hear reports

The fall meeting of the Friends of Winchester Hospital was held Oct. 22 at the home of Karin Brown. Prior to the meeting coffee was served by Joy Rosettos, chairman of Hospitality and her committee. Pourers were Hilda Gaffney and Lois Pike, who are currently members of the Friends Executive Board and who have performed in-hospital services of 2,000 and 1,500 hours respectively.

President Averill Olson opened the meeting by introducing Eugene Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital, who informed the membership of some of the current projected activities at the hospital.

The Maternity Project opening is expected in the late fall of 1988. Progress on the construction of the Maternity Project is going well and should be completed on schedule.

Loubier noted that the Massachusetts economic environment is most unfavorable to hospitals and that Winchester Hospital has been underfinanced since 1982. It has next to the lowest cost for care in the Commonwealth and thus is hurting due to cost containment.

In further announcements, Loubier mentioned that in January full anaesthesia coverage will begin in maternity, and as a result of a joint project with Boston Hospital, there will be coverage by a neonatalist.

The Maternity Unit is vital to the livelihood of Winchester Hospital, Loubier said. The current rate of 1,500 births per annum is expected to escalate to the 2,000 level by the end of 1988. The new cardiovascular laboratory opening in the x-ray department will further enhance Winchester's diagnostic capabilities.

Marie Johnson, chairman of volunteers, reflected on her annual report which notes that members of the friends accounted for more than 20,000 hours of the total 39,525 hours of service contributed to Winchester Hospital in the past year.

The guest speaker was Dr. John W. Stakes, a Winchester resident, who currently directs the sleep laboratory at Massachusetts General Hospital to study clinical neurophysiology. Appropriately, the title of his speech was "Sleep Disorders."

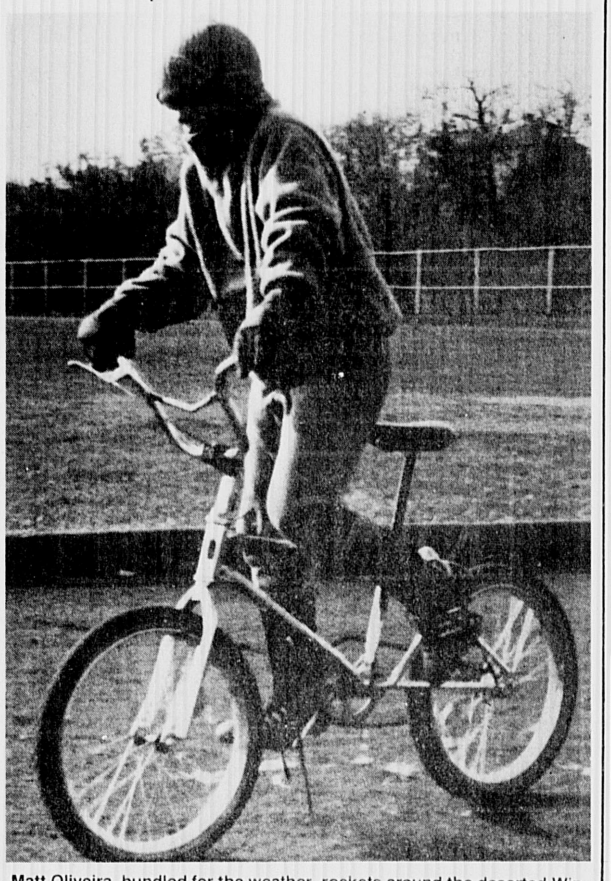

Stakes is a graduate of Williams College and Cornell Medical University. He trained in internal medicine and neurology at MGH, where he was awarded a fellowship in clinical neurophysiology.

Big crowd at game adds to traffic jams

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

Thanksgiving is a holiday full of traditions and unfortunately a modern day Thanksgiving tradition is the traffic en route to the turkey.

Although the worst traffic day is generally the day before the holiday, Winchester will experience heavy traffic flow on Thanksgiving Day. Winchester Police Officer Kevin Mawn said a crowd of 15,000 to 20,000 is expected for the traditional Winchester-Woburn Thanksgiving Day game. Woburn, a strong contender for this year's Super Bowl, will draw alot of spectators.

Elsewhere around the country, the day before Thanksgiving is the worst traffic day of the year according to Allan R. McKinnon, chairman of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority. He urges all travelers, if possible, to avoid the peak hours of the holiday rush. The heaviest congestion starts Wednesday around 12:00 noon and continues through 8:00 p.m. the same day.

"We will do all we can to alleviate traffic problems, but we need help from travelers. We want patrons of the Pike to have the safest, most trouble-free ride possible', McKinnon said.

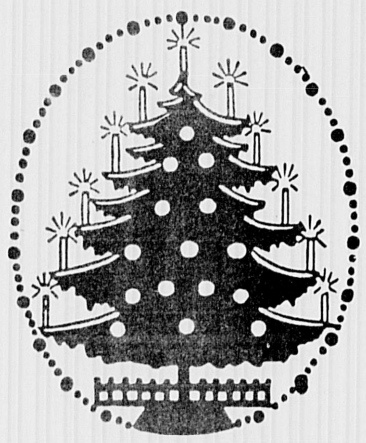

Additional Massachusetts State Police patrols will be available along with twice the usual amount of Emergency Service patrols to assist disabled vehicles.

Along the Mass Pike, free coffee will be provided at the Burger King, Roy Rogers, and Howard Johnson's restaurants, courtesy of the Marriott Corporation. Certificates for the coffee will be given out at the toll booths for Pike travelers between 10:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 26th, through 7:00 a.m. on Friday, November 27th. Coffee breaks and occasional rest stops are advisable to keep alert and assure a safe journey.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL
Volume 13-Report No. 47
Massachusetts House
November 16-20, 1987

The House. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on three roll calls from the week of November 16-20.

AIDS Pamphlet (H 6225)- House 93-38, suspended rules to allow introduction of an order providing for a special committee to investigate spending of funds by the state for AIDS education services and the granting of funds to the AIDS Action Committee. The order also requires a study of whether AIDS education publications paid for by public funds contain language or illustration which are unnecessarily graphic or suggestive.

Rule suspension supporters said a recent AIDS education pamphlet encouraging "safer sex" was too explicit and graphic and amounted to filth.

Some opponents said the Health Care Committee is already looking into the matter. Others, noting public funds were not used for the pamphlet, noted it was only distributed to gays and claimed blunt language is sometimes necessary to get the point across and save lives.

A Yea vote is for rule suspension. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Racing (H 6220)- House 92-32, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate the bill designed to bail out Suffolk Downs. The controversial section of the measure reduces the state's share of revenue from 3 percent to three fourths of a percent.

Supporters said the bill insures the track continues to operate and noted it will still generate some revenue for the state and will save thousands of jobs.

Opponents said the bill is special interest legislation to beef up owner Buddy LeRoux's earnings and claimed there are many unanswered questions about the track and its finances.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Gambling Fund (H 6220)- House 86-42, rejected a racing bill amendment earmarking a small percentage of Suffolk Downs revenue to a state Chronic Gambler's Treatment Fund.

Amendment supporters said this would provide $125,000 to help chronic gamblers with their problems.

Opponents said the bill is designed to keep an ailing industry alive and argued it is not the time for amendments which may be worthy but further splinter the relief.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

The Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on 4 roll calls from the week of November 16-20.

Gay Rights (H 5469)- Senate 21-13, refused to table the "gay rights" bill prohibiting discrimination on housing, employment, credit and public accomodations based on sexual orientation.

Bill supporters said the measure protects the fundatmental civil rights of gays. Opponents said the bill is anti-family and condones gays.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted no.

Ballot (H 5469)- Senate 20-14, rejected an amendment replacing the "gay rights" bill with a bill simply placing a question on the March 1988 presidential primary ballot asking voters whether the legislature should "pass an act providing additional legal rights based upon sexual orientation."

Amendment supporters said this will delay the bill until voters can express their opinion.

Opponents said this kills the bill and argued civil rights should not be the subject of a ballot question.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

Legitimize (H 5469)- Senate 27-6, rejected an amendment changing the title of the "gay rights bill" from "an act making it unlawful to discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation" to "an act legitimizing the homosexual lifestyle."

Amendment supporters said this will tell the public exactly what the bill does despite the fact that practicing homosexuality is illegal in the state.

Opponents said the amendment is just another attempt to delay the bill and said the bill is all about civil rights and consenting adults.

A Yea Vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

REAL ESTATE TODAY
by Ann Blackham C.R.B.
PRICE OF OVERPRICING

When you decide to sell your home, the single most important factor in the sale is PRICE. The way you use your price-setting power will determine several factors: how quickly the house will sell; how difficult it will be to find a qualified buyer; and how much profit you stand to gain.

What happens if the price you set is too high? Consider the serious homeseeker whose requirements your house can fill. Suppose there are three such houses available in the area, and the other two carry more realistic price tags. Will that potential buyer even take the time to view yours?

It's not healthy, financially, for a home to sit unsold for a long period of time. The first month of initial exposure to the market is generally considered "prime time" for obtaining the best price. Residential real estate specialists agree that very often the first offer received turns out to be the best one. Don't lose this window of opportunity by overpricing.

Computers make a debut at the Jenks Senior Center

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Some weeks ago, the formation of a Computer Club was announced.

Those who enrolled were people who desired to be instructed about the intricacies of the instrument and its varied uses.

A number of members desire to learn how to use this most modern type of equipment. James V. Grasso, realizing that meeting the needs of those who want to learn about the computer, has volunteered to schedule meetings biweekly to introduce the absolute novice to the satisfying experience of useing computers.

The introductory meeting will be on Monday, Dec. 7, or Tuesday, Dec. 8, depending on the group's preference of the meeting day. Since Grasso is still working, the meetings will be from 3 to 4 p.m.

Grasso has had years of experience with various types of microcomputers. He is a member of the Boston Computer Society and editor of a Real Estate Group Newsletter. Having served as chairman and lecturer at many seminars sponsored by the American Management Association and written many articles on business topics, he is well-qualified to instruct a group who desire to learn about the art of computing.

He plans a series of simple inexpensive programs for word processing, newsletter production, designing Christmas cards, and then on to such topics as managing household accounts, checkbooks and investment portfolios, or whatever the group would like to have addressed.

A computer will be made available at each meeting to provide for the experience of each individual in actually using it. There will be no technical jargon such as the term bits, ram, rom, os, and of course, bytes.

After the third or fourth meeting, Grasso will leave a computer at the center for one day a week for members of the class to play with on a strictly scheduled basis that requires sign-ups in advance. These will involve 20 or 30 minutes each, depending on the number of people to be accomodated.

Here is a golden opportunity for free instruction on an instrument that is used widely in today's business and professional world. If interested, sign up at the center reception desk and indicate preference of days.

Home survival skills for elders with sight loss

A new free program will be presented at the Jenks Center by a trained specialist in home adaptations for visually impaired people. Visits to individuals in their homes can be made to discuss some of the common problems they face and ways to go about making their lives happier and safer.

The Vision Foundation program began in January, 1986, with the goal of helping people to learn productive and independent ways of living in their homes while coping with impaired sight.

The Jenks Center Health Committee is bringing Marshall Weimann, program director of the Vision Foundation Elder Services in Watertown, to speak at the Jenks Senior Center Friday, Dec. 4, at 10:30 a.m. in the new auditorium. He will address the needs of people who have visual impairment explaining the services available to those who are not necessarily legally blind but who could use special equipment and resources. Families of visually impaired persons are invited to the presentation. Samples of adaptive aids and appliances will be used for illustration.

Instruction is geared to many domestic skills such as how to cook and sew. Methods of identifying clothing, setting up daily wardrobes like sweater, pants and shirt on the same hanger. Identification of money by the sense of touch is one phase of the teaching.

The Vision Foundation is run primarily by people who have eye problems themselves.

Specific qualifications for instruction are: (1) the person must be 60 years of age or older; (2) the person should show some degree of visual impairment but may not have reached the status of being legally blind; (3) the person should be mentally alert.

This very vital presentation on Friday, Dec. 4, is an opportunity that should be of interest to many people. Come and find out how to be helped and/or help others.

Bernice Reagan looks on as rug-hooking instructor Doris Reid demonstrates the technique.

Rug hooking class at Jenks Center

Three people are learning the interesting art of rug hooking at the Jenks Senior Center. More class members are invited by the instructor, Doris Reid, to participate in this creative art.

If a Hobby Show is planned by the Education Committee of the W.S.A. in the spring of the year, the rug hookers can display an interesting exhibit that will be a "first" at the center in this special art.

Call the center receptionist (721-7136) to enroll in this class that meets biweekly on the first and third Tuesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Lecture on Alzheimer's disease

Recently the Winchester Seniors Association Health Committee provided an informative program by specialists on the dreaded Alzheimer's disease. Dr. William Barone introduced the speaker and informed the audience about the main feature of the disease.

What it is: (1) a progressive, dementing, fatal brain disease; (2) the fourth leading cause of adult death in the U.S.A.; (3) a "democratic disease," found in every segment of the population; (4) an emotional and financial nightmare for victims and families; (5) an economic time bomb for the decades ahead.

What it is not: (1) a natural part of aging; (2) covered by government or most private health insurance; (3) easily diagnosed; (4) limited to the elderly; (5) curable.

The audience participated in a very interesting question period. Barone endeavored to terminate the program on a hopeful, positive note about the future discovery of the basic causes and cure of the disease.

The Shoppe in the lobby of Jenks Center

The Shoppe at the Jenks Senior Center, originated and chaired by Regina Karnilla, needs a steady flow of material for sale. It is not confined to needlecraft. In the past few weeks, Helen Hodgdon has donated three batches of home-canned mustard pickles that sold immediately and brought forth a significant sum for The Shoppe. Regina Karnilla has contributed a large number of articles that have sold quickly and increased the financial intake of this Ways and Means project.

Home canned preserves have a direct appeal for purchasers as well as all types of crafts and stitchery.

See Regina about items that are easily saleable.

Mini Fair at Jenks Senior Center

The annual Mini Fair at Jenks Center will be held on Saturday, Dec. 5, in the Meeting Room. The hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with the snack bar open throughout the fair. Baked goods are solicited from Winchester's excellent cooks. Books will be gratefully accepted, hard covered, paperbacks and magazines. Choice articles for gift table will be greatly appreciated.

Raffle tickets will be on sale for a $25 purchase certificate at Purity Supreme. In addition, a basket of cheer will attract those who are preparing for company during the approaching holidays.

Eating Together program at Jenks Center

The Eating Together program at Jenks Center is off to a good start on Wednesdays and Fridays with a daily average of approximately fifty people in attendance.

On Tuesday, Nov. 24, Lori Lerman, Girl Scout Leader of Troop 1496, Grade 4, Muraco School, delivered Thanksgiving centerpiece decorations for each table to make the preholiday meal more festive. The thoughtfulness of the children and their leader was greatly appreciated by Elaine Di Pietro, site manager, and all the diners.

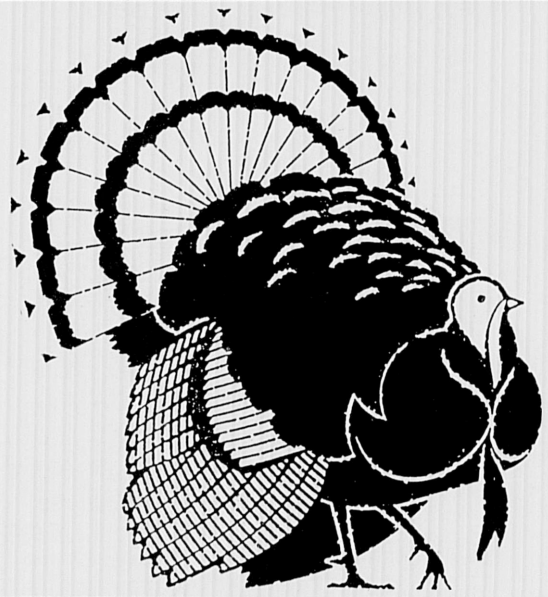

55 Alive/Mature driving course at Jenks Center

The AARP driver education course is scheduled for Dec. 1 and 2 with a small enrollment fee.

The hours on each of the two days will be 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. People who plan to attend must sign up immediately with the receptionist at the Jenks Senior Center.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

A day to rest and count our blessings

It is getting to be the time of year when taking stock becomes appropriate. By New Year's Day some of us may be ready to swear off those little foibles we have detected under the critical glare of our celebratory consciences.

This week, if we find time between bites, we may find a moment to contemplate that for which we ought to be thankful.

Thanksgiving is a holiday we North Americans share with no one else. Other nations have lots to be glad about, for sure, but they spread the celebration of their joy across other available feast days. Easter, for example, takes up some of the slack in the Catholic countries of Europe.

So, what have we to be thankful for?

Well, first of all, it was a very good thing that the native Americans decided to invite the early settlers to share a feast of local bounty instead of serving them as part of the feast. We can certainly be happy about that.

And if smallpox had to be transmitted to an uninoculated population, praise Allah that we gave it to them rather than the other way around.

And it was nice of them, when they died off in droves, to leave us intact cornfields which we could cultivate the very next spring, using their leftover kernels.

Yes, the people who were here before us couldn't have done us a better turn if they had sat down and planned out a welcome program for us. They even gave us the idea of having a feast in late November.

But there is much more. Once we had established our manifest destiny, the land itself gave and gave. Starting from the rich grasslands in the floodplains on which our cattle grew fat, the earth of America opened up her generosity to us. Oil, minerals, game, farmland — we inherited it all with a minimum of sacrifice.

We can be thankful that the Russians, who settled California as far south as Sonoma County, didn't know what they had in their possession. Whatever the reason, they left us some of the most beautiful real estate in the entire world.

Throughout our history luck has broken our way. When, in the early days, the party was at our house, we pushed out the British, French and Spanish to claim the land. When, a century or so later, the toys were much more dangerous and the games much nastier, the party was at theirs, and we were spared the trauma of civilian casualties and destroyed cities.

Although some blessings carry a curse, just the same it is better that we discovered the atomic bomb first. We opened our shores to the oppressed masses of other countries and in the bargain got the people who understood nuclear physics, the "Jewish science," as Hitler called it. Most of them were working for Germany before he drove them out.

And further in that vein, we can be thankful that in 43 years of nuclear empowerment, we haven't totally destroyed ourselves with our atomic gift. In fact, the Pax Americana has worked out pretty well for us, aside from a few dirty little private wars carried on by chief executives without the mandate of the people.

Since Thanksgiving is about eating if nothing else, we should all pay a bit of homage to the fact that 20 million turkeys have died that we might enjoy. Elsewhere in the world populations do not benefit from such mechanized slaughter. Think of Ethiopia, for example.

Our marvelous national distribution system provides fresh vegetables in winter from the San Joaquin Valley. Because of the interstate highway network and its monster truck convoys, the rails and air cargo, all who can afford it may sit down to green beans, lettuce, tomatoes, and even raspberries. The local distribution system brings the rest of the feast to that uniquely American, the supermarket. There can be found unbruised potatoes, yams, onions, squashes as well as prepared stuffing for the celebrant who is only willing to do enough work to get the fork from his plate to his mouth.

Yes, there is much to be thankful about. The stock market, though damaged, still seems to be hanging in there. The general public yet has a positive net worth, smaller, perhaps, than before, but sufficiently ample to take a day off and relax over a good meal. Tomorrow there will be time to worry about how to preserve the value of our hard-won standard of living.

We can also express some gratitude for our system of government. Like one of those fat dolls with the lead bottom, no matter how much we have pommeled it, it still keeps returning to its upright position. Even such a toy can be broken, but at least the original builders did a good job. Even our most childish leaders haven't been able to destroy it. Joe McCarthy got pretty close. Richard Nixon came even closer, almost turning the military into a private police force. Bill Casey got pretty far with his secret government. But each time the system cleansed itself.

Here at the brink of the Christmas-shopping frenzy, it is good that we can take a day to acknowledge the fact that in our bountiful country, most, if not all, people can afford to sit down to a repast with lots of gravy spread all over it in a heated, lighted home among loved ones.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Saltmarsh and Sullivan praise firefighters

TO THE EDITOR:
As observers at the recent early-morning fire at the First Baptist Church, we would like to take this opportunity to commend Chief Robert McElhinney and the other members of the Winchester Fire Department for the tremendous job they did in controlling the blaze.

As former members of the Board of Selectmen who have worked closely with the Winchester Fire Department on staffing and equipment needs, it was with pride and admiration that we witnessed their professionalism in action. There is no doubt that Winchester's firemen are dedicated and well-trained, and that their quick response and initial actions averted an even more disastrous consequence for the neighborhood and the parishoners of the First Baptist Church.

There was no hesitation in assessing the fire's potential severity and the Mutual Aid System with neighboring communities was put into action by Chief McElhinney. Coordination between the units was flawless, and the system worked to the community's advantage, as it was designed to do.

We are indeed proud of the Winchester Fire Department, and extend out thanks to each member for his dedication and performance.

Resident congratulates Park Department

TO THE EDITOR:
Congratulations to the Winchester Park Department for the great job done preparing the tournament soccer field for play Saturday, Nov. 14.

Two days after the worst storm on record in the Boston area, the field was in excellent shape.

Listening to comments on the sideline from both local people and our guests from Wayland on the superb job done in preparation of the field made one feel proud to be a member of this community.

The fact the Park Department put in such extra effort to make field conditions playable indicate the concern they have for the success of the athletic program for the boys and girls of Winchester.

Again the Park Department is to be congratulated.

Celebrate another season's bounty

By TERRY MAROTTA

And the weather changed and changed again during this month called the ninth one. It was 78 degrees one week, and the next we had a foot of snow. Then it was back up in the 60s. Sunlight thick and gold as honey coated the warm browns of the remaining oak leaves. The grass glowed greener than ever, by contrast.

Maybe winter won't come, we caught ourselves thinking. Maybe we can hold on to these short vivid days; put them up like peaches; preserve them like the plums of August. Maybe for once we can fix the sun where it is in the sky, the way they say Joshua did.

I'm driving in my car at sunset, with my own three children and a fourth one too, a kind of foster son, at 16 both the newest and oldest member of the family. Night is pulling the covers up on this half of the world. Only a rim of light to the west still drenches in corals and violets and rose.

We are bringing this fourth child back to boarding school, where he lives now. We don't see him so often anymore, and it makes a little rip in us all to say goodbye each time. In anticipation of the rip, we are momentarily silent.

"Look!" someone cries suddenly. A flock of Canadian geese crosses the sky, honking, in perfect V-formation, their great muscular wings beating the air. We watch them in awe.

"Where are they going, do you suppose?" somebody wonders.

"Ecuador," says our third-grader. "They told us in school: they're going to Ecuador."

True or not, it is splendid to contemplate, this going to such a place, named for the Equator, a place of balance and abundance, it seems, where the land does not lean in such sharp seasonal swings away, away from the sun.

"Where will we be when they fly back again?" I ask the air. "How will they find us?"

"You'll have conquered Division," I say to our geographer.

"I'll probably have braces," mourns her older sister.

"I'll probably have my Learner's Permit," adds the big brother.

"And you'll know how to print your name," someone says to the baby.

We fall silent for a moment, pondering the changes ahead for all. The season is conducive to such ponderings.

My mother turned 80 this past month. I am slightly less than half that age, and have thought more and more, these short amber days, of what that might mean.

"When will Grandma walk without a cane?" our three-year-old asked lately in her presence. "When will your eyes be fixed?" he demanded of her directly, regarding her thick cataract lenses.

I turned away fast and looked out the window.

But Mom laughed with that certain lighthearted quality born of wisdom and the years of practice at letting go. Life itself is a letting go, somebody said once.

And now it's Thanksgiving. We celebrate another season's bounty even as we let it go.

Our children grow older, gaining in beauty as our beauty diminishes. They rise in power as our power falters.

The geese cross our skies twice yearly on the way to winter quarters. They do not dwell among us; they are not our kindred. They live, winters, in a place where the days are always warm, where alteration cannot find them.

We live in another place.

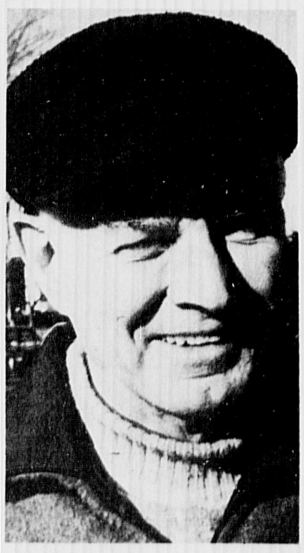

Our breath frosts the windows of the now-darkened car.

"Ecuador," she says again in a whisper. And the word on her lips is like music.

Do you think that there should be more liquor licenses in Winchester?

- Prepared by Jennie Vogt

Bill Wells
"I think we could use a couple more. We have enough liquor stores, though. Having a pub in Winchester is a great idea."

Charlie Preuse
"I think we should keep the two we have, and the one that's not being used should be reinstituted. Everything else, like the amount of liquor stores, should stay the same."

Dorothy Lowther
"I don't drink, but I don't think there's any harm in having more if they're used with discretion."

Elinor Carroll
"No, I think the three we have are fine."

Fire truck collides with car en route to fire

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

While on its way to the four-alarm Baptist Church fire Nov. 19, a Woburn fire truck collided with a Mercedes-Benz 300 SD at the intersection of Lake Street and Skillings Road.

The driver, a Woburn woman, was treated at the Winchester Hospital emergency room and released. She suffered a gash over her right eye, a twisted ankle and neck pain, according to Winchester Police Safety Officer Kevin Mawn. There were no passengers in the car. The Mercedes was totalled.

"She would have been dead if she hadn't been wearing her seat belt," Mawn said.

The fire truck, a 1986 Sutphen tower truck, ran through a red light and hit the car, which was heading east on Lake Street toward Skillings Road, Mawn said.

The car spun around and travelled 75 feet before stopping on the grass of Elliot Park. The truck skidded down Main Street until it came to a stop in front of Purity Supreme, according to police reports.

The fire engine driver was issued a citation for running a red light, police said.

Town faces deficit

$764,609 in it, in combination with the enterprise fund and increased fees.

The last option Maurer suggested is exempting bond issues for major capital projects from Proposition 2½. This choice would take a referendum vote.

Maurer said the report, which makes predictions for FY-89 through FY-91, is an attempt to get the town's elected officials working together to create a fiscal policy. "It is not the end, not a final answer. It's really a beginning to try to develop the future," Maurer said.

Maurer suggested meetings with members of the Board of Selectmen, Finance Committee, Capital Planning Committee, Board of Assessors and School Committee to discuss the town's budget options.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt said reducing the budget $1.2 million is an oversimplistic solution to the problem. The highest increases in the budget are for fixed cost items such as water and sewer charges and rubbish disposal that the town does not have control of.

Schmitt suggested a combination of cutting services and controlling fixed costs by conserving in areas where costs are effected by usage, such as the transfer station. He said he is opposed to using the stabilization fund, calling that measure a band-aid solution.

Board member Robert Deering agreed that transfer station costs can be reduced. He suggested using zero budgeting instead of level budgeting on some town accounts. In a level budgetting system, the figures from the previous year's budget are used as a base for the next year's. In the zero system, the budget is built from scratch, he said.

Lombardi said part of the problem is the allocation of funds at spring Town Meeting. All budgetary items should be discussed at the same time, during fall Town Meeting when all the items are on the table, he said.

The Board of Selectmen has the most power to change the budgetary policy of the town, Maurer said. He said he will present the Finance Committee with a balanced budget in mid-February because that is a requirement of his job. He said he needs the direction of the selectmen by January 1, 1988, if he is to use their policy considerations to create the budget.

NEWS NOTES

Kraus gives education a boost

A boost has been given to public school children and teachers of the Commonwealth through an omnibus legislative package filed by the chairman of Joint Committee on Education, Rep. Nicholas Paleologos and Sen. Richard Kraus. This bill, which focuses on improving student learning and the conditions of teaching in the Commonwealth, was discussed in a public hearing of the Joint Committee on Education Nov. 19 at the State House.

$15 million has been set aside in a reserve account to fund the provisions of this package, which are based on the recommendations of two legislative commissions: the Special Commission on the Conditions of Teaching and the Special Commission on REACH and School Improvement Councils.

"The thrust of these proposals is to encourage the professional development and improve the status of teachers in our schools, and to graduate the best-educated students in the United States," said Richard Kraus, Senate Chairman of the Commissions. "In addition, we believe that these new programs, which focus on the individual school building, will be vital in promoting more positive teaching and learning environments," stated Nicholas Paleologos, House Chairman of the Commissions. The Chairmen both concurred that the legislation concentrates on three critical areas: the empowerment of educational professionals, providing additional assistance for low achieving schools and recognizing student success and improvement.

Students study feast

tion. The Thanksgiving feast itself will be put on by the kindergarteners, all the way from the main course to the plates they use. The menu is complete with popcorn gorp [a popcorn and raisin mixture], crackers with cranberry jelly, and corn muffins with homemade butter. The feast will be eaten from the students' handcrafted Indian pottery.

Indians and their way of life have also sparked the interest of Miss Burchard's first grade class at Vinson-Owen. The class has been reading the stories of Paul Gobel, an English author-illustrator of children's books. Gobel lives in the Black Hills of South Dakota and works to promote the authenticity of Native American stories. He takes the Indian folktales told orally and turns them into stories on paper.

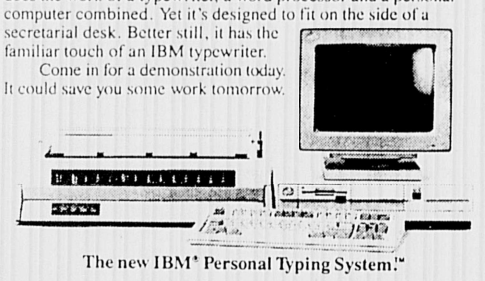

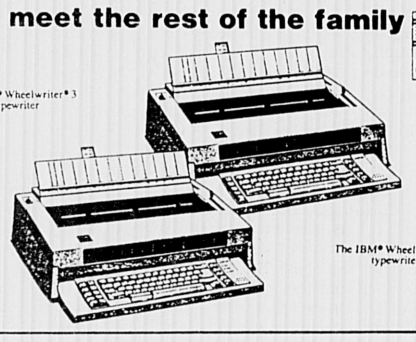

Miss Burchard's class is studying these stories and the history of Indians and working to dispell the many myths about Indian culture. Each student also had the chance to write their own story under the 'If I Were an Indian' guideline.

Miss Debbie, the storyteller, also visited Miss Burchard's classroom as well as Lisa Gelormini's first grade and Carol Romboli's second grade at Vison-Owen. The traditional Pilgrim and Indian stories were told, but then Miss Debbie went on to tell stories of modern day pilgrims — the pilgrims who have come to the United States in this century to escape religious persecution or just to seek a life of freedom.

But the basic rule for each department is that we would like to get the news from you as soon as possible; that way we have more time to prepare it for publication. However, some specific deadlines are necessary in order for us to publish the newspaper each week.

All press releases and social announcements should be submitted by Monday4 p.m.

WHAT TO REPORT...

1. If the article is an advance notice of a meeting or program, include details about the speaker, topic and general agenda items.

2. If the article deals with a meeting or program that has taken place, try to assemble the most interesting facts for inclusion in the story. If there was a speaker, for example, try to summarize what was said.

3. If the group took any action on news issues of the day, such as adopting resolutions of support or opposition, include this.

4. If officers were elected, include the names, dadresses, and new officers.

5. Include details of any major events being planned.

6. If you wish to arrange for special coverage of an event, please contact the editor at least two weeks in advance.

7. Omit routine matters such as refreshments were served, names of new members or guests, and items of interest only to the immediate group.

8.Let the publicity person be the only group member handling contact with The Star. And notify only one department about your news items to avoid confusion.

9. Keep the time element in mind. Submit all articles as soon as possible.

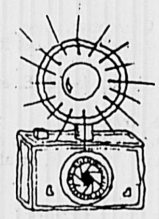

10. Remember, too, that we're always looking for news tips of any kind. Feel free to contact us if you know of a news story or something that might develop into a story.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A GREAT WRITER...

If fact, we just want the facts. Don't worry about writing the story in Star news style. One of our reporters will prepare the story, based on the information you submit to us. In your own words, tell us what has happened or will happen. We'll do the rest.

A WORD ABOUT PHOTOGRAPHS...

We are always looking for good suggestions for news photos and will be happy to talk with you about them. Please make photo arrangements far enough in advance to make all necessary plans. And do not call a photographer directly. Work with an editor to get your picture into the paper.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

Letters to the editor should be brief and contain the signature, address and telephone number of the sender. Addresses and telephone numbers will not be published. The Letters section will not include letters sent to others. Letters are subject to condensation and standard editing.

TERMITE SERVICE CONTRACTS

If you own a home in an area where termite activity is common it's a good idea to investigate some of the termite "insurance" options offered by local pest control companies.

First, they will inspect your home for evidence of termites or termite damage. If they find bugs, they will discuss the various treatment options with you. Once your home is termite free, they will offer you a service contract which includes an annual property inspection. If any further treatment or repair is needed, the costs are covered by your service policy.

Because termites can cause serious damage to beams and joists, it's a good idea to have your home checked regularly. A pro will be able to spot termite trouble before it becomes a problem that can compromise the structural integrity of your home. If you're planning to sell your home in the near future, you might have an expert check it for termites before their existence becomes an issue in the sale transaction.

The professional at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Please call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

STAR SPORTS

Winchester seeks big upset against Woburn

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High varsity football team will try to derail archrival Woburn Thursday morning in the 83rd annual Thanksgiving Day game. The host Sachems need a win to salvage a .500 season while the Tanners will earn a birth to the Div. 1 Super Bowl if they come out on top.

Coach Manny Marshall believes his team will be prepared for this week's showdown.

"I don't really have to say anything to these kids," said the legendary coach. "They get up for it on their own."

Winchester has had somewhat of a disappointing season this year after last year's team won the Div. 1 Super Bowl but a win this Thursday would make the season a success. Woburn, on the other hand, is undefeated but barely escaped last week in their come from behind, 13-7 victory over Wakefield. They could be ripe for an upset.

Marshall does not plan on making any drastic changes in his attack for the matchup with the Tanners.

"We're going to keep on doing the same things we've been doing all season," said Marshall. "Hopefully better."

The Sachem offensive attack will be led by quarterback Micky Feeley and running backs Scott Garvey and co-captain Greg Winn. Feeley is a good runner and has showed more confidence in his passing in the later games of the season. Garvey has been an offensive standout for the Sachems all season while Winn offers powerful running up the middle. Feeley will be looking to throw to ends Jon Furey and Alex Furey as well as Garvey coming out of the backfield. Woburn is particularly strong on defense and they should provide the ultimate test for the Sachem offense.

Defensively, Winchester is led by co-captain Frank Gianci at linebacker and Phil Svahn and Todd Crandall on the defensive line. Svahn suffered a shoulder injury during the Stoneham game on Halloween and his playing time on both sides of the line will depend on how his shoulder responds during the game. Doug Clarke and Mike Smith have come on strong and should be factors. Garvey, Craig Driscoll and Mark Koffman have played well in the secondary. The defense will have to try to keep Jim Duran and the Tanner offense pinned down in their own territory and force some turnovers so the offense can operate with good field position.

The special teams are led by kicker/punter Clayton Wight, one of the most consistent players on the team. Wight has two game winning field goals to his credit and may get the call again from Marshall if the Sachems are close at the end. Ray Bustamante and Ted Welch have excelled on kickoff coverage. The special teams always have thrived on emotion and the Thanksgiving Day atmosphere will get the adrenalin pumping.

"We're a little disappointed with the way the season has gone so far," said Marshall. "But I'm sure the kids will be ready on Thanksgiving Day."

Girls fall in semis, use 8 OTs

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

After surviving through seven overtimes, the Winchester High girls soccer team finally fell, 2-1, in the mini one-on-one competition which followed. The semi-final loss to Andover ended the team's dream of repeating as Div. 1 State champions.

Not enough can be said about the effort put forth by the Sachemettes in this long, epic battle, which capped a glorious season. Each girl gave 110 percent but it still was not enough against a talented Andover team playing on its home turf.

The last time the two teams met, they engaged in a very physical game which ended in a 1-1 tie halfway through the season. This game was physical as well; both teams went all out for a chance to face Concord-Carlisle in the final.

Debbie Nowell got off a pair of good shots early but after that, Andover began to take control. One key was the ability of the Andover fullbacks to one-touch the ball out of their zone. This kept the aggressive front line players like Margaret Cunningham, Emily Doherty and Amy Binding from getting into their natural rhythm on offense.

Julie Kenerson started her second game in goal for the injured Allison Price and was magnificent throughout. She was called upon early and often to come up with the big save and her near flawless performance was truly heroic.

Kenerson got a lot of help from her defense, however, and several times they bailed her out. After Kenerson made a great save during an Andover flurry in front of the net, Jenna Maconochie cleared away the loose ball before the forwards could kick it in.

At the beginning of the second half, Binding and Maconochie both got off good shots but from then on, it was all Andover. Their intense pressure created numerous corner kicks and a lot of close calls for Winchester. Kenerson kept her poise and turned aside shot after shot. Several times fate smiled upon her as Andover forwards shot wide on point blank oppurtunities. Unable to mount anything offensively, the Sachemettes turned into one big defensive unit bent on surviving.

In one instance, Kenerson was caught out of the net while the ball rolled precariously close to the goal. Three Andover players had clean chances to score but Maconochie and Deborah Skahan stuffed them before Cara McDonough cleared the ball out of danger. It was one of many heart-stopping moments in this furiously played game for Winchester.

Fullbacks McDonough, Maconochie, Laura Rutherford, Skahan and Beth Small all had great efforts as did halfbacks Nowell, Julie Sexeny, Jen Ciotti and Sonja Johnson. Each girl seemed to take a turn coming up with a big play. Wingers Denise Chabot and Ingrid Spanjaard did their best to create some offensive pressure but the strong-legged fullbacks kept them at bay.

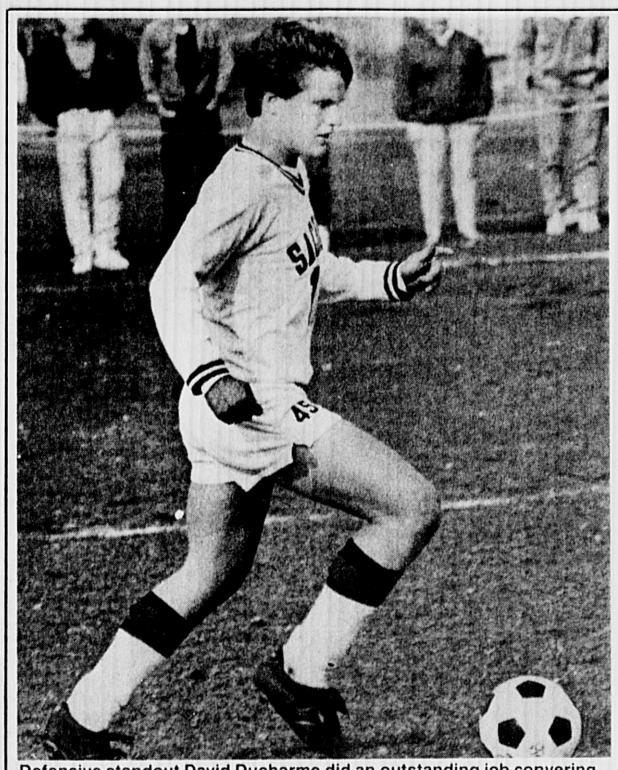

Toward the end of regulation, Andover thought they had a goal when Kenerson fell into the goal after making a great stop on a corner kick. But the referee was on top of the play and called Andover for a pushing foul, which disallowed the goal.

Once into overtime, Winchester continued to dodge bullets. Toward the end of the second overtime, Andover had a clean breakaway but the girl shot wide to the near side. The same player beat Kenerson to a loose ball in the first sudden death but rolled the ball slowly past the far post in yet another dramatic moment. Kenerson made one more point blank save in the second sudden death before the game became distorted.

The fifth overtime was played with nine players on each side. Andover had a chance on a penalty kick but they shot it wide. The sixth overtime was played with seven aside and the Sachemettes controlled this stanza as Nowell finally had room to operate. But by the time the seventh overtime rolled around, the four attackers left on both sides were totally exhausted and the game was played in virtual slow-motion.

When nothing was decided at this point, a shootout was held using the four remaining players and the goalie. Nowell shot first and proved once and for all why she is the team's most valuable player as she scored a clutch goal. Unfortunately, Andover matched the goal and the game went on. First, Spanjaard tried but was denied. Kenerson blocked a shot with her face (ouch!) to keep Winchester alive. McDonough shot wide right but again Kenerson came up with a spectacular right arm save. Maconochie had the goalie beat but was tripped so she tried the same move again and was stopped. Finally, Andover broke through for the win.

From the cameo appearances of Brenda Outwater and Shalagh Murdock to the excellent coaching job of coach Chris Scanlon, the team put on a great show for their fans who comforted the teary-eyed players when it was over.

Sachem booters reach final destination, 2-0

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys soccer team put together an excellent team effort Monday evening to advance to the MIAA Div. 2 State final with a 2-0 triumph over Duxbury. Ken Fowler and Paul Erbafina scored the goals while goalkeeper Andy Shao had an impressive game and picked up his first shutout of the playoffs.

Duxbury came into the game with revenge on their minds after the Sachems whipped them, 5-1, in last years state semifinal. They had the better chances early on but Shao twice made great saves to preserve the scoreless tie.

Winchester's offense was a little slow getting started but they were persistent and they clicked halfway through the half on a nifty passing play. While facing away from the Duxbury net, Paul Capodanno used his peripheral vision to hit Vandy French with a nice lead pass. French faked a shot before slipping the ball across to a wide open Fowler, who tapped it in for the easy score.

Mike McGeehan had a strong first half at halfback and the Sachems got some offensive spark from the bench toward the end of the half. Andre "Spuds" Behrmann came into the game and immediately made his presence felt with two difficult chips which were nearly converted into goals. Jason MacConkey and David Romboli also played well.

Duxbury came out firing in the second half and nearly squeezed one in under the crossbar but Shao came up with his biggest save of the game. Their offensive burst fizzled after that and the game turned into a defensive struggle. Suddenly, Erbafina took a pass from Steve Reeve and blasted a sizzling shot past a startled goaltender from 35 yards away. Erbafina used a screen and his powerful left leg to get the critical insurance goal.

Winchester was in complete control from this point on and Shao picked up his elusive first tourney shutout after allowing only one goal in each of the first four games.

The Sachems reached this point after laying waste to Lynn English, 4-1. Perhaps spurred on by the plight of the girls' soccer team, Winchester came out like gangbusters after starting slowly in their previous tourney matches. They shut Lynn English down offensively before demoralizing them with two quick scores.

Capodanno got the first one, converting a McGeehan pass. After narrowly missing twice, French made it 2-0 on the first of two Capadanno assists. Erbafina put the game away with two second-half scores. Highly touted Lynn English player Sean Bleau was rendered ineffective for most of the game as he was closely marked by David Ducharme. Jack O'Callaghan and Mike Schoenegge at fullback and co-captain Rob Kean at halfback all had good efforts.

By the time coach Gene Bouley and his team sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, they could be Div. 2 State champions for the second year in a row.

Mites winning streak halted by Newton, 8-3

By KATHY MAHONEY
Special to the Star

The Winchester Mites' undefeated streak screeched to a halt Sunday when the Sachems fell victim to Newton, 8-3.

The two teams were tied for first in the Middlesex Youth Hockey League going into the game. In the four previous games Newton scored 47 goals and only allowed one. Winchester had scored 41 points and had let in seven.

Newton struck the first two times but finally Winchester's John Duval scored on a breakaway to cut the lead in half.

Seven seconds into the second period Newton widened the margin by two, but Winchester kept in the game with the Gillespie brothers connecting for the second Sachem goal. Mason Gillespie won the faceoff in the Newton zone and passed back to older brother Matt who slid the puck right past the Newton netminder to pull the Sachems within one.

But Newton answered that one two minutes later and the score remained 4-2 for the rest of the middle frame.

Dana Lapointe played a superb game between the pipes for the Sachems, coming up with some big saves to keep it a close contest. The combined hustle of Pat Aufiero, Mike Leonardi, and Rocky Leo on defense were other strong points in the game.

The Sachems started to slow up a bit in the third period and Newton took advantage of that, exploding in the third period for four goals. Duval lit up the board for the Sachems one last time pouncing on a rebound.

Forwards T.J. O'Neil, Scott Phillips, Ashley Cannon, Matt Kelley, Jeff Granfield, and Nick Cogliano created some good offensive chances for Winchester, but the Sachems were unable to capitalize. The team will be looking to get back on the winning track next week.

Lincoln fifth-graders study American artists

Lincoln School fifth-grade students (AKA The Fun Farm) recently completed decorative social studies projects. Each pupil selected a famous American artist and then constructed a mobile illustrating career highlights and lifetime achievements of the subject.

The task underscored a system-wide goal for the year of integrating the arts in the academic curriculum. As the class studies American history, each student will serve as a resource of information on the contributions of the selected artist.

Martin to direct Winchester High spring musical

Christopher Martin has been signed on to direct the Winchester High School Spring Musical. The name of the show has not been confirmed. This will be Martin's third directing job at the school. His first two were last year's "Bye Bye Birdie", and "Brighton Beach Memoirs", which was performed last weekend.

Stephanie Smith, who stage-managed "Brighton Beach Memoirs", will do likewise for the spring musical.

Priscilla Miller and Lynne Rahmeier will serve as conductor, and vocal supervisor. John Fusco and David Miller have agreed to construct and manage all the sets, lights, and sound.

Auditions will be held over a course of five days in mid-December. Rehearsals will begin after Christmas break, and the show will be presented the second weekend in March.

Mindy Dorr, a second-grader at Lynch School, watches as a native American in Wampanoag Village of Plimoth Plantation demonstrates old technology.

A STUDENT PERSPECTIVE

Class ranking is a poor method to take the measure of a student

By DENNIS BUCHHEIM

We have all come in contact with them at one time or another. They fly down the halls between classes, they practically live in the school day and night, and they never seem to be entirely happy with their lives. These are the people I will call "transcript achievers."

A transcript achiever is a student who either takes courses or participates in extracurricular activities solely because it will "look good on my transcript." The transcript achiever, who is generally less than enthused about attending the next meeting of any one of the 50 clubs to which he belongs, will probably be readily recognized by those genius admissions officers at Elite U. Since the average admissions officer reads several thousand applications during his career, he cannot be fooled easily.

From a moral standpoint, the transcript achiever is bankrupt. One should not participate in any activity which is pursued only to fulfill the absolute minimum requirements. For example, if a member of the Student Union attended a meeting that was to begin at 7 p.m., and left at 7:10, this would indicate the student was working with the Student Union only because he wanted too increase the length of the activity list on his transcript. Others — looking to raise their class rank — might take a course with a higher weighting instead of one with with a lower weighting. This is fine if it causes someone to challenge himself, but not if the higher level course is taken only because of its "transcript value."

Tying in directly to the choices of which course one should take is the issue of "class rank." These two words are invariably of great importance to the transcript achiever. However, this is more a result of Winchester society than anything else. As affluent residents of Winchester of illustrious students in this town, we are led to believe that class rank is used everywhere, and has been since the birth of the universe. This is not true. However, Winchester High School is a secondary school which currently uses a fairly complex and precise mathematical system for deriving each student's rank in class. Every course taught in the school is categorized into one of four levels, each of which carries a different number for each letter grade. For example, an "A+" in a top level advanced placement (AP) course is worth 5.0 grade points, while an "A+" in a college preparatory course is valued at only 4.0 points. For a student taking more than five courses in any given year, a substantial bonus is added to compensate for doing the extra work. This system was introduced at the beginning of the 1986-87 school year.

Once calculated, the rank is sent home at the end of the junior year, at the middle of senior year, and at the end of senior year. This summer, when members of the class of 1988 receivd their ranks, some were happy, some upset, and others couldn't have cared less. However, this was only to be the beginning of the trauma. Because errors were made and because there were a number of complaints about the retroactivity of the new bonus point system, there was a new rank waiting for each senior in the beginning of this school year. Again, some were happy, some upset, and others still couldn't have cared less.

Althought I personally benefited from the recalculation, I have come to hate these numeric assessment of a person's academic value. No doubt, many who found that their class rank had dropped lost a great deal of self confidence, while the whole class began to function less as a unit, all because of a number. There is no reason that an admissions officer (or anyone else) should need to know a number that simply summarizes one's grades and shows his relative position in the class. Admissions officers can easily look over transcript and approximate one student's academic abilities as compared with those of another student. It is needless to add another number to a world already crammed with social security numbers, bank numbers, and phone numbers attached to people and their possessions.

As evidenced by the appearance of our downtown, the people of the town of Winchester seem to respect those of Lexington. Why don't we take their example and abolish class rank? They did so over 20 years ago — and some Lexington High School students have even gone to college since then. This would aid all students, particularly transcript achievers, in that there would be a great deal less rivalry.

The most depressing part of the sickness that plagues a transcript achiever has nothing to do with college or class rank. It is the inevitable fact that he cannot even fool himself. He knows that there is only one reason for his being a member of every team and every club in the school: he wants a college admissions officer to fall head over heels in love with him. Unfortunately, the admissions people are likely to see through the facade. Even more disheartening, the transcript achiever often does not truly enjoy or benefit from most of the classes and activities. But, that doesn't matter to him, as long as his delusions of his college future look promising.

Transcipt achievers may think they are fooling others. They shouldn't, for the reasons behind their actions are all too obvious. Most transcript achievers fail to realize that their behavior is not beneficial to them or to the clubs they join or the classes they take. They should select courses and activities that represent them accurately. They should become involved in the school, but do it for the right reasons. They will enjoy themselves and they will go to a college that is meant for them — not just one with high name recognition. In addition, they may end a habit of acting for the wrong reasons that otherwise would have stayed with them for life.

The content of the transcript is the most important area of concern for many students. The primary culprit, class rank, is entirely unnecessary. It is often the cause of people taking the wrong course, rather than electing the right ones.

Students should realize that their character and achievements are equally important factors in achieving success. Their futures will not be determined by a number alone or by a list alone. The key to success lies in striking a balance and putting full effort into the courses and activities one chooses.

Individuals who are or know someone who is 40 pounds or more overweight are invited to attend an orientation sponsored by the Center for Nutritional Research at Winchester Hospital Wednesday, Dec. 2, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

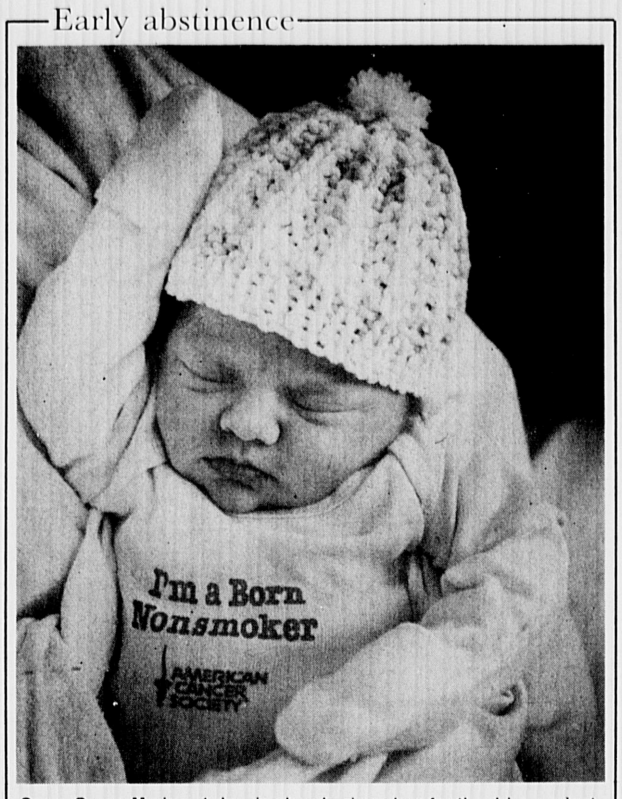

The meeting will take place in the hospital board room, conveniently located off the main lobby.

Dr. Kenneth Storch, the center's new medical director, will lead the program. He will be assisted by Dr. Ray Mount, a psychologist, and the center's registered nurse.

The orientation has been specifically scheduled prior to the Christmas holidays, when behavioral changes to effect weight loss are not first in everyone's mind. However, hearing about the medically supervised program now and in time to think about New Year's resolutions is advised.

The Window Place

For more than twelve years Neil Haggerty has been improving the appearance of area homes and businesses as owner/president of Prime Contracting Inc. In the course of remodelling hundreds of homes and building an impeccable reputation for quality workmanship, Neil discovered a need for a separate division specializing in windows; complimenting his already successful contracting business. In September 1986 The Window Place was formed. This division of Prime Contracting has a permanent showroom located in 601 Main St., Winchester where you are sure to find the window, blinds or shades which best suit your home or office.

With his extensive experience in the field owner Haggerty will help you choose the window that's right for your home or office needs. To help you select the blinds or shades which best with the decor of that home or office, decorating expert Theresa DeConto is available for consultation. Theresa who studies interior decorating at Framingham State College, is a lifelong Winchester resident with more than four years of experience in interior decorating, with a primary focus on window decorations.

After experiencing what he describes as an "overwhelming demand for specialization in "just windows," Haggerty formed the Window Place which he says has received a "phenomenal response."

If fact Haggerty explains that "Since the Window Place opened his company has experienced an unprecedented growth."

The Window Place offers a variety of windows including bay, bow, garden, and double hung models. All are custom-fitted and designed for the energy conscious consumer, and all are very competitively priced.

With a contracting background specializing in thermal insulation, Haggerty is more than qualified to assist you in selecting a window that will result in a substantial heat savings. As he explains, "When you want to make the right choice call The Window Place."

The Window Place is open Monday-Friday 10-6, Saturday 10-2, and Haggerty and DeConto are available by appointment at your convenience, for in-home consultation.

With a wide selection of windows, roller and pleated shades and mini, micro and vertical blinds, and a variety of name brands like Levoler, Kirsch and Delmar, you are sure to satisfy your window needs at The Window Place.

Selectmen set deadlines to apply for liquor license

Liquor license preliminary applications must be in the hands of the Board of Selectmen between December 1, 1987, and February 29, 1988 to be considered for the inactive Dover Grille liquor license, the board decided in a 4-0 Monday night. Selectman Francis Sopper abstained from the vote. He said he does not think the license should be issued at all.

Final applications are due in March, 1988.

When all final applications are in, the selectmen will hold pubilc hearings on the applications. They must make a decision within 30 days of the hearing.

The town is not required to choose among the applicants if it finds none of them satisfactory, Town Counsel Douglas Randall said.

Aberjona Ladies Auxiliary to hold monthly social

The Aberjona Ladies Auxiliary No. 3719 Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold its monthly social to benefit its charitable endeavors at the post quarters on River Street Monday, Nov. 30, at 7:30 p.m.

Chairman Josephine Rallo invites the public.

Developing talent is difficult

1962 studied with Leonard Rose at the Julliard School. He then attended and graduated from Harvard University. Ma says to develop talent, one must have one parent who is nurturing in that field, a fabulous teacher in the beginning and a family that is willing to uproot to wherever the master teaches. He feels strongly that the parents should watch out for the child's identity. The "kid has to want to do it for himself, not to please the parent. Then there will be someone who is 30 or 40 and not knowing why they are putting all this effort into it." Ma said he sees a lot of this and it is sad. "You want to create a happy individual, not someone who is burnt out at age 15."

He felt his four years at Harvard helped him develop more as a musician. "It was a very liberating experience. I resisted for awhile. With a prodigy mentality you feel you know how to play, but the teachers got through to me. They asked, why did something sound beautiful, why did one piece seem better than another?"

Although he had difficulty getting over the hump of a more focused training, he had broader experiences and gained more knowledge. "Once you have the needed skills and digital dexterity, you need to know what to say with it," he commented. "The combination of intuition and knowledge makes for a richer life."

"To understand a Bach piece one must understand the culture of the time he lived in, his philosophies, his relation to God. Did he believe in the soul? It is dangerous to focus so completely on the music to the exclusion of everything else," Ma asserts.

Although Ma is viewed as a solo performer, he enjoys playing in the orchestra. "It is fun and I don't get to do it enough," he said. "There are a few reasons I try to play with the orchestra; I want to know how an orchestra functions. How 100 things can operate as one instrument. Also one can really feel how the group morale can affect their playing. When people are not treated like they are crucial to the group and more like a cog in the wheel, it is very noticeable in their performance." On the other hand, he said, when morale is high, "I wouldn't notice if I was sitting in the very last row."

He expressed dismay at the star system. "Either you are a star or you are not a star. This is not important. the emphasis should be on the music."

But in recent years there seems to be a divergence from the music. Some people say there has been a commercialization of professional musicians or that unions have taken over the music industry. Referring to unions, Ma commented that like all unions they were created when there was abuse. When the priorities are straight, meaning music first, "then things can be straightened out," he said.

Ma is planning to tour the U.S.S.R. and perform the complete Bach Suites in San Francisco, Pasadena and Boston.

Who knows, maybe he will even consider giving a concert at the town dump.

whole grain flours for bleached wheat flours in breads, muffins and special holiday treats.

"In most recipes, far more fat, sugar and salt are called for than is really needed to cook the food properly. I would suggest cooks try using half the amount and, if that works, try even less the next time they make a recipe," Cote said.

Cote also suggests that anyone preparing holiday menus for persons on restricted diets consider using fresh rather than commercially prepared foods. Fresh foods contain much lower amounts of sodium and other preservatives forbidden by many diets. They can be cooked simply and used in many dishes as garnishes, appetizers, toppings or as replacements for restricted foods. For example, fresh fruit is a refreshing low-sugar topping for pound, sponge or angel cake. Turkey is also an excellent main course which is allowed in most diets.

The dietary staff at Winchester Hospital has developed several recipes acceptable for many restricted diets. They are available in racks in the hospital's lobbies during the holiday season. Individuals who require a consultation about special diets may call Cote at 729-9000, Ext. 3425 for an appointment.

Baptist church begins to pick up the pieces

Because the walls and ceilings of the basement rooms other than the social hall were not damaged, Huegel said he plans to start rebuilding on that level first. When that work is completed, the church will function from the basement, while reconstruction of the rest of the building continues.

The parish had planned to celebrate the church's 135th anniversary the first weekend in December. Members planned to rededicate their 60-year-old building that Sunday.

"It was a very emotional time for people," Huegel said of Monday morning. "People heard the news on the radio about 7 a.m. and came rushing over to the building in disbelief. It was very difficult for people.

"There is tremendous support from the town for us," the pastor continued. "Representatives from every church in town have called or come over in person to express concern and help in any way they can. We are deeply appreciative of that." Huegel said he received calls and offers of help from the Jewish community and town leaders as well.

Four years ago, the church decided to sell the front half of the building due to declining attendance. That portion has been developed as condominiums.

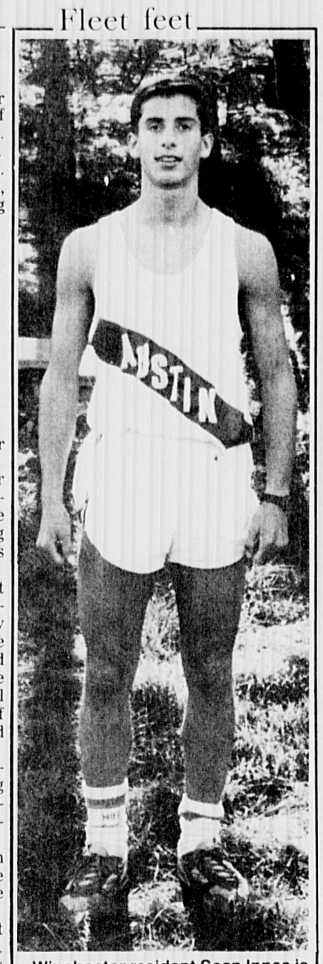

Firefighters contained the fire in the back portion of the building, the fire chief said. There was no damage to the condos.

McElhinney said the fire was put out within an hour of the first alarm. He said he was proud of the job his department did. "They did an excellent job. This is the toughest fire in the world to face," McElhinney said.

Because the building is stone with leaden windows, the smoke had no escape route, so it filled the entire building and then burst through the windows. Coss said there was so much smoke in the church the firefighters could not see what they were doing, and had to locate flames by feeling for the heat.

Firefighters had to break the windows and punch holes in the roof to ventilate the church, McElhinney said.

past, "there's a positive atmosp' ere in the emergency room. The people you work with are like an extended family. The patients are always in good spirits." She also said that working holidays is just "part of the game." Johnson agreed.

Dyson said, "you get sympathy from many of the older patients, they say, 'you poor thing,' about us having to be here on Thanksgiving."

"I want people to feel sorry for me," said Johnson, laughing.

Another emergency room worker who was listening in said, "I love the sympathy from my family. When I get home they treat me like a queen."

Dyson says that Johnson is "a right-hand assistant to the nurses. She does the ordering of supplies and equipment, and that is a major job in itself."

Johnson at the beginning of a routine day will start by supplying the emergency rooms with the equipment that doctors will use. She also assists doctors with exams. Dyson says that the emergency room runs in about the same manner on Thanksgiving as on any other day of the year. She does point out, however, that the hospital sees "a lot of football injuries on Thanksgiving. Everyone is out there trying to win that game." Her tone became more serious when she explained that holidays can be hard on people who have recently lost a loved one. These people will come into the emergency room with stress- and anxiety-related illnesses, one of the common ones being chest pains.

The people in the emergency room are willing to give more to their jobs than just a regular week. They find humor in their situation, an important factor in their ability to function in a work environment that cannot be shut down for even the smallest amount of time.

Thanks for family, friends and good health

Local people tell how thankful they are

Tomorrow is a day for all of us to take time out and give thanks. Too often in this world of rushing here, rushing there, we fail to stop and take a moment to appreciate just what we have and to give thanks for it.

This reporter spent time talking with people on the street in Arlington, Belmont, Newton, Watertown and Winchester, asking them what they felt thankful for this year. Here are some of their answers:

Marie Lopinto of Winchester, a marketing researcher, is thankful for her children and her family. "Thankful that last night after traveling all around, I came home to a nice safe secure bed with my husband (and only my husband) in it!" Her daughter, Lisa Dacey, age 3, is thankful that her mother came home from her vacation.

Ann Carroll, a teacher and resident of Winchester is thankful the native Americans did not kill off that first ship of settlers.

"The native Americans gave us kindness and what did we give them back? Nothing."

Dashun Davis, a student at Winchester highschool, is thankful for being in the ABC program, a program for academically talented minority students. Davis, 16, is from Chicago, but currently lives in Winchester at the ABC house.

Galer Robinson, another Winchester resident is thankful for good health and good friends.

Lifelong Winchester resident, Richard Horn and his twin brother, were born on Thanksgiving in 1922. Horn is thankful for "the family I have, four children, two grandchildren. My daughter is stationed in Belgium and I am going over there for Christmas."

Tim Dolan, a Winchester mailman, is thankful that his family is healthy.

Gene Charles Toussaint, of Winchester, age 13 is thankful for his family and the gifts they give him. "I am thankful that my brother is still alive because he got attacked by a german shepard dog. Gene's cousin Michael Lafargue, age 15, is thankful for his house and having all his family together.

A Winchester woman in a metalic raincoat is thankful for her grandchildren!

Ann Voltaggio works at Salon D'Art in Winchester and is thankful to be alive and to have a good Thankgiving dinner with her children.

An Arlington woman is thankful to have her house painted this fall. Another Arlington woman answered on the run that she had nothing to be thankful for this year, nothing at all!

Mike Cristlen, age 12, of Medford, spends alot of time in Arlington and is thankful for "girls."

Lisa French of Arlington is thankful for "having a good family, my job, my house, my clothes, living in a good town." Nichole Dispena is thankful for "my family and I'm glad they are healthy. I am thankful that I live in a good town and have great friends. Thankful to go to a good school, Arlington High. Thankful that I have food on my table."

James McGough of the Town Barber Shop in Arlington said it would "take a whole role of newspaper to tell how many things I am thankful for. You'd be here for four days listening to what I am thankful for. Just the idea of being alive is something to be thankful about, and being able to work.

"I am thankful for having a great country to live in. I thank God for what we have. There's something to be thankful for tomorrow out in Hollywood. A big horse race, $10,000,000. The Hollywood Derby. I'm thankful because my mother had a heart attack in October and she's recovering from it.

"And that she and my dad, the other barber, are celebrating 52 years of marriage. They were married on Thanksgiving Day. I am also very thankful for my customers!"

Donna Star, who works in Arlington, but lives in New Hampshire is thankful for "the economy the way it is right now. At least in New England, everything is in good shape. Everybody I know has a job and they are really happy. I feel really good about that."

Tim and Gladys McMakin of Arlington are thankful for continuing health. "Our children are coming along fine, doing well, in general. Everybody has their troubles, but we're getting through them. We are thankful for what we have.

In Belmont, Lindsey Murphy is thankful that "neither of my kids has an ear infection right now. We spent the month of October at the doctor's. I am thankful for tons of things. Thankful for my children. Thankful that my husband is as cooperative and helpful as he is. Except when he gets sick, adds ElizaBeth Chapin Murphy, age 8, who is thankful for her nine cousins, her sister and her parents.

Alexis Boyle from Lexington, is "happy to have my family and my home. I recently went to the Pine Street Inn with a group of kids from my school and we saw all of the homeless people."

Her cousin, Jeff Boyle of Belmont, is thankful for having a home and food on the table. Scott Johnson, age 3, is very thankful for "turkey."

Mrs. Anna Zarren of Belmont is "thankful for my good health and for my family, who live all around here. So many people don't have family around them. And for my friends. We are all getting together on Thanksgiving Day at my son's house.

Isadore Orenstein of Belmont is thankful that "we have our health and that the whole family is going to get together this Thanksgiving Day. My son will be up with his family and my daughter will be up with her family."

Scott Martin , age 10 is "spending Thanksgiving up in New Hampshire so we're happy about that. We just bought a place this summer so we're going to spend it up there. We'd be thankful if it snows and thankful that we have food.

His sister, Christina Martin , age 12, is thankful for money.

"I am thankful that I can finally grow my hair back, " says Robert Traverso of Belmont. "From August 13 I have had a wiffle non stop and as of this Friday night at Massachusetts Maritime Academy, all fourth class cadets were allowed to grow back their hair and look like human beings again. There are 200 very thankful cadets down in Buzzards Bay right now."

Julie Traverso, Robert's mother, is thankful "for everything I have, a wonderful family and just to be alive."

Hilton Hall of Belmont is thankful for his family.

Bill and Dave of Watertown are thankful for their girlfriends, their jobs and their cars.

Terry Foy of Watertown is "really thankful for my health because everybody around us is sick and dying and I'm healthy. I thank God every morning when I wake up and feel the way that I do."

Cindy Andrews is thankful for her car, her family, for everything. Chris Greeley, age 11 and Benji Gold, age 12, both of Newton are thankful for the food. "It's a fun time for the whole family. The relatives come over."

Laurie Eller, a cashier in Woolworth's of Newton is "thankful for my life, my family, my education. I would be thankful for money, if I had any."

"We've been settled now for a year. It's been a year of turmoil, but things are settled in now. I am thankful for being a part of the community, " says Diana Hannan, a Newton homemaker, who will be preparing Thankgsgiving dinner for a large extended family.

A Newton man in a hurry is thankful for having his family at home and for having a sense of optimism about the future.

Helen and Bernie Tack, Newton residents since 1936, are thankful "that someone from the newspaper is doing a story about Thanksgiving! And thankful for "our third grandchild, our first grandson. Thankful for this blessing."

Happy Thanksgiving all. Enjoy the day and remember to be thankful.

Crystals, herbs and natural foods

Whole Health Expo has all

Gunther Weil and Rylin Malone

Popular acceptance of alternative health practices is growing. More and more doctors are incorporating the use of herbs and other holistic means into their practice.

Some examples of these means, crystals, electric foot and back massagers, herbs, tinctures, nutritional products and natural foods will be available for purchase at the Whole Health Expo this weekend at the Park Plaza Hotel and Castle, Park and Lexington Streets.

On Nov. 28, the doors open from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Nov. 29 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Admission is $6 at the door per day, $11 for a weekend pass; children under 12 are free.

The cost includes admission to all seminars and some intensive workshops. Tickets may be purchased either at the entrance to the Castle exhibit hall or at the entrance to the workshops on the mezzanine level of the Park Plaza Hotel, across the street from the exhibit hall.

Sponsored by the Bread and Circus wholefood supermarkets, the whole health expo introduces many opportunities for the individual to actively participate in the process of attaining physical, mental and spiritual health.

Scientists and physicians are beginning to confirm what holistic health has taught for years, that the body and the mind are integrally related and both must be considered to achieve well-being.

At the expo there will be over 50 seminars, free with admission, on channeling, stress reduction, meditation, crystal healing, holistic medicine and more. Exhibitors from all over New England will sell products and services which foster whole health.

On Sunday, Nov. 29 at 2 p.m. in the Berkley Room, Gunther Weil and Rylin Malone present a 3-hour workshop on Taoist Secrets of Love, Sex and Intimacy: The Art of Harmonious Relationships.

The workshop focuses on how to understand and channel sexual energy so that its expression in relationships is more loving and pleasurable.

It touches on specific techniques for enhancing sexual fulfillment such as meditation and breathing exercises, and various highly specific forms of ancient Chinese Kegel exercises, all of which are based on 3,000 year old Chinese knowledge.

Weil and Malone hope to translate the ancient oriental ideas which are based on acupuncture and offer a way of staying centered while feeling energized, into the western vernacular.

"We feel that ancient cultures have been around a long time and like older people, if they live long enough and keep their wits about them, they have a certain wisdom just by virtue of their age. That's why we respect elders and grandparents - because they know about life. It's the same with cultures. When cultures are ancient they have developed a lot of understanding and in the west we often think that history began with the discovery of America!

"We feel particularly in the areas of health, well-being, relationships and intimacy, sexuality, that we have something to learn from the ancient cultures, and in particular the Chinese culture has a great deal to teach us, " says Weil.

In the workshop the couple teach how to increase sexual vitality and how to use this vitality in life and in healing.

Malone explains that the Taoism is a nature philosophy. She believes that it is important to be in harmony first with oneself and then with the environment.

"People attend our seminars to revitalize their relationships. As I believe Voltaire said, one of the greatest threats to marital harmony is habit- taking each other for granted. People want to renew and revitalize their ongoing relationships. Those who are not in relationships come because they want to learn how to use their sexual energy and rid themselves of the fear of intimacy," adds Weil.

Gunther Weil is a licensed psychologist with an active practice in Cambridge. He is an internationally recognized senior teacher in the Chinese system of self-development based on meditation, martial arts and the Healing Tao System. He has a doctorate in Psychology from Harvard.

His life partner, Rylin Malone, is a choreographer of disciplines using body and mind. Trained as a dancer, she practices martial arts and yoga as a daily discipline. She was a founding member of City Dance Theater and received her Master's Degree in Counseling and Consulting Psychology from Harvard.

Together they have studied with Master Mantak Chia, an authority of Taoism, learning the system of health and rejuvenation developed in China in the 6th century B.C.

On Saturday, Nov. 28 at 3:15 p.m., Miriam Massaro and Gail Ulrich co-lead a workshop dealing with the ancient Wise Woman Tradition of respect for natural cycles of the earth, the use of nourishing plants, ritual and unconditional love.

Gail Ulrich, the daughter of a chiropractor, grew up exposed to natural healing all her life. After going through several personal healing crises and discovering that the western approach to healing did not work, but had devastating results, she found the path to natural healing.

"The tradition called the Wise Woman Tradition has been around for at least 50,000 years," says Ulrich, "Herbal medicine is the

The Little Rascals, currently at the Goodspeed Opera House.

Rascals rollicking fun

THE LITTLE RASCALS, a new musical in progress with music and lyrics by Joe Raposo and book by Michael Loman; direction by Robert Nigro; choreography by Marcia Milgrom Dodge; musical direction by Bob Goldstone; scenic design by James Leonard Joy; costume design by Franne Lee; light design by Craig Miller. With Ronn Carroll, Betsy Joslyn, Joe Duquette, Erick Devine, Ken Jennings, John Deyle, Eugene J. Anthony, Michael Mulheren, Lee Mathis, and the kids, Jason Minor, Kevin Joseph, Jenna von Oy, Devon Michaels, Dule Hill, Eric Michael Hailey, Richard Schuh, and "Jake". At the Goodspeed Opera House, East Haddam, CT through Dec. 13.

Back in 1922 Hal Roach produced a short film comedy called Our Gang which proved an instantaneous success. Over the next 22 years, 220 more of the series followed. When Our Gang moved to television their moniker was changed to The Little Rascals.

Now The Little Rascals is prepping for Broadway at the Goodspeed Opera House, only this time your favorite ragamuffins sing and dance their way into your heart! This musical is a joy, a captivating caper of rollicking fun as the endearing rascals plot to outsmart the bad-guy politicians of the Maribelle Corners City Council and save their clubhouse from demolition. Now, as then, The Little Rascals brings us into the delightful world of being a kid. . . when being a kid was fun!

Lyricist/composer Joe Raposo has provided a totally engaging score and author Michael Loman, a heartwarming and hilarious book, all of which translates into a snappy, high-spirited, peach of a show! The adult actors are terrific, the kids are precious, and the musical, in its world premiere, has 'blockbuster' potential! All it needs is a little nip and tuck here and there, a shorter first act, and fuller development of the boundless comedy potential in the kid's search scene.

It is the summer of 1935 . . .the difficult days of the Depression. . .a time when kids didn't have money to go to a store and buy toys. Mayor Crabtree (Ronn Carroll) has discovered that his four councilmen have surreptitiously purchased a huge tract of city property for ten cents an acre, sold it for $100 per oldest form of medicine we have. Its roots go back to Europe and also to the Native Americans.

Herbs are used for natural healing

"The approach of the Wise Woman Tradition is to work with nourishment, using treatments and techniques that nourish.

"We work to empower the healing potential within the person so that rather than working as a healer, we work as a guide to help find the technique, the herbs and modalities that they can use to bring about the healing for themselves. So that the person takes the responsibility themselves for their own healing."

This method includes working with color, sound, visualization, affirmation, prayer, touch, chanting, and flower essences.

According to Ulrich, the flower essences is a system developed over 50 years ago by Dr. Edward Bach in England, a physician, pathologist and immunologist.

Bach believed that healing went to a deeper level than practiced by western medicine. He discovered that within flowers there is a vibrational pattern or life force that corresponds with human energy patterns and goes to the deepest level of the human psyche.

It was his contention that the true cause of a physical ailment, in many instances, came from a deep psychological or spiritual level.

Flower essences are taken internally and, says Ulrich, are believed to change and enhance awareness and attitudes that bring about healing.

In the seminar, the Wise Woman Tradition will be discussed, how it can be applied to one's life, when to do what about healing. Participants will learn the first steps of putting the power of healing into their own hands.

Ulrich says that many doctors and nurses attend her classes in Western Massachusetts and that more and more western medicine practioners are including herbs and other forms of alternative healing into their practices.

Ulrich's partner, Miriam Massaro, began teaching herbal medicine in 1983, after studying with several herb specialists in different parts of this country.

She teaches how to use herbs, how to find them in back yards, how to discover what herbs are growing nearby and how to recognize them in their native environment.

She teaches the ancient form of healing that encompasses not only herbal medicine, but also how to listen and become aware of one's own sensitivities.

During the summer, the classes go on herb walks to collect herbs. Students learn where certain herbs grow, in what ecological zones, such as along the creek bed or in the woods. By tasting, smelling, feeling or knowing the natural surroundings of a plant, Massaro says it is possible to determine what its beneficial properties are.

The six stages of healing, explains Massaro, "encompass the natural approach, where the first step would be to do nothing and watch what is happening to the body. The second step would be to use a non-invasive type of approach, such as herbal medicine, where it doesn't alter the body, doesn't have a dramatic effect. It goes all the way up to the sixth step which could be surgery. There are herbs which are very strong for the body, which we call heroic."

In the late 1800's, it was popular to use herbs that were very stimulating and caused violent reactions such as vomiting, or heavy sweating. Massaro says that "Through visualization and affirmation of the healthful state desired, it is possible to arrest many diseases.

"Affirmation is repeating over and over and writing down and putting into your psyche the state of health you desire."

Massaro has also done extensive work with doctors, setting up a clinic in western Massachusetts, which uses herbal remedies with great success.

She is currently working with spiritual healing, with auras and energy fields in a technique called Mariel healing. Massaro contends that it is extremely important to believe in the method of healing for it to work. A person has to want to be healed.

The seminar introduces participants to the six stages of healing, hands-on techniques of preparing herbal tinctures, infusions, oils and more.

Miriam Massaro is a midwife, nutritionist, herbalist, educator, healer and co-founder of the Blazing Star Herbal School and Isis Herbs.

Gail Ulrich is a professional herbalist, certified flower essence instructor, a faculty member of Community College of Vermont and a tutorial advisor at Johnson State College.

The 3-hour intensive workshops are offered at a nominal fee each of $10 in advance or $12 at the door.

Tickets may be purchased by sending a check for $10 to the Whole Health Expo, 150 Main St., Northampton, M 01060.

What's On the Boards?

Love conquers all in the Little Rascals acre, and forged the mayor's signature to the bill of sale. Confronted with their duplicity the dastardly foursome, led by the very rich, double-dealing Walter Rogers Jr. (Erick Devine), threaten to blackmail the mayor and drag the name of his sweet, demure daughter Lily (Betsy Joslyn), the village schoolteacher, through the mud. Crabtree has been victimized and is helpless.

Meanwhile, north of town, the little rascals have just completed building their new clubhouse, the land donated by the city as a reward for saving a youngster from drowning. There's roly-poly Spanky (Jason Minor) in his beanie; the Peewee Herman clone Alfalfa (Kevin Joseph) with his hair parted in the middle and a cowlick sticking up in back; the little black boy Stymie (Dule Hill), sporting his derby hat; Scottie (Richard Schuh), whose sweater always hangs lopsided; loveable, tiny, black Buckwheat (Eric Michael Hailey), with a straw shade hat framing his adorable face (and dancing up a storm!); and Pete the Pup (Jake) with the trademark ring around his right eye.

What the kids understand are the important values of life. They're loyal to their pals and pets, kind and caring, and remarkably free of prejudices like snobbery, class consciousness and color distinction (that adults often teach them). What the kids don't know is that their clubhouse is smack-dab in the middle of the city land that Rogers has sold to a developer for housing!

When the kids are ordered to vacate they make a beeline for the one-room-schoolhouse to seek assistance from their sympathetic teacher, Miss Lily Crabtree. She, in turn, enlists the help of the local newspaper editor. The rascals discover a tramp, Oliver Wendell Ho, sleeping in their clubhouse who also empathizes with them and counsels in song, "If you wanna save your clubhouse you have to do it 'The American Way.' " Oliver is inducted into the club as a special member and the troupe celebrate with a Jimmy Durante take-off in You're Never Poor If You've Got a Friend.

Bloated with success, Rogers now plans to run for the office of mayor and the others — the town clerk, the tax collector, and the superintendent of schools (who can't read) — for re-election. In a show-stopping marching number, they hilariously describe how to win an election in Seven Lucky Ways.

A tall, handsome widower, Joe Hood (Joe Duquette), who purchased the land, arrives in town with his pretty little daughter Darla (Jenny von Oy) and immediately Alfalfa and Rogers' goggled, wonderfully obnoxious son Waldo (Devon Michaels) swoon over her. (Later, in a super number, Darla must decide whether she wants Love Or Money.) When Joe learns that he's been hoodwinked he too offers his support to the rascals, bringing him in contact with charming Lily. It's unspoken love at first sight, beautifully expressed in the duet Lazy Summer Days. But true love never does run smoothly as Lily touchingly reveals in Last Man on Earth and If Love Never Comes.

The rascals refuse to take the bulldozing of their clubhouse lying down and decide to search the offices of the councilmen for incriminating evidence. As the moving eyes in a picture of the four villans peer down on them and as the kids keep disappearing behind a trick fireplace, they discover the bogus bill of sale. Two thugs hired by Wilson burst upon the scene, but with the aid of their home-made Rube Goldberg contraption Criminal Catcher, the rascals manage to escape. When the kids bring the document to light, the culprits berate and ridicule the rascals. Later, they agree that something must be done to damage their credability!

Inside the courthouse all sorts of surprises come to light and all the chicanery unravels, topped by a rousing Gimme That Old Time Relgion-type gospel number, Rascals. Suffice to say, the little rascals get a new clubhouse, true love conquers all, the mayor is redeemed, the bad guys are punished, the thugs are rehabilitated (after the Fib Finder gets through with them), and all the other loose ends are tied neatly in little bows.

Better get ready Broadway! The Little Rascals is coming your way!

The Winter's Tale at Huntington

Sharon Ott makes her Huntington debut directing William Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale which opens Dec. 2 at 7 p.m., runnig through Dec. 20 as the second offering of the Huntington Theatre Company's season. This production brings together 25 performers, one of the Company's largest casts and will have previews on Saturday, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 29 at 7 p.m., and Tuesday, Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Ave., Boston.

Regarded as one of the country's most exciting directors, Sharon Ott is now in her fourth season as Artistic Director of the Berkeley Repertory Theatre in California.

The Winter's Tale is a moving portrayal of King Leontes of Sicilia, who, tormented by suspicions of his wife's infidelity, condemns her and banishes his newborn babe from his once harmonious kingdom. This passionate tale of havoc wreaked by obbsessive jealousy culminates in a fantastical resolution which powerfully reaffirms life and love.

The Winter's Tale is considered by most authorities to have been written in 1610-1611, when its author was 46 years old. It is widely believed to be the last play Shakespeare wrote without collaboration except for The Tempest.

Ticket prices range from $12 to $27 and may be purchased at the box office or charged by phone by calling 266-3913, Mastercard, Visa and American Express accepted.

Pittsburgh Ballet dances Nutcracker

The Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre brings The Nutcracker to the stage of the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawsheen Rd., Andover, on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Dec. 4, 5, & 6, for five performances.

Returning to the Collins Center following rave reviews of their Nutcracker performances last year, the corps of 32 dancers will be accompanied live by a 40-piece professional orchestra.

A total of 180 local children, selected from ballet schools throughout Mass. & N.H. will dance the children's roles. These children were chosen from over 400 ballet students who auditioned for these roles in September.

The show is staged with elaborate sets, snow, and many magical special effects. The costumes are vibrant, ranging from warm colors in the opening party scene, to soft pastels in the closing numbers.

The Nutcracker opens on Dec. 4, at 8 p.m. Other performances are scheduled on Dec. 5, at 2 and 8 p.m.; and Dec. 6, at 2 and 7 p.m.

Tickets, at $25, $20, and $15, are on sale now at the Collins Center Box Office, Shawsheen Rd., Andover, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Tickets may also be purchased at all Ticketron locations. To charge tickets, call Teletron at 1-800/382-8080.

The New Ehrlich Presents A Christmas Carol

The New Ehrlich Theatre will once again be presenting Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, adapted by the New Ehrlich Company and co-directed by Richard W. Freeman and Deborah Scaglione. A Christmas Carol opens on Dec. 1 and runs through Dec. 23. Performances are Tuesday-Sunday; weekdays at 8 p.m., two shows on Saturday at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., and a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8-$15. The New Ehrlich Theatre is located in the South End of Boston at 539 Tremont Street, a ten minute walk from Copley Square.

This adaptation of Dickens' A Christmas Carol premiered last season at the New Ehrlich Theatre, and ran for three sell-out weeks. The play will awaken the child in everyone through its use of music, dance, masks, and illusion. Scrooge's 19th century world is bleak, raw, frigid, and inflexible. As he travels through time, the colors of life and imiagination are revived. The spell of fall, the rustle of leaves, and the voices of children slowly poenetrate his icy world, injecting it with color, warmth and life. Scrooge's journey through the different stages of childhood portrays his fears and discoveries as a series of images, immediately identifiable by both children and adults. In the end, Scrooge will have shown us the importance of sharing oneself in the spirit of love.

For more information or to make ticket reservations call the New Ehrlich Theatre at 482-6316.

Make the most of leftover turkey with a casserole

For most of us, one of the joys of Thanksgiving is leftover turkey, although too much of a good thing is still too much. But turkey is a versatile, lowfat meat that can serve as the basis for not only tempting turkey sandwiches, but a wide variety of dishes ranging from the simple to the elegant.

It's important, however, to make sure the turkey meat is properly stored to maintain its flavor. Remove any stuffing from the roast bird, and remove meat from the bone as soon as possible. Wrap meat loosely or place in a covered dish and refrigerate promptly. Or, wrap it tightly in moisture-proof wrapping paper or foil to freeze.

There are few meat recipes that can't be converted to include your leftover turkey. turkey cubes ar great in place of beef in stew or in place of fish in chowder. substitute slices of turkey breast for veal in French cuisine or in place of pork in a Chinese stir-fry.

Turkey's mild flavor makes it a natural in hot dishes like chili or curry. And give turkey a try in speghetti sauce, quiche, enchiladas, lasagna, or any of your favorite casseroles. You may find that you don't want to save this economical, lowfat meat just for the holidays!

Turkey Almond Casserole

There's a bit of tang in the sweet flavor of this casserole. Serve it over brown rice, accompanied by a vegetable salad and/or steamed broccoli or carrots.

¾ cup pineapple chunks packed in juice (about 6 ounces)
2 cups turkey, cooked and diced
2 stalks celery, diagonally sliced
1 green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
¼ cup toasted whole almonds
1½ cups chicken bouillon, preferably low sodium
½ cup sherry
3 tbsp. cornstarch
2 tbsp. soy sauce
¾ tsp. ground ginger
¼-½ tsp. garlic powder
1 small tomato, cut into wedges
2 tbsp. green onioh slices, in cluding tops

Drain the pineapple, reserving the juice for the sauce. Combine the pineapple with the turkey, celery, green pepper and almonds in a 2-quart casserole. Combine reserved pineapple juice with enough chicken bouillon to measure 2 cups. Blend sherry and cornstarch together well. Add to juice mixture along with soy sauce, ginger and garlic powder; stir well. Pour over turkey mixture and mix well.

Bake in a 375 degree over, uncovered, for 40 minutes or until sauce has thickened, stirring occasionally. Add tomato wedges and sprinkle with green onion. Bake 5 minutes longer or until heated through. Serve over brown rice.

This recipe makes four servings, each with 272 calories and 8 grams of fat.

CAR CARE CORNER
By Dan Hogan, Service Manager

Although many experts recommend that tire pressure be checked once a month, you should do it weekly. Every 10° change in temperature will affect the PSI by about one pound. If the thermometer falls from 70° to 40°, for example, your tires will lose three PSI. The pressure gauges on service-station air pumps often are inaccurate. Don't rely on them. Instead, buy a reliable pocket gauge and keep it in your glove compartment so that you can periodically check tire pressure yourself. Take the reading only when the tires are cold — that is, when they have been idle for three or more hours or have been driven less than a mile after being idle for three or more hours.

Modern equipment is used to service cars at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Tel 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A.E honored. We have our own body shop. We are authorized to do all factory warranty work on Oldsmobiles. We will finish servicing your car at the promised time. Stop in at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. The sparkle's back in Boston holiday shopping

By ANNE-MARIE SELTZER

With the advent of the suburban shopping malls, many people shy away from downtown Boston when it comes to Christmas shopping. The rationale, often valid, includes comments like "Finding a parking space is such a hassle"; "Parking garage fees are exorbitant"; and "I don't feel safe in town, especially at night in a parking garage."

If these comments strike a familiar note, take heart. Going in to the city this Christmas season may not be the dreaded experience you're used to.

For starters, there are two very good reasons to shop in Boston for your holiday goodies: Lafayette Place and Copley Place. Located at Downtown Crossing and Copley Square, respectively, these two enclosed malls offer the shopper more than 200 stores to browse through, including many that can't be found anywhere else in New England.

Second, the constant problem — where do I park the car — has been solved because both malls have parking garages. However, the setup at Lafayette Place seems especially appealing. If you park in their parking garage anytime after 2 p.m. on weekdays, and anytime the mall is open on weekends, and spend $15 in any shop except Jordan Marsh, your parking is free. You also get free parking if you dine at any restaurant in Lafayette Place. (Note: the eateries at the Food Garden don't count in this case.) It's important, however, to get your parking ticket validated at the appropriate store or restaurant. One more feature: free escort service to your car is also available at Lafayette Place. Just ask the cashier at the garage.

However, if you prefer to come into town by MBTA, both shopping areas are located at T stops: Lafayette PLace on the Red Line at Downtown Crossing, and Copley Place on the Green Line at the Copley stop.

To help you find just the right present for family and friends, a description of each shopping mall follows, along with a listing of unusual shops and items.

Happy Holidays!!

Lafayette Place

Currently, there are about 100 stores at Lafayette Place, as well as restaurants and a fast-food area called The Food Garden. Opened in 1984, Lafayette Place is geared toward people who shop or work in Boston, people who live in the neighboring communities, such as Chinatown, the Back Bay, and the South End, as well as the tourist or visitor from out of town.

Filling all those needs requires a wide range of stores. Here are some you might consider visiting during the Lafayette Place is also offering mall-wide gift certificates in $10 and $50 denominations on the first level. Attractive gift wrapping is also available.

Copley Place

The glitsy television commercials for Copley Place might lead you to believe that shopping here is only for the very upscale client, not for someone on a modest budget. Upon careful examination, though, the shopper will find that this is not the case. While there are very exclusive shops like Gucci, Bally's of Switzerland, Tiffany, Yves Saint Laurent rive gauche, and Louis Vuitton, there are also more familiar names like Crate and Barrel, the gap, Lane Bryant, Pad & Pen, Casual Corner, the limited, and Coffee Connection.

Opened in February 1984, Copley Place offers a beautiful environment in which to shop, as well as a higher level of quality merchandise to choose from. There are presently 110 stores in which to do your Christmas shopping. Effective Nov. 27, Copley Place will be open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Again, here is a sampling of the unusual stores and merchandise that Copley Place has to offer.

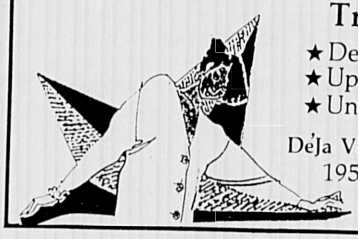

ON THE FIRST LEVEL

Sweet Temptations will turn any of their gift items — trays, crystal vases, mugs, tins, stuffed animals, and stockings — into a made-to-order Christmas present filled with your favorite kind of chocolate or candy. There are 350 kinds of confections to choose from; about 20 are specially made for Christmas. Prices on the gift items run from $2 to $50. This year, Sweet Temptations will also carry Hannukah gelt, dreidls, Shalom stockings, and mugs from $1 to $20. Telephone: 424-0605.

Riki specializes in fashion forward jewelry created by about 50 New England designers. Many pieces of one-of-a-kind, and all are unique. Since jewelry is used as an accessory, Riki offers many fun pieces, big, chunky necklaces and earrings to brighten up an outfit. Prices here run between $6 and $2,000. Sterling silver jewelry is also emphasized here, and an attractive pin and earring set costs between $150 and $200. Telephone: 536-6070.

Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers Announces National Weight Loss Winners

After months of anticipation, the finalists of the National "Slim to Win" Testimonial Contest were announced at the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers National Convention, held in Cincinnati, Ohio. One of the highlights of the Convention, the "Slim to Win" Contest, more than any other event, signifies the purpose and commitment of Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers to their clients. The three finalists were selected from over 650 entrants submitted by centers throughout the country. The judges made their choices based on before and after photos, total pounds and inches lost, average pounds lost per week on the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program, and a written testimonial describing how losing weight has changed the client's life.

The three national finalists were Michael Schott of Anderson, Indiana, Brad Smallwood of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Rebecca Troxler of Burlington, North Carolina. They each presented their stories to an audience of 1200 Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers franchise owners and staff members!

Michael Schott told the attentive crowd how losing 147½ pounds in 22 weeks changed his life. Mike described how the staff at the center not only supported and encouraged him, they also gave him — an inexperienced cook — directions on preparing his meals! Since losing weight, Mike has gotten a raise, has more energy than ever, and a more active social life. "My only regret," said Mike, "is that I didn't know about the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Center in Muncie three years ago."

Brad Smallwood, a client of the St. Petersburg, Florida Center, said the diet has also changed his life. Brad's doctor had told him to lose weight or his life span would be shortened. Since his father had died at an early age, Brad knew this advice was not to be taken lightly. However, he was unable to lose weight on his own. When he came to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers, though, Brad found a combination of encouragement and constant monitoring which enabled him to lose 185¾ pounds. "I attribute my success to the support I received from the staff," said Brad. "The only thing I had to do was keep my determination. I know I'll never be heavy again. The Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program is the best thing I've ever done!"

The last finalist to give her testimonial was Rebecca Troxler, a client of the Burlington, North Carolina Center. Rebecca also stressed the support she received from the center staff, as well as her family. "I love the staff, every one of them," said Rebecca. "They were great. They were there whenever I needed them to answer questions or give me help. They were always supportive and encouraging. The whole program was great. I liked going into the center and being monitored — having my blood pressure checked, and my weight and inch loss measured. I liked having Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers look after me."

For Rebecca, the change has been more than one of 290½ pounds and 228¾ inches. "I am a new person," Rebecca said. "I like myself now, and I never did before. I hid my true feelings from everyone. I don't have to hide anymore. I am a happy person now."

When Rebecca Troxler finished her testimonial, the audience and finalists anxiously awaited the announcement of the winners. Rebecca was named the winner of the Grand Prize, a trip for two to Hawaii! Michael Schott was First Runner-up, winning a vacation in the Bahamas for two, and Brad Smallwood won the prize for Second Runner-up, a vacation package for two to Washington, D.C.!

Rebecca, Michael and Brad are just three of the hundreds of thousands of people who lost weight on the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program. Since 1979, the more than 280 Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers in the United States and Canada have helped overweight people change their eating habits and bring weight problems under control. By following the prescribed program, center clients can safely lose an average of up to four pounds per week. Every client's progress is closely monitored by the staff of nurses and counselors — attention that, as they testified, Rebecca, Michael and Brad each greatly appreciated.

To celebrate the success of all their clients, but most especially the National Weight Loss Winners, Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers is offering a very special opportunity. For a limited time only, enroll in the professionally supervised, nutritionally sound Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program and receive this promotional offer. Start your program and lose weight now!

Rebecca Troxler
Burlington, NC

The Diet With Lasting Results

Anyone who has ever tried losing weight knows that the hardest part is not losing weight, but keeping it off. The staff of Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers knows that keeping those unwanted pounds off is where many dieters have difficulty.

With stimulating behavioral guidance classes and a helpful maintenance program, Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers clients realize that weight loss can finally be a long term proposition.

Many people are overweight because of poor eating habits which have become second nature over the years. They eat because they are angry, depressed or bored, or just because food is available. These are the sort of behavior patterns that inevitably lead to a weight problem.

The Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers staff members realize that being overweight is linked to these and other behavior patterns. Before lasting results can be achieved, the behaviors must be modified. Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers behavioral guidance classes are designed to accomplish this objective.

Many diet programs abandon their clients after the goal weight is reached, but at Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers, the job isn't finished until the ideal weight is maintained. Clients may enroll in a one year maintenance program, during which they gradually become more independent until they can maintain their ideal weight on their own.

Clients are urged to continue attending behavioral guidance classes during the year and center staff members are always available to help during any difficulty.

If a maintenance client should gain as much as six pounds during the year following their goal date, the staff provides weight loss services at no charge. If losing weight and keeping it off is part of your plan for the future, call the center nearest you to schedule a free weight loss consultation.

Stroll up Mass. Ave. in Arlington for holiday gift ideas

By GREG POLLY & HEIDI SANDER

Now that the holiday season is here, everyone is beginning to hit the city sidewalks for their holiday shopping. But even if you have some finicky friends and relatives on your gift list, you don't have to leave Arlington to find just the right present. Instead of heading out to the malls or into Boston, take a walk up Mass. Ave. and you'll find a host of unusual gift ideas.

Here's a small sample of the shops and businesses you can look into on a weekend stroll through Arlington Center and Arlington Heights:

The Shepherd and the Lamb at 449 Massachusetts Avenue was voted Best of Boston this year for their unusual handmade and imported children's gifts. If you want to get away from plastics, motors, and flashing lights, look at their handcrafted toys, family games and figurines from several countries.

They carry many natural wood items, from small "rollie" figures ($2.25) to building blocks ($30) to Swedish train sets ($50). Crafts enthusiasts can find kits for candlemaking, flower-pressing, or weaving for $16 to $20. Lambskins for baby's crib are a popular item at $45.

Shepherd and Lamb also carries natural-fiber clothing for children and handmade winter accessories from New England's cottage industries, as well as a good selection of children's books and tapes.

Clown Around, at 458 Massachusetts Ave., carries colorful children's clothes up to size 6x for girls and 7 for boys. You can get a boy's or girls's knitted vest with matching hat ($55), or a knicker outfit for the Great Gatsby look ($51). Wooden grow charts to measure height ($16) are popular, as are personalized items like room signs ($5) or coat racks ($32).

Clown Around also carries Disney character backpacks ($25), quality Gund stuffed animals ($10-$40), and a host of dinosaur items. Clown Around will gift wrap and ship items UPS for customers.

Divinity's Splendour-Glow at 8 Medford St. offers a variety of handcrafted items like pottery from local and New England potters ($8-$30) or American Indian pottery ($10-$30). Handmade silver jewelry is also available for $5 and up. Handpainted lacquered boxes for men sell for $4-$9. Renuka Susan O'Connell, the proprietor, makes handpainted silk scarves to order for $26. Divinity's also offers Advent calendars, imported Christmas cards, scented gifts, and small toys.

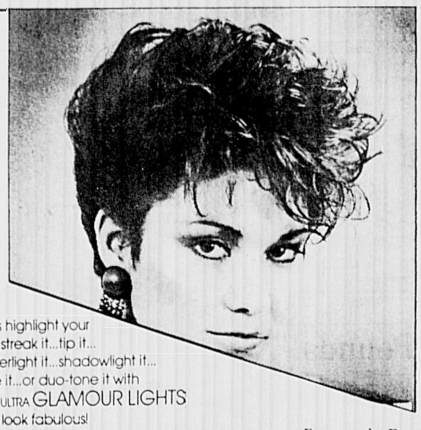

Wicker Specialties at 311 Broadway has all kinds of wicker furniture and accessories. Popular holiday items are wicker hampers and shelves (starting at $20), rocking chairs for adults and children (starting at $99), and vanities (starting at $139).

Playland, at 283 Broadway, has everything you need for art and hobby supplies. You can get the new artist an oil or acrylic painting starter set ($14-$17), or help the seasoned artist stock up on supplies: paint, brushes, portfolios, and a good selection of frames and easels.

Playland carries a wide variety of model cars and planes. They also have party supplies with Christmas motifs for holiday parties. And if you like to make your own gifts or Christmas decorations, don't forget the crafts supplies downstairs. There you can find everything from needlecraft supplies to styrofoam and pine cones.

If you're looking for jewelry, try T C Jewelers at 456 Mass. Ave. Among other items, they have silver and gold earrings ($6 and up), ivory jewelry ($24 and up) and freshwater pearls which they string themselves ($24 and up). They also sell Seiko watches at 20% off ($59-$400). They can special order items and can custom make "anything at all" in 14K gold or sterling silver.

Grecian Jewelers, at 27 Mystic St., sells both Greek and domestic pieces. They have charms for $22 and up, earrings and necklaces for $40 and up. If you'd like to get an old watch working again for a holiday gift, James Koutalakis specializes in watch and jewelry repair.

Wood and Strings music shop at 493 Mass. Ave. is offering a $149 guitar outfit for the holidays which includes guitar, bag, pick, strings, strap and polish. Besides guitars and music books, they also have an outstanding selection of hard-to-get folk music on independent labels. Cassettes run $3.95 to $9.95, and new and used compact discs run for $10-$15.95.

Wood and Strings also offers music lessons at $12 per half hour — not only for piano, voice and guitar but for more unusual instruments like mandolin, dulcimer and banjo. A gift certificate for lessons is available. Wood and Strings will have live music and refreshment on Saturdays during the holiday season.

You can get some holiday candy at Best of Boston winner Chocolate Box at 1375 Mass. Ave. A ½ pound box of chocolates is $9, a full pound $18. You can also choose from their selection of fresh cookies, scones and muffins, or order a holiday cake. Chocolate Box will send a one pound gift box of candy anywhere in the U.S. — and guarantee delivery — for $22.

Do you have a sports fan or baseball card collector in the family? Hall's Nostalgia at 21 Mystic St. has sports memorabilia like pennants, posters, and programs. Hard-to-find baseball cards run from $3 to $80. Hall's says that two big holiday items this season are the new Pawtucket Red Sox card set ($7) and the Donruss "Opening Day" baseball card set of all the starting lineups ($24).

If you know a comic book collector, try Comically Speaking at 1310B Mass. Ave. New comics start at 50 cents; expect to pay more for collector's items like "X-Men" or "Nam." Comically Speaking also carries T-shirts, sweatshirts, posters, patches, and a line of Far Side products.

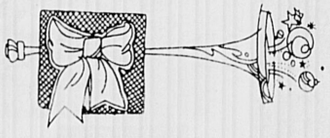

Finally, consider stuffing some stockings with local gift certificates. Moviegoers might enjoy some gift coupons from the Regent Cinema at 7 Medford St. or the Capital at 204 Mass. Ave.

For family and friends with the wintertime blues, you can buy an 8-visit introductory membership to Tan-O-Rama at 451 Mass. Ave. for $29.

For bookstore browsers, try a $5, $10, $20 or $25 certificate for the Royal Discount Bookstore at 635 Mass. Ave. They discount all New York Times bestsellers — 35% off hardcovers, 25% off paperbacks.

Fitness First Nautilus in Arlington Center, 471 Mass. Ave., offers gift memberships. Regular prices are $139 for 3 months, $239 for 6 months, and $339 for a full year, but after December 14 the full year membership will be available at the holiday discount price of $239. Membership includes use of the dance studio as well as the Nautilus equipment.

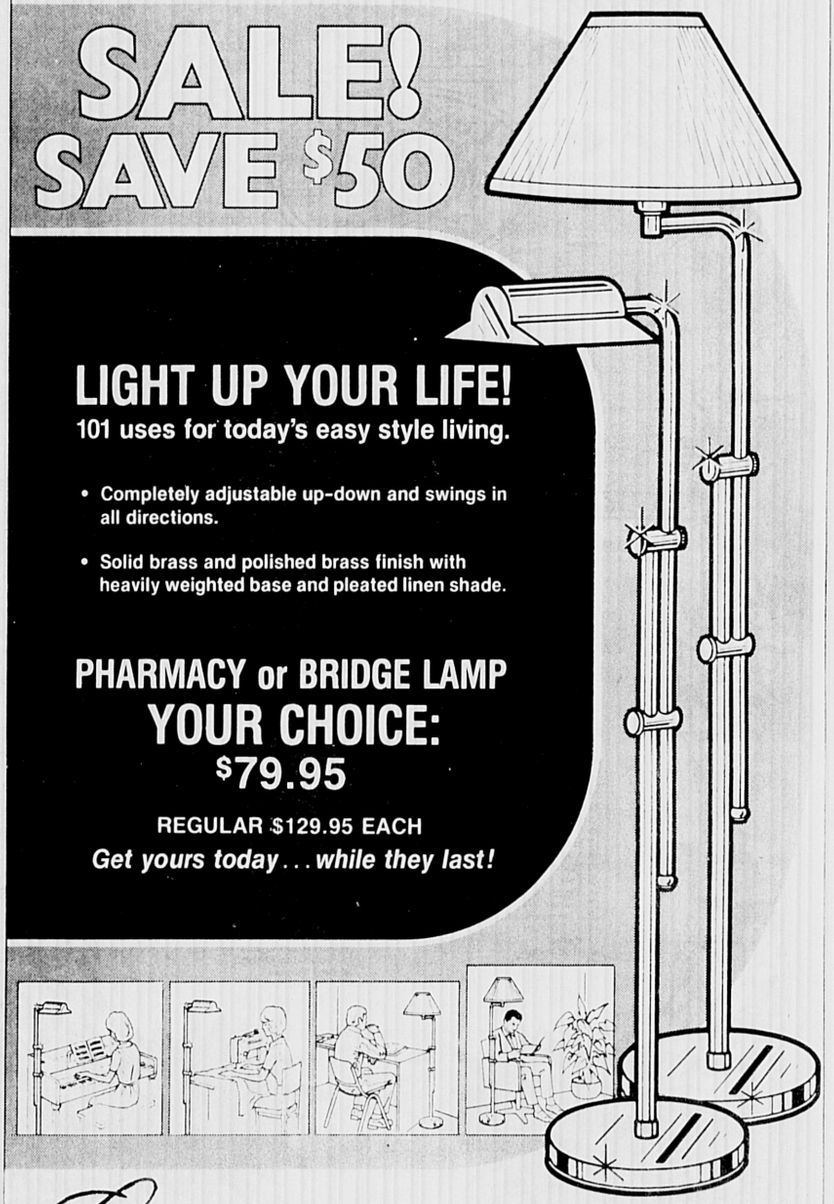

The examples above are just a few of the many fine merchants found in the Center and the Heights. Arlington shops have something for everyone, in every price range and to fit all tastes. Why not get a head start now on your hometown holiday shopping?

Experts offer lists of safe toys for holiday gifts

By Terrence Scanlon
Chairman
U.S. Consumer Product
Safety Commission

"If only someone would put together a list of appropriate toys, games and gifts for Christmas shopping for children!"

Comments like this have echoed among parents and grandparents every holiday season, but fewer consumers will be complaining about the lack of a shopping list this Christmas. The reason: two comprehensive shopping lists compiled by toy safety experts at the Consumer Product Safety Commission to make it easier for you to choose the right gift for a young child, be it for Christmas, birthdays or any occasion.

The booklets in question are "Which Toy for Which Child: Birth Through Five," and Which Toy for Which Child: Ages Six Through Twelve." With these booklets in hand, Christmas shopping should be easier for you this year.

Reflecting parental concern for the safety and welfare of young children, these booklets take into account the physical, mental and social abilities, and interests that are particularly relevant to selecting appropriate toys and playthings.

For example, year-old toddlers prefer action toys that move or make sounds, toys requiring some action by the toddler, also toys that can be assembled and easily taken apart.

Two-year olds prefer social and cooperative play with toys that are more true-to-life and generally of better quality.

Preschool youngsters age three to five exhibit good physical coordination, therefore gym equipment, large balls, kites, double-bladed ice skates, and snow sled match their abilities and interests. It's in this timeframe that musical instruments first have appeal, crayons and craft materials allow them to exercise their creativity on easels and the like.

The booklets offer specific product suggestions in each age category for active play (push/pull toys, ride-on toys, etc.), manipulative play (construction toys, puzzles and pattern-making toys, etc.), creative play (musical instruments, etc.), and learning play (books, games).

Parents should consider the following safety practices:

- Look for and read age and safety labels on toys;
- Explain and show the child how to use toys safely;
- Check toys periodically for breakage and hazards, removing damaged toys from children;
- Store toys safely and teach children to put toys away;
- Older children should be instructed to keep their toys out of reach of younger children since these toys may have small parts which could be a choking hazard to them.

Single copies are available free to consumers by calling the Commission's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772, or by writing Toy Safety Booklets, Washington, D.C. 20207.

Watertown shoppers shouldn't go far for gifts

By JAN MATLIS

Christmas watchers may have noticed that as the yearly gauntlet of gift buying approaches commercials for Hot Topper, an automatic margarine melter and dispenser, are already running on television.

If this year is like previous years, Remington and Norelco should be soon hitting the boards. Magazines are fatter. The mail order catalogues are starting to arrive by the regiment.

In local stores, Christmas gift wrap has been available since mid-October. So even the unwary should know by now that the nations largest retail quarter is fast approaching.

For shoppers in quest of the perfect gift, there is a large assortment available from the whimsical to the elegant at all prices and all styles. Here are some of the things store owners say are likely to be hot for Christmas.

Among the stores selling comestibles, McHugh's Liquor on Belmont Street expects to see cordials, including Bailey's Irish Cream and Amaretto di Saronna, being purchased during the Christmas season. Not far away on Mount Auburn Street, Steve-vin's Bake-a-deli hopes to add Christmas cookies and pastries to the package. Candy assortments will be available at Fanny Farmer's in the Arsenal Mall.

But many shoppers are expected to purchase more durable items.

Diamonds are very popular, say the owners of Marcow Jewelers in the Watertown Mall. Colored stone rings with price tags ranging from $500 to $1000 are also selling well, they say.

Across the street at Baubles, Bangles, 'N Beads in the Arsenal Mall, Judy Kelly says, "Rhinestones have just started to really sell."

And down the corridor at Wild Tops, which sells a variety of T-shirts, Terry Signoretti expects a good season, saying, "We were jammed last year."

Other fashion items that Doris Keating at Bradlees in the Watertown Mall expects to be popular for Christmas are acid washed jeans, colorful sweaters, evening accessories to go with black dresses, dangling earrings, hair accessories, and Challais scarves.

The American romance with gadgetry is expected to remain steamy at Radio Shack in the Arsenal Mall, where Mark McCall expects to sell big ticket items. Home computers costing between $700 and $1200, portable phones costing between $800 and $1500, and VCRs with price tags ranging between $250 and $500 are all expected to do well for Christmas.

Supplying the burgeoning VCR-owner market, Claude Kinsman at Best Video on Main Street says, all the studios will be running Christmas specials. Walt Disney will feature Lady and the Tramp, Paramount Star Trek IV, and MCA American Tale. Kinsman expects there will be in excess of 400 specially priced tapes, some of the older films coming in at around $20. Also selling well, he says, will be video games such as Clue, Quarterback, and other mystery games which sold well last year.

Those platters of pressed petroleum, as well as tapes and compact disks, are expected to generate sales at Record Town in the Arsenal Mall. Popular favorites like George Michael, Bruce Springsteen, Whitney Houston, and Michael Jackson are expected to top the list, says Manager Rick Cross. He also recommends The Very Special Christmas Album. All proceeds from this recording, which features many artists, will go to the Special Olympics.

Several books are being lined up for Christmas sales. Nancy Kenney at B. Dalton's in the Arsenal Mall says the photographic book Day in the Life of America and Day in the Life of the Soviet Union, as well as Discovery of the Titanic, Bob Woodward's book Veil, and Tip O'Neil's book should be popular this Christmas.

A quick survey of gift items for children turns up some old standards and some new ideas.

At Frolics in the Arsenal Mall, which caters to younger children, Marie DeLalla says, "Everything is hot," though she mentions that "Gund bears are probably the most popular" items. Brio train sets, she says, and specifically Christmas items like decorations, candles, and glass snowballs should also be good sellers.

At the Kaybee toy store also in the Arsenal Mall, Nancy Sharpe expects the video game Nintendo, a variation of Atari, to continue selling well. She also expects a stuffed creature called The Couch Potato to sell well. Among board games, she says, Reader's Digest's Question and Answer and old fashioned chess should remain shoppers' favorites.

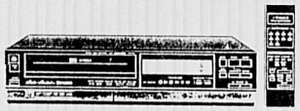

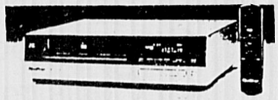

At Farina Cycle on Galen Street, Maria Farina says the big seller will probably be freestyle bikes. Costing between $200 and $500, they're small bikes in wild colors with gadgets attached to them that enable children to do all kinds of tricks.

From Christmas past, Cabbage Patch Dolls, Barbies, GI Joes, Gotcha Gun, Pogo Ball, Pictionary, and Teddy Ruxpin are expected to sell well in Bradlee's toy department.

For the whimsical card and gift shopper, Maureen Sliney at Balsam's Card and Gift Center in the Arsenal Mall says Garfield Stick-ons, which are plush animals with suction cups, should be popular at $19.99. Hallmark's lighted decorations called Light in Motion, which cost $12.50 to $24.50, should also be popular, she says. "They sold out fast last year," says Sliney.

Finally, for shoppers who aren't feeling the crunch of the stock market crash and so might find their way to the exuberance of Tiffany's, Hal Anderson says, sterling silver gold items are very popular — tee markers, tees, and putters. At $675, the putter is a good deal less expensive than the sterling silver kaleidoscope at $1500 and the sterling silver pagoda centerpiece at $16,000, but also a little more pricey than the toothpaste key for rolling up the bottom of the tube at $36.

Belmont stores are ready for bountiful holidays

By CAROLE LANDERS

As always, the holiday season has crept up to catch people off guard with its suddenness. But if most town citizens aren't ready yet, Belmont shopowners and caterers are.

The latter have been very busy, as a central theme of the holiday season is food. Thanksgiving Day events are scheduled according to what time the turkey will be done; after the gifts, Christmas dinner is the most special part of the day. Cooking these massive meals can be a daunting prospect, however, and Belmont catering services offer an attractive alternative.

Liebs Delicatessen and Restaurant, of 47 Leonard St., has a special deal for Thanksgiving, in the form of a ready-to-cook turkey with stuffing for $1.99 per pound. Ready-made hams will be available for Christmas, as well as party platters serving 15 items of delicatessen.

Festive Fare Inc., of 149 Belmont St., has a variety of Thanksgiving delicacies, ranging from the traditional taste of pumpkin pie to the gourmet flavor of squash-orange-pear soup. In between there are homemade sweetbreads with a choice: cranberry, pecan, and strawberry.

The essential component of Thanksgiving, food, is not the sole focus of Christmas. Belmont stores are gearing up for the onslaught of gift-buying. November is an important month for clothes stores, and many will have entirely new stock by the end of the month.

Deja Vu is one such place. Opened in September, Deja Vu (located at 195 Belmont St.), has some special things in store for the upcoming festivities. Holiday sweaters from Ireland are "jewels," as owner Meverette Buckley says, and specially priced watches with individual wriststraps "are a knockout!" Deja Vu will also be offering one-of-a-kind handmade belts from Atlanta, and green and blue wools, perfect for Christmastime.

Candyworld is another, and equally appropriate, gift alternative. Situated in Cushing Square, Candyworld has special Christmas chocolates that can be arranged in mugs or winter baskets. Customers can design their own baskets, selecting the candy of their choice, or make requests via telephone. For the original giftgiver, Candyworld has chocolate turkeys and turkey lollipops available as well.

For bookworms of any age, Reading International, 43 Leonard St., has many choices.

Two of the most popular adult fiction titles currently being offered by this Belmont Center bookstore are "Presumed Innocent" by Scott Turow and "Leaving Home," noted humorist Garrison Keillor's new collection of stories.

The store staff also predicts that journalist Tom Wolfe's first novel, "The Bonfire of the Vanities," will be a brisk seller as fall fades into winter.

Tops locally in adult nonfiction, according to Reading International, is "Man of the House," the memoir of Belmont's former congressman, Tip O'Neill.

Also high on the adult nonfiction list is "Veil: The Secret Wars of the CIA, 1981-1987" by journalist Bob Woodward. For the many readers of Beryl Markham's autobiography, "West with the Night," there is "Straight On Till Morning," a new biography of this woman aviator.

For the little ones, Reading International suggests three beautiful new hardcover children's picture books: "Shaker Lane" by Alice and Martin Provensen, "The Midnight Farm" by Reeve Lindbergh with illustrations by Susan Jeffers, and "Owl Moon" by Jane Yolen.

Of course, Reading International

Belmont has lots to offer this holiday has a huge range of 1988 calendars for wall, desk and purse.

Benetton, the international chain of designer clothes shops, is opening up a franchise on Leonard Street just in time for the holiday shopping season. The Belmont store will carry a full range of Benetton sportswear from jeans and classic corduroys to sweatsuits for the athletic-minded.

A popular gift choice this year is a video movie. Top Line Video, at 396 Trapelo Road, has a wide variety. "An American Tail" and "Project X" are suitable for children; "Rawhead Rex" is a thriller sci-fi for adolescents. For the whole family, there is "Superman IV" and the Broadway musical version of "Cinderella."

"Lethal Weapon," "They Still Call Me Bruce," and "Malone" are all high on the popularity scale this season. They are among the 150 videos that rent for 99 cents per night. Gathered together to watch a good movie, a family can end the holidays on a pleasant note.

No need for frenzy: just shop in Winchester!

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

As the holiday shopping frenzy increases in hysteria, Winchester merchants can offer some calming advice on what to get the man, woman or child who has everything.

We visited many but by no means all of the boutiques in the center and here is what they are recommending this year:

Theresa Pisacreta of Theresa's at 559 Main St., a woman's clothing store, says that she is offering more brand names like Harv bernard, Modella and Danskin this season. "The classic and contemporary dress" is her pick for that special someone.

Co-proprietor Debbie Allen of My Favorite Place at 555 Main St. has "Merry Christmas, Daddy" mugs that will lend some cheer on those cold mornings. Allen points out that her Christmas candy selection will arrive soon.

Catherine Jackson of Bayberry Shoe at 553 Main St. is offering "Grandoe Gloves at below mall prices, and giftwrapped free." Jackson also recommends Reeboks for kids.

Evana Warner, proprietor of Evana at 547 Main St., suggests "short skirts" for the daring. "They can be short and slom or short and flirty," she adds. For the more conservative at heart there are cocktail dresses and accessories like handmade ceramic necklaces and earrings.

Dorothy Feeley, owner of Jokens at 531 Main St., says crystal is big this year. The Crystal I.Z.O.R., a raw quartz crystal packaged in its own box, is reputed to enhance the owner's intuition, creativity and a whole host of other attributes.

Winchester Ltd. Jewelers at 529 Main St. has all the traditional jewelry items, but salesperson Andree White points out that watches with faces that accurately track the phases of the moon are selling like hotcakes.

The only children's store in Winchester, Topsy Turvy at 528 Main St., offers "a wide variety of My First Christmas baby clothes," according to proprietor Martha O'Neil. The store specializes in clothes for newborns through young teens.

Bessie Karanikolas, who has managed Town and Country at 534 Main St. for 36 years, suggests something in sweater or imported knits. She has stock from England.

Winchester offers gifts from over the world

Italy, France and other countries.

Colleen Franzreb, owner of Uncommon Scents at 1 Thompson St., says men's and women's scented drawer-liner paper is moving smartly. Another new item is the light-bulb ring. The metal ring has a groove in which to place a few drops of scent. The heat from the bulb then disperses the fragrance into the room.

Sassy Cissie II at 7 Thompson St. has a new line of jewelry. Proprietor Debbie Taylor-Smith also says her recorkers make a nice novelty item. The corks fit any size bottle and feature an enamle top, maple center and Portugese cork.

Arlene Glasser, the proprietor of Insignia, a new shop at 23 Thompson St., would buy her own inventory if she could. She has some hand-crafted brass kaleidoscopes with stained glass subjects that she treasures. A little less dear are the hand-blown glass oil lamps.

Kay Lennon, a salesperson with Lucky Lady Boutique at 41 Thompson St., is enamoured of her music boxes, particularly the carousel horses that rotate and go up and down on a wooden base.

Calista Clunan of Calista's at 24 Thompson St. has a full stock of clothing, but her holiday teaser is J. Christopher Christmas sleepwear. She has both long, flannel nighgowns and pajamas.

Temptations, a lingerie specialty shop at 5 Winchester Terrace, has everything in underclothes. For the adventurous, proprietor Bea Barber suggests a black lace teddy. For the more timid she has union suits and sleep shirts in Christmas colors.

The Irish Shop at 10 Thompson St. has, of course, white Irish sweaters, but salesperson June Beaton likes the mohair coats and throws. They come in subtle blues, greens, mauves and purples.

So there is no need to travel far for Christmas fancy. The most interesting and amusing goods can be had right here in town.

FESTIVE RECIPE FOR SPICY HOLIDAY STUFFING

Looking for an unusual stuffing to spice up your roast chicken? This festive recipe for Apricot Amaretto Stuffing is special enough for holiday dining, easy enough to make all through the year.

APRICOT AMARETTO STUFFING

1 jar Crabtree & Evelyn Apricots in Amaretto
1 cup wild rice
4 cups chicken stock
½ cup blanched almonds
½ cup chopped onion
3 tbsp. butter
6 mushroom caps (medium size)
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. butter

Cook wild rice in four cups chicken stock for forty minutes, or until done. Drain. Toast almonds in oven on cookie sheet until brown.

Sauté onion in three tbsp. butter until transparent (but not brown). Slice mushroom caps and sauté in two tbsp. butter with minced garlic and salt.

Drain apricots, remove stones and cut into small pieces.

Combine all ingredients and stir gently.

Do not overstuff chicken; recipe makes stuffing for two chickens.

Brown any excess stuffing in cake tin at 350°F. for 30 minutes.

An ideal solution to all your gift-buying dilemmas—opt for electronics

Christmas brings on visions of sugarplums, caroling parties, eggnog, good cheer and...but, wait, it also means searching the world over for that perfect gift, racking your brain for a present that will delight and surprise without demanding a second mortgage.

How about giving a Moviecordor® camcorder from Radio Shack®? Precious memories preserved in a home video will be an instant hit with the entire family.

"Now that camcorders are affordable, more and more people are discovering how much fun they are," said Bernie Appel, president of Radio Shack.

"Our moviecorders are state-of-the-art, loaded with the latest up-to-date features, easy to operate and will be a terrific present to be enjoyed for years to come."

Available in full-size or compact VHS, each unit combines the features of a video camera and portable VCR into one lightweight package to turn any holiday gathering into a cinematic production.

No more guesswork

Automatic features such as the auto focus and iris take the guesswork out of focusing and lighting, freeing you to concentrate on preserving your child's first Christmas or your best friend's crazy antics on New Year's Eve.

The advanced HQ circuitry and MOS imaging systems ensure picture sharpness and high-resolution video when shooting in low light. Then simply connect the camcorder to any TV or insert the VHS tape into your VCR to play back.

Fitness enthusiasts and "couch potatoes" alike would probably go dashing through the snow for a Stereo-Mate® headset radio. At Radio Shack you will find three lightweight models holiday priced from $21.95, with features such as side-mounted volume and tuning controls, built-in antenna and adjustable headband with soft, foam-padded ear cushions.

They're great for listening to the play-by-play while outside or just listening to favorite tunes while relaxing.

Give the musician in your life a Realistic® portable electronic keyboard. The professional sounding Concertmate® 700 combines a full-featured, four octave keyboard with "hands-on" electronic percussion.

Many options

Using the hand-held sound sticks and a selection of preset rhythms, you can simulate a snare, tympany, bass, rim shot, bongo or high-hat drum to play everything from rock and pop beats to swing, samba and waltz.

The keyboard simulates piano, electric guitar, violin, trumpet, flute, jazz organ, a human voice and more. Melodies are always rich and full with the automatic bass and 12-selection rhythm accompaniment with adjustable tempo.

Just how great is this keyboard? "The test of an electronic instrument such as the Concertmate 700 keyboard is how it compares to a real piano," explains Bob Miller, Radio Shack's vice president of consumer merchandising. "The Concertmate passes that test with an impressive realistic sound."

It also includes memory function, two built-in speakers, plus outputs for amplifier or external speakers.

The Concertmate 700 keyboard is Radio Shack's top of the line unit, and retails for $199.95 at participating stores and dealers; other keyboards are priced from $50.

Christmas is the perfect time to give your busy executives an extra edge in business, and help them manage time and resources more effectively. With a cellular telephone they will always be in touch, whether from a job site or in traffic between client meetings.

A price and technology breakthrough, the Radio Shack CT-300 portable handheld cellular phone slips easily and conveniently into a briefcase or purse. Features include memory for accurate speed dialing of up to 40 numbers, 15 hours of stand-by or 1½ hours of talk time, cumulative call timer and much more.

The cellular phone that keeps you on top in business also provides the ultimate in personal security. With Radio Shack's family of affordable cellular phones, no one will ever have to drive "alone" again.

If help is needed, the police, a tow truck, the family doctor or mechanic are just a phone call away.

In addition to the portable phone, Radio Shack offers its best-selling CT-200 transportable cellular phone, which delivers five times the output of many portables.

It mounts easily in the car and can be attached to an optional portable adapter pack so you can take it out of the car and use it anywhere there is cellular service.

The mobile-only CT-100 telephone is Radio Shack's most affordable cellular phone, and installs and transfers easily from the work car to the family car.

Both units feature backlighted 16-digit display, 98-number memory dialing, and more.

Santa's advice: Contain yourself this Christmas

Christmas is coming! It's time to make your gift list and check it twice. This season, why not choose presents that will really be used and enjoyed all year long?

A Swedish manufacturer of storage systems for over 30 years, elfa, offers drawer units, shelving systems, and other products to organize and customize any room or special area.

Made with sturdy steel, see-through wire construction and Life-Bond epoxy coating (the same finish as your refrigerator), elfa products will last a lifetime.

Almost everyone on your list has a hobby or special interest that elfa can organize and make more enjoyable and, throughout the year, as they use elfa, they will think of you.

Easy to organize

Workshop owners will love the hanging wall grids with all sizes of hooks and baskets attached. Sewing corners can be organized with elfa drawers and shelving.

For those who work at home, offices can be made more efficient with elfa desk "component style" combinations.

Everyone on your list has closets, and elfa is absolutely the best product available for closet organization. Closet space can be doubled by utilizing wasted space beneath hanging clothes.

Sorting is a cinch

Laundry is something else everyone has, and sorting it is easy with elfa. The large baskets are perfect for holding sheets and towels, while other baskets separate lights from darks.

That way, the sorting's already done by the time washday rolls around. And when the wash is done, the baskets can be used to separate clothes for each family member.

Kitchens, pantries and linen closets are other areas with which we all must contend. These can be made into more attractive, functional areas with elfa baskets, drawer units and shelving systems.

For a free elfa product catalog and more tips on how to "Contain Yourself" and everyone on your Christmas list write: The Container Store®, Dept. N, 2818 Virgo Lane, Dallas, TX 75229.

Fun, fashionable headgear is great for gifts

Headgear for mid-winter perks up the spirit with colorful, fashion touches.

Examples for all ages come in animal themes, such as ocelot or leopard, whether on printed fabrics or in knit hats with long or cuffed gloves. Shapes in these themes include berets and deep cuffs that can cover the ears.

Spiral twist shapes that flop over from the peak started out in felt or velour for early fall; now they're in acrylic knit, brightly patterned, some with dinosaurs, to match a sweater.

The beret is a favorite from Village Knitter®, both for adults and girls. They like it with matching scarf and gloves, all cozily warm in Creslan® acrylic that's machine washable and dryable, too.

Their adult version is brightly striped on a deep maroon ground, while the children's berets are in soft pastel pink or blue, sometimes accented with white.

Fashion caps started for fall in a knitted braid of purple and other vivid colors. For midwinter, they've taken on the influence of the Russian cuffed hat that furriers have been doing.

As part of knit hat, scarf and glove sets, the cuffed hat is likely to be a popular Christmas gift, particularly for children.

Village Knitters® does the set in solid pastels, pastels with white patterns, or all winter white. In patterns there's a choice of Icelandic or snowflake.

The set includes a choice of mittens or gloves, fringed or hemmed scarf. In Creslan® acrylic, the colors will stay fresh through frequent washings.

Village Knitter® Striped Set Prices— Beret about $6.50, Scarf about $8.50, Cuffed gloves about $7; Girl's Pastel Set— Cuff hat about $5, Fringed scarf about $6, Mittens about $4.50.

Stunning ornaments add to collection

From a very simple beginning, six glass balls and 12 yarn figures, a new holiday tradition of ornament collecting was born.

Until 1973, when Hallmark Cards, Inc., introduced the first line of Keepsake Ornaments, Americans had little choice in tree ornaments.

There were no Tin Locomotives, no Rocking Horses, no Frosty Friends, no Clothespin Soldiers to adorn the tree.

Mass produced, multi-pack glass balls were the standard ornaments, with tinsel, angel hair or garlands used to "dress up" the tree.

Hallmark Keepsake Ornaments not only revolutionized American trees, they created a new collectors' market.

Today, Keepsake Ornaments are cherished by collectors for their beauty and quality workmanship. Clara Johnson Scroggins, author of several books and articles on ornament collecting, including the recently released third edition of Hallmark Keepsake Ornaments: A Collector's Guide, began acquiring Keepsake Ornaments in 1973 and has amassed a personal collection of more than 30,000 ornaments.

"Each ornament has a special meaning for me," Scroggins said. "Several of the more valuable ornaments are the 1980 Frosty Friends ornament, now selling to collectors for $500, and the 1982 Holiday Wildlife ornament, now selling for $300 in the secondary market."

Since 1973, Hallmark has continued to expand its collection of Keepsake Ornaments. In 1975, handcrafted ornaments were introduced.

In 1976, to mark the Bicentennial year, Hallmark issued a special dated commemorative ornament and introduced the Baby's First Christmas ornament, which soon became one of the most popular captioned ornaments in the Keepsake line.

The Baby's First ornament was so successful that new commemoratives, including Mother, Love and Grandfather, were added in 1977.

The Keepsake line also has featured designs commemorating special events, including, in 1984, an Olympic Marathon Santa and an Uncle Sam ornament in honor of the Presidential election.

Last year, Hallmark marked the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty with a special ornament, and this year Hallmark commemorates the 200th anniversary of the Constitution with a special acrylic ornament, "We The People."

Hallmark continues the tradition of fine collectibles with the 1987 Keepsake Collection. The Christmas Time Mime, made of hand-painted fine porcelain with a wooden display stand, portrays a "Santa mime" with a limited edition run of 24,700 pieces.

Christmas Is Gentle, depicting two lambs in a delicate basket, is made of bone china, each individually hand-numbered with a limited-edition run of 24,700.

A special edition Favorite Santa will especially appeal to collectors because of the intricate and nostalgic design.

And Holiday Heirloom is the first in a series of crystal bells in silver plated frames with a limited edition of 34,600.

There are still more surprises to be found this year, with Keepsake Magic Ornaments featuring light, motion and changing scenes.

Chris Mouse Glow is third in a series of lighted ornaments featuring mice and lights, and A Christmas Carol is second in a series of lighted ornaments featuring classic Christmas tales. Perfect Portrait is second in a series of light and motion ornaments.

Artists' Favorites is a new category featuring favorite characters of the Hallmark artists who create Keepsake Ornaments.

For an added personal touch, each Artists' Favorite ornament and package carries the signature of its creator.

The first Artists' Favorites include Three Men in a Tub and December Showers. Wee Chimney Sweep and Beary Special

Corporate gifts of food with a personal touch are becoming increasingly popular

"Businesses are moving away from the impersonal bottle of liquor to gifts that express a more personal message," says Andrea Carson of Carson/Smith Fine Foods, a Sparta, N.J., firm specializing in fine American regional foods, which is offering a variety of holiday gift packages aimed at softening the hard-edged corporate image.

"There is a real trend toward more meaningful gifts, those meant to be shared, at the office or at home."

The foods available from Carson/Smith, including those in the holiday catalog, are either unique to a particular region of the country or are particularly fine because they are produced by small, specialty businesses where, Ms. Carson says, "the same hand that answers the telephone stirs the pot."

With few exceptions, the food items are available only through Carson/Smith and in the regions where they are produced.

The Salsa Sampler, for example, is distinctly a product of Texas. It includes Salsa Primera and Cactus Salsa from The El Paso Chili Company; Wick Fowler's Hot Picante Sauce; Tostados from the Pecos Valley Spice Company, and El Paso Chili Company's Chile con Queso.

One package, dubbed "Peanut Butter & Jam for Grownups," includes Coryell's Crossing Jam, from Berry Best Farms in New Jersey; a choice of Trombly's nut butters (chunky peanut, maple cashew or chocolate-flavored) from Cambridge, Massachusetts; and a package of Dassant beer bread mix from Northwest Specialty Bakeries, Portland, Oregon.

Most gift packages are in the $25.00 range, with an eye to the IRS limit of a $25.00 deduction per corporate gift, but Andrea Carson or her husband, David Smith, will be glad to get on the phone to help plan more elaborate combinations that might include smoked turkey from Virginia or smoked ham from Virginia or New England.

They will accommodate particular requests—a package for a diabetic, for example—and offer corporate discounts for purchases in quantity.

To receive the holiday gift catalog, call Carson/Smith at (201) 729-1233, (800) 527-0704 (in N.J.), or (800) 237-4298 (outside N.J.).

Stocking stuffers bring delight this Christmas

The most wonderful Christmas gifts are not always the biggest and most expensive. Many people prefer smaller, more intimate presents that reflect personal feelings.

This year, fill the family's stockings with clever little packages that show how much you care.

Young and old alike delight in discovering stocking surprises. Give the sports fan tickets to an upcoming match of his favorite football or hockey team. Amuse a teenager with a pocket camera and film.

And, nearly everyone appreciates a best-selling paperback, a tape cassette of favorite music, or a magazine subscription.

Watch the special woman in your life light up when she discovers a classic cameo pin or a pair of lustrous pearl earrings nestled in her stocking.

Cashmere argyle socks or a plaid wool scarf will keep him warm and cozy during the winter months.

Delicious candy in festive shapes and colors also makes an ideal stocking gift. Godiva Chocolatier, the leading producer of luxury chocolates in America, caters to the need for small seasonal presents by designing stocking stuffers to suit all tastes, ages and purses.

Godiva's milk chocolate Santa Claus, wrapped in distinctive gold foil, looks at home peeking out from the top of a red holiday stocking, or treat elf lovers to 10 milk chocolate elves nestled on a golden tray. Children will love Godiva's small cuddly teddy bear hugging his own box of chocolates.

Delight friends and family this Christmas morning with traditional stockings filled with warm and special gifts.

Delicious chocolate, classic jewelry and an enjoyable novel are all stocking stuffers they can enjoy throughout the holiday season.

Definitely dapper

Now anyone can wear a "mini," the first re-usable miniature camera, available in fun colors, designs

'Tis the season of the "mini." Hemlines are rising as skirts inch above the knee, televisions are becoming pocket size, and video playback machines can now fit neatly on desk tops.

Technical innovation is the bread and butter of consumer electronics, but fashion styles and designs are playing an increasingly important role.

The new Le Mini by Le Clic, a 1.3 oz. daylight camera which comes in 17 unique designs, is just such an item, and a perfect holiday gift for someone who has everything.

Because it's the same size as a watch, Le Mini can actually be worn as a fashion accessory, says Mark Auerbach, president and CEO of Keystone Camera Products Corporation, the manufacturer of Le Clic.

"Sling Le Mini over your shoulder, hang it around your neck, or tie it at the waist. An ideal stocking stuffer, it's designed to fit easily into a purse, shirt pocket, briefcase or 'Santa's bag,' and leaves plenty of space for other carry-alongs," Auerbach notes.

"Although we all love to look at photos, taking a camera with you for whatever occasion can be cumbersome. People really need a camera that doesn't take up a lot of room, but does take great pictures."

Start the New Year off right with Le Mini "Confetti" or "Le Bash," and take Le Mini "Snowflake" or "Glacier" with you on your next skiing vacation.

California classics grace holiday table

In Paul Masson's Saratoga vineyard home overlooking the Santa Clara valley, there was an oversized fireplace-rotisserie where three turkeys could be roasted at once. No doubt, Masson's menu in this rustic setting reflected the influence of nearby Mexico.

Centerpiece of meal

The following stuffed turkey—perfect for holiday entertaining—emerges from the oven a brilliant brick red with a delightfully piquant taste, thanks to the Mexican-style chili sauce used for basting.

These instructions follow very closely a recipe given in Domestic Life in Early California by Ana Begue de Packman, published by the Arthur Clark Company, Glendale, California, in 1938. Only the celery and walnuts have been added to the beef stuffing to enhance its texture and flavor. This hearty stuffing tastes even better when prepared a day in advance.

Serving suggestions

Since the stuffing is rather crumbly, it is best served in a bowl and then spooned out into individual portions. Serve the carved turkey and stuffing with corn bread, baked squash and a steamed green vegetable.

CHILI-BAKED TURKEY STUFFED WITH BEEF, OLIVES AND RAISINS

Serves 8-10

9-10 pound turkey
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper

For the stuffing

2 pounds stewing beef, cut in 2-inch chunks (do not trim)
1 quart boiling water
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, chopped
4 scallions, sliced (green part only)
1 cup sliced celery
Turkey liver, minced fine
1½ tablespoons vinegar
½ cup pitted ripe, black olives, sliced
⅓ cup raisins
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
¼ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 beaten eggs

For the adobo chili sauce

4 dried New Mexico chilis (chilis colorados, ristra chilis), available in gourmet specialty shops or by mail-order from Casados Farms, P.O. Box 852, San Juan Pueblo, NM 87566. Tel: 505-852-2433. A 6-ounce bag of dried chilis costs $3 postpaid.
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons fine, dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 large clove garlic, sliced
¼ teaspoon oregano, crumbled
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil, plus additional for oiling the turkey

1. Rub the turkey inside and out with salt and pepper. Return the turkey to the refrigerator.

Place the beef in a heavy pot. Pour over the boiling water. Bring to a simmer, skimming the froth and fat from the top. Simmer, covered, until tender, about 1½ hours.

2. Drain the meat, reserving the broth. Chop the cooked meat medium fine.

3. Heat the olive oil in a large skillet. Add the onion and cook over moderate heat until browned, about five minutes.

Add the chopped meat and stir over high heat for two minutes, constantly scraping up the bits that adhere to the bottom of the pan. Add the scallions, celery and liver, and toss another minute.

Add the vinegar, olives, raisins, walnuts, bread crumbs, sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Pour in about ½ cup of the reserved broth to make a slightly crumbly stuffing.

4. Remove from the fire. Scrape into a bowl. Cool completely. Stir in the beaten eggs. Chill the stuffing mixture.

5. Meanwhile, prepare the adobo chili sauce by removing the stems and seeds from the chilies. Rinse, then crumble.

Combine with the water in a small pot. Simmer, covered, for 30 minutes, until very soft.

Pour into the container of a blender or food processor and puree. Add the breadcrumbs, vinegar, garlic, oregano, salt and pepper.

With the machine running, add about ¾ cup additional meat stock to make a smooth, thick sauce. Stir in the olive oil.

Preheat the oven to 350°F.

6. Stuff the neck cavity of the turkey, cover with a piece of aluminum foil, then pull the neck skin under the body and fasten it with a skewer. Spoon the remaining stuffing lightly into the bird: Do not pack it.

Cover the vent with foil or sew closed with kitchen string. Truss the bird. Rub all over with olive oil. Place the breast side down on a rack in a large roasting pan.

7. Roast for 1½ hours, basting occasionally with accumulated fat. Remove from the oven. Paint the underside with chili sauce.

Using wadded-up paper towels, carefully turn the turkey onto its back. Paint generously with the sauce. Return to the oven. Continue roasting for ½ hour.

8. Lower the temperature to 300°F. Roast the turkey for one hour longer, painting every 10-15 minutes with the sauce.

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup non-fat dry milk
- 2 eggs
- 2½ to 3 cups all-purpose flour

Heat water and butter to 120°F.

In large mixer bowl combine three cups flour, yeast, sugar, salt, dry milk, eggs and warm water mixture.

Mix with doughmaker at recommended speed for three minutes. (It may be necessary to scrape sides of bowl with rubber scraper and rotate bowl slightly by hand.)

Add 2½ cups flour and continue to knead for three minutes. If dough is sticky, knead in enough of remaining ½ cup flour to form a stiff dough.

Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 30 minutes. Punch down dough.

SUGAR ICING

- 1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar
- 3 tablespoons light cream or milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract

In small bowl, stir ingredients until smooth.

Festive, fashionable fine jewelry for the holidays

The 1987 holidays call for a change in our everyday style of dressing ... it should reflect the spirit of the season.

Festive fabrics will be new renditions of old standards: Lamés in a rainbow of colors and prints; velvets and silks with crinkly textures; and taffeta and lace iced with iridescence.

Jewelers of America (JA), the national organization dedicated to consumer education and information about fine jewelry, suggests ears, necks and wrists should likewise be festive—adorned in statement-making jewelry of precious metals and gemstones to complement your holiday wardrobe.

What's the fashion news in fine jewelry?

• Earrings go from medium to large sizes, either on the ear or as drops. The "positive/negative" effect is in—mixing gems such as diamonds on one ear, rubies on the other, or opting for different but coordinating shapes. Hoops are either oval or elliptical.

• Necklaces are shorter, often choker-style to balance shorter dresses. A centerpiece is a must, in the form of a "slide," or drop pendant, or in a Retro-style front closing accented with diamond pavé.

Pearls, too, go short in multiple strand chokers and dog collars. Enhancers designed with pearls, colored gemstones or diamonds can dramatize a simple strand of pearls or a gold collar, creating the party spirit.

• Bracelets make bold statements either as a series of bangles or in the form of a cuff 1" to 3" wide, dressing up the new gloved hand. Bracelets have also become important as part of an ensemble of matching earrings/necklace/bracelet.

And hot-hot-hot is the tennis bracelet ... a circlet of diamonds for the wrist. There are new variations to this theme too!

• Rings sport diamonds in mixes of baguette and pavé or all-baguette looks. Pear, marquise and oval shapes are gaining in popularity, too.

"Fancy" cuts are also important in colored gemstone rings ... as they are in earrings, pins and pendants. More often than not, diamonds are used as accents.

• Pins are big news, too, in shapes from the '50s such as diamond circles, to mabe pearl-and-gemstone Deco looks, to heirloom-type sterling silver/marcasite designs, to captivating cameos.

Free-form, whimsical and nature-inspired motifs such as animals and flowers are created in pins incorporating gold, platinum, faceted or cabochon gems and diamond pavé detailing.

• Watches for the holidays are almost always dressed up with diamonds, whether they replace numerals on the dial or are part of a gold and diamond bracelet-type strap.

One very unique design uses "floating" diamonds, emeralds, sapphires and rubies that move freely around a see-through channel encircling the dial.

Holiday colors for fine jewelry go beyond the traditional green and red we associate with the season.

In addition to the precious emeralds, rubies and sapphires that so captivate us, the new clothing fashion colors have jewelry designers using the yellow of citrine with blue topaz and amethyst, pink and green tourmaline combinations, cultured and mabe black and white pearls.

For more information, JA will send you—free of charge—a series of brochures entitled, "What You Should Know About ..." covering diamonds, colored gemstones, pearls, gold, silver, care and cleaning, watches, etc. Write them at: Jewelers of America, Inc., 1271 Avenue of the Americas, Dept. HMNS, New York, NY 10020.

Preventive maintenance kits top computer gift lists for this year

You need not know anything about computers in order to buy a much needed gift for the computer expert in your family. Do-it-yourself preventive maintenance products are the hot topic among computer users this year.

Three different, inexpensive and easy-to-use kits are available in ample supply this year at computer, stationery and office supply stores. Each contains an assortment of items that will be greatly appreciated by your computer user.

The Stat-Off® Static Control Kit enables computer users to neutralize the static buildup on computers, disks and carpets, that can be the cause of damaged circuitry, data loss, faulty operation and costly down time.

The Falcon Typewriter Printer Preventive Maintenance Kit is an economical kit designed for cleaning and maintenance of electric and electronic typewriters as well as computer printers.

The "Clean The Machine"™ Hi-Tech Maintenance Kit, the most comprehensive of the three, contains an assortment of products for static neutralization, as well as equipment cleaning and maintenance.

Renowned Palm Beach artist creates unique gift — the first Special Olympics commemorative plate

A unique gift idea this Christmas for the passionate collector on your list, "Triumph! Everyone a Winner!" is the only official commemorative ever authorized for sale by Special Olympics International.

Created by world-renowned artist Edna Hibel, "Triumph!" is a porcelain collector's plate colorfully embellished with three athletes proudly displaying their hard-earned gold medals at one of the hundreds of regional, statewide and national games organized yearly by the Special Olympics.

Boasting 20 colors, a 24-karat rim and Hibel's characteristic 22-karat overlay, this exclusive commemorative plate is 9½ inches of fine, hard-paste porcelain.

Limited to a worldwide edition of 19,500 commemoratives, "Triumph!" is being released now at the suggested retail price of $55.00 through the Special Olympics International state games, the Special Olympics' largest corporate donor, Dial-America Marketing of Teaneck, New Jersey, and over 4,000 authorized Hibel dealers in North America and Europe.

Loved ones gather together for magical holiday moments

One of the things that makes the holiday season so unique and wonderful is that the normal days of our lives seem to stop moving forward as the magic of Christmas casts its spell, and we drift into a mode of holiday living that at once embodies the joy of Christmases past, present and to come.

It is a lifestyle spirited by tradition, a time when we live by customs that have been passed through our families for generations.

The past is ever present

Whether it's hanging a great aunt's glass ornament on the tree each year, or looking forward each Christmas Eve to a plum pudding made from grandma's favorite recipe, the past is ever felt in the Christmases of today.

All around us there are reminders of the first Christmas, with beautiful creches under many a family tree and, on top, an angel that seems still to exalt the joy of that starry night long ago.

The first Christmas presents, the gifts of the Magi, began a tradition of gift giving that today is one of the greatest sources of merriment and anticipation during the holiday season.

And while some families customarily open gifts on Christmas Eve, many others (especially those with small children) wait until after Santa's visit, opening their gifts in the morning.

Holiday entertaining

Whether for an impromptu visit or a formal dinner party, the holiday season brings people together for more festivities than any other time of the year.

Often, the cheer of the season will bring about singing, toasting and even kissing beneath the mistletoe, jubilant traditions carried on year after year, which often make us giddy with the excitement of celebration.

These are the occasions when women wear their favorite velvets and silks, and men don their holiday best. It is also the time when favorite foods are savored with, for many of us, visions of sugarplums dancing right alongside dreams of a big, fat roast turkey.

In most families, Christmas food traditions may be anything from baking gingerbread and rum balls each year, to having an elaborate fish dinner before midnight mass each Christmas Eve.

Special preparations

Much time is spent in preparing these holiday treats, and more often than not friends and family find themselves enjoying the cooking and baking together as much as the feasting.

The beauty of winter enhances the sense of the holidays as a special, magical time, drawing children young and old out to play in a snowy wonderland, and then making them long to curl up by the fire.

Laughing and reminiscing, they share a toast or a cup of hot cocoa, each of them in some way knowing, or hoping, that their lives will be as magical and blessed with joy for all of their Christmases to come.

In the case of an outdoor emergency, this could save a life

Holiday thoughts of "dashing through the snow, in a one-horse open sleigh" contrast sharply with today's reality of maneuvering, cautiously, behind the wheel of a streamlined, horse-powered machine.

If you'll be traveling by car this winter, you'll need more than a flashlight and matches in your glove compartment, because, in a snow storm, a disabled car is more than an inconvenience—it's an emergency.

In this situation, a gift such as a personal insulation product could be a lifesaver. It will keep one warm while waiting for help to arrive.

Outdoor enthusiasts and safety experts have long recognized the importance of personal insulation in outdoor emergencies.

Now, as the general public has become more safety conscious, there is a need for a personal insulation product that everyone can use.

The Space* Brand Emergency Bag fills that need by combining space age technology and practicality in an inexpensive and convenient package.

The Emergency Bag is a worthwhile addition to every glove compartment because it is:

- Manufactured from superinsulating materials originally developed for the NASA Space Program;
- Made of a material that is thinner than paper, lightweight and durable;
- Contained in a compact package that measures only 2½" x 1½" (about the size of a deck of cards) and weighs only three ozs.;
- Able to accommodate a full-sized adult when expanded to its full size of 3' x 7'.

Using this personal insulation device is simply a matter of opening it up and stepping inside it.

Once you're inside, it will reflect back over 80 percent of your radiated body heat, keeping you warm for hours, even in sub-zero temperatures.

Because it costs less than $10, you can afford to put an Emergency Bag in your jacket pocket or knapsack as well as your glove compartment.

Your whole family can have the protection and security of a personal insulation product whenever and wherever they engage in winter recreation.

THIS STOCKING STUFFER (about the size of a deck of cards) contains an adult size Space* Brand Emergency Bag that weighs only three ozs.

U.S. Constitution Coins make this year's gift-giving meaningful

Socks, toys and perfume—standard holiday gifts—are nice enough, but why settle for "nice" when the gift you give can be a "once in a lifetime" remembrance!

Usually finding a rare and meaningful present is difficult, if not impossible. But this year the United States Mint is offering a gift idea that is both unique and timely: U.S. Constitution Coins.

"The coins are produced this year to honor the hope and promise which have been embodied in the Constitution for 200 years," said Donna Pope, the director of the U.S. Mint.

"As keepsakes of this year's Constitution celebration, the coins are perfect gift items, and are beautiful and affordable."

Polished to a high gloss, and engraved with images emblematic of the Constitution, the coins' artistic and patriotic value is capturing the attention of Americans across the country.

In fact, people have bought more than two million U.S. Constitution Coins in their first month of availability.

Unlike more common holiday gifts, U.S. Constitution Coins are tangible keepsakes of an important national symbol, and have value that will last for generations to come.

Because U.S. Constitution Coins commemorate the liberty that touches the life of each American every day, the coins can be appreciated by all, regardless of age.

The coins are ideal for display on the mantel, bookshelf or desk, and the included presentation case adds an elegant touch.

U.S. Constitution Coins also make wonderful jewelry. In fact, many jewelers offer settings which can turn the coins into beautiful pendants, rings and other attractive pieces.

As the official government keepsakes of the Constitution Bicentennial, they are sure to become a piece of American history.

Silver U.S. Constitution Coins are available individually, and can be purchased in sets. The silver coins sell for $28 each.

During the hectic shopping season, it's reassuring to know that the coins can be easily found at 10,000 locations nationwide, including participating banks and savings and loans, and such retail stores as K Mart, Sears, Montgomery Ward and Service Merchandise.

Don't "sweat" Christmas gift-giving dilemmas! New kits fulfill youngsters' special theme wishes

With so many theme shirts and tops available in stores, every youngster's special theme wishes would seem to be fulfilled.

But how about creating your own theme "sweats?" Pineapple Appeal® is filling the creative bill with kits which provide the materials for doing your own thing and then decorating it as you choose.

Available largely through home economics classes, the fabric kits contain enough fleece material of Creslan® acrylic fiber to cut a sweatshirt, pants or pullover. A pattern is included.

There are five such kits, each available in a variety of colors. To make a garment of mixed colors, you use two or more kits to cut parts of the garment.

With the top quickly cut and sewn, it's decorating time. Crazy about the new puff-paint looks? You can do it yourself, with Pineapple Appeal's special jar or tube application.

Let the paint dry, then apply mild heat according to directions and watch the paint puff.

Other decorating kits provide slick or glitter paint, stencil patterns and paints, or iron-on appliqués in a variety of themes.

You can create endless combinations or go for one dramatic, personalized theme. If you'd like a modern art look, try their spatter paint spray bottle.

Pineapple Appeal also provides an "Ideas and Paint Instruction" booklet to make you a better decorator. As all the paints are acrylic, they bond well to acrylic or acrylic-blend fabrics.

If you choose the kits for tops, look in stores for the newest in pants—suspender styles to wear with your creations.

Penny Whistle® does their suspender pants in a tapered cut with slouch socks. In black, fuchsia or purple, the pants come with their own socks in a choice of contrast colors.

All items are made of 100 percent Creslan® for machine wash and dry, stay-fresh colors and all-American value.

Two Puerto Rico hotels offer garden enthusiast's paradise

In one of the most beautiful natural environments in the Western hemisphere — Dorado Beach, 40 minutes west of San Juan — guests at sister Hyatt resorts are offered nature walks as part of the recreation facilities.

Weekly tours are conducted by Tom Hicks, a Cornell graduate and director of horticulture on the verdant 1,000-acre property. He has labeled species of trees and flowering exotics so that guests can also explore the plantings on their own.

Year-round blooms

Nearly 600 species of exotic blooms, shrubs and ground covers, flowering and other trees grow there in their natural state. There are different blooms constantly year-round.

While many hotel guests think of visiting Puerto Rico in winter, in fall, spring and summer (when rates are bargains), the plantings are most colorful.

Originally Rockefeller

Originally a coconut and grapefruit plantation, then a Rockefeller private playground, the Hyatt Dorado Beach resort opened in December, 1958.

Its sister Hyatt Regency Cerromar Beach resort opened in December, 1971. Today, it offers the world's most unique water playground, a swimming pool that winds like a river through 4.5 acres. It is landscaped with 30,000 tropical plants and flowers, and 250 palm trees.

The resorts, only two miles apart, are connected by complimentary shuttle service. Guests have a unique opportunity to enjoy the private casinos, dining and recreational facilities of two hotels in one stay, plus four Robert Trent Jones 18-hole golf courses.

Off-season rates and packages are great values from now to Dec. 15, when high season starts. For information and reservations, call Hyatt Worldwide Reservations at 800-228-9000.

TIPS FOR BUYERS: GAME MACHINES VERSUS PERSONAL COMPUTERS

Video games are expected to be among this holiday season's best-selling items. But, while video games are played on both dedicated game machines and personal computers, many parents may be unaware of the important differences between them.

Fortunately, comparison shopping for game machines and personal computers is easy. Both are sold in toy, consumer electronics, department and general merchandise stores.

Here are some tips that parents should keep in mind to prevent confusion:

• Game machines play only games. Home computers run not only games but also educational software, as well as word processing, database and spreadsheet programs.

• Game machines play 100 different games on average. The most popular home computer, The Commodore 64, plays nearly 700.

• Game machines use cartridges. Computers use disks. Virtually all educational programs are available only on disks.

• Game machines are closed systems. Computers can easily be expanded by adding printers, monitors, modems and other peripherals which greatly expand their capabilities.

According to Commodore Business Machines, the popularity of personal computers in the home is expected to increase steadily, as hardware and software continue to be developed specifically for children. One such program already enables those as young as five to operate a personal computer.

As the holidays approach, parents should also look for special deals from brand-name computer makers, including coupons for free game programs.

An imaginative idea for non-alcoholic cheer

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING DIFFERENT to serve holiday guests? Here's a festive cocktail that is delicious and very up-to-the-minute. It's Bellini fruit juice splashed with sparkling Perrier! The Bellini, made famous by Harry's Bar in Venice for Ernest Hemingway, blends the juice of delicate white peaches. You simply add a spoonful or two in your favorite glasses, and then lighten and brighten with Perrier's distinctive sparkle. The Bellini juice is still quite unique in this country, but it can easily be ordered by calling Club du Faisan toll-free at 1-800-654-4396. It's worth the effort for a perfect holiday toast to please both non-drinkers and their friends.

Help the busy woman look her best with a cordless curling iron

Women are on the move. In fact, every 24 hours, 132,600 American women leave home for a business trip, 283 American women go into business for themselves, and 37 women become millionaires, according to Glamour research.

But there's more. According to the United States Census Bureau, 70 percent of all U.S. women ages 25-54 work or are actively seeking paying jobs, and more than 58 million American women will take a trip on a plane in 1987, says the U.S. Travel Data Center.

As women become increasingly more active in their work lives, they're left with less time for their personal grooming.

If you have an active woman on your Christmas list this year, no gift will be more appreciated than one that helps her look her best while she's on the go.

One idea is to give her a portable curling iron for everyday use or quick touch-ups anywhere. The Braun Independent 2000 combi ($29.95) is a cordless, portable curling iron/brush combination that she can use at home, in a car, at the office, in the gym, or between flights.

The curler is powered by Braun's disposable cartridges of liquid energy, each of which lasts for several weeks of normal use. And it heats up fast—in just 60 to 90 seconds.

When she's finished curling, she simply places the cover back over the hot barrel and slips the Braun curler back into a purse or suitcase. The ventilated cover lets the iron cool down without harming the contents of her bag, and she's ready to go.

Another option is to surprise her with gift certificates to her favorite hair salon, manicurist or beautician for a complete make-over. These experts will help her devise a day-to-day beauty routine to accommodate her busy schedule.

Either way, you will have a very special yet practical gift for this woman of the '80s.

NOW SHE CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR anytime, anywhere, with the new Braun Independent 2000 combi, the revolutionary cordless hair curling iron/brush combination. Powered by convenient cartridges of liquid energy, this unique curler is totally portable and heats up ultra-fast (60 to 90 seconds) for use in almost any situation by today's active woman.

Discover the many festive, decorative uses of sheets

What easily available, affordable and durable household item can make your life easier this holiday season?

Sheets!—which can do everything from creating that cute little gift to making your home more festive for holiday company.

With a little bit of time, and a few simple tools, you can create a variety of things such as a pretty wrapped picture frame, attractive lace organizer trays, a new shower curtain, even an adorable toy hamper for a child's room.

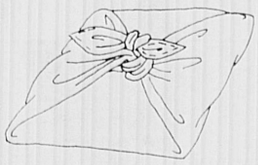

To brighten and accent a sofa or bed, this wrap and tie pillow is perfect, and very easy to make:

You'll Need:

- One Twin Sheet;
- One 22" Square Pillow.

How-to

- Trim off hems and cut three times the length of pillow and three times the width;
- Turn all four edges under ¼" and stitch in place;
- Place fabric wrong side up on a work surface and position pillow in the center, on a diagonal;
- Fold first corner and wrap over the pillow, then fold under the opposite corner and center the fold on pillow;
- Gather remaining corners in hands and tie ends together in a square knot—right over left, left over right;
- Arrange ends loosely over pillow, or tuck ends under.

Sheets are terrific. They're made to withstand repeated washings, and they are very durable, easy to work with and offer more yardage than traditional fabric.

They don't have to cost a fortune either. Pacific® linens, for example, part of the well-known Wamsutta® family of home products, is a brand which offers consumers all of the fashion and quality of Wamsutta at an affordable price.

Readily available at stores such as K Mart, Target and WalMart, there are so many different patterns and colors you are sure to find something you like!

So, this year, as your Christmas gift list grows and your budget shrinks, don't panic—think sheets!

Spicing up holiday attire

How often have you envisioned the perfect party dress for the holiday season, only to discover that it doesn't exist? This season, you can easily create your own simply smashing, "one-of-a-kind" dream dress.

More women than ever are finding out how much fun it is to be their own fashion stylists and sew their own clothes, says The Sewing Fashion Council.

From easy-to-sew, flippy skirts to all-out glitzy party dresses, there are pattern styles to match any occasion.

Before you sew, browse through your favorite fashion magazine for inspiration. Go to department or fashion stores, and try on a variety of garments to get a sense of which style and colors flatter your figure and look best on you.

"The emphasis is on shapely figures this year," says Vicki Hastings, fashion expert for The Sewing Fashion Council. "Dresses with tight fitting bodices, dropped waists and exaggerated pouf skirts will dominate the party scene."

Heart and v-shaped bustiers show off a curvy figure, says Hastings. For women who want to camouflage imperfections, softly draped blouson dresses with straight skirts work well and are slenderizing.

Hemlines vary greatly this year. From extremely long to extremely short, sewing enables you to get the length that's exactly right for you. "When you sew from scratch, you get the perfect length," says Hastings.

Solid colored satins, taffetas, moirés, brocades and velvets in rich-looking jewel colors and classic black are the best fabrics for a sophisticated party look.

Embellishments also add flair—rhinestones, buttons, sequined appliqués and pre-packaged ribbon bows are just a few of the ways to jazz up a holiday outfit.

For after-office parties or casual affairs, suits and silk dresses carry you from day to evening. Knits, wools, crepes and challis are perfect throughout the winter.

The Sewing Fashion Council offers additional advise on how to sew an individual fashion look, with a new brochure that provides tips for identifying your figure type, and how to select patterns and fabrics that complement it.

To obtain a copy of "One-Of-A-Kind," send your name, address and $1 for postage and handling to: The Sewing Fashion Council, Dept. M, 111 Fifth Avenue, 8th Floor, New York, NY 10003.

Beautiful holiday stocking stuffers

'Tis the season for stuffin' stockings! For Christmas, keep your best friends and relatives looking their best with original gift ideas—personalized stocking stuffers.

Choose unique items to suit everyone's individual tastes and include essential beauty items to help them ring in the new year with pizzazz!

Posner Laboratories, Inc., the company that manufactures cosmetics specifically formulated for black women, has determined several personality types with suggestions for holiday beauty stocking stuffers, along with helpful holiday beauty tips for everyone:

• For your friends who always seem to be on the run, convenience is important. So, thrill them with a stocking full of portable surprises: A battery operated mini alarm clock, a tiny sewing kit, a small first-aid kit and their one make-up essential, lipstick.

This Christmas, Posner is offering a color-coordinated lip lining pencil for $1.00 off with the purchase of a Posner lipstick. Included in this offer are tips for "How To Use" the lip pencil to create luscious lips every woman would want!

• For your active athletic friends, who don't have time for self-indulgent beauty routines, cosmetics that are easy to use and long-lasting are best. Fill their stockings with extra shoelaces, sweatbands or wristbands, and an important beauty "must"—Posner's new Fabulous Finish Nail Hardener.

No matter what sport they're playing, Fabulous Finish is chip-proof, and provides super coverage and shine to keep nails looking great from the gym to the office.

Holiday Beauty Tip: Athletes should always wear protective nail enamel on or off the court. Strenuous exercise may be rough on nails and cause breakage, so a nail hardener is a must!

FLAVORED VODKA: GIFT THAT KEEPS ON GIVING

Vodka is America's number one choice in spirits for mixability and flavor. While the popularity of flavored vodka is new in the United States, it's been a tradition in Russia for hundreds of years—since the time of Peter the Great, whose favorite vodka flavoring was pepper.

Fruits, berries and other herbs were also pressed into use in vodkas in czarist Russia.

Coast-to-coast sensation

But not until the 1980s did flavored vodkas hit the shores of the United States, when Stolichnaya, the only Russian vodka in the U.S., introduced Pertsovka pepper-flavored vodka, causing a coast-to-coast sensation.

It was followed by Okhotnichya hunter's vodka and, new to this year's holiday season, Limonnaya lemon vodka.

Like all Stolichnaya vodkas, Limonnaya is made from the finest spirits distilled from wheat and pure glacial water; it is then blended with the aromatics of fresh lemon peels.

Limonnaya has been the hit of the year with its pleasant, lemony aroma and its smooth taste—giving a tang to tonic or sparkling water and an unusual twist when substituted for vodka in any drink or holiday punch.

"Some like it hot"

For those on your shopping list who like it hot, try Pertsovka, which today's James Bond fans can shake, not stir, in the Cajun Martini.

Pertsovka is a Russian favorite, mixed from red, white and black peppers, and cubeb (another berry from the pepper family). Peppered vodka has long been enjoyed as an accompaniment to foods, and at one time was believed to have medicinal power.

Okhotnichya, the honeyed-vodka from Stolichnaya, is made from a myriad of herbs and spices including ginger, ash woodroots, cloves, red and black pepper, juniper, coffee, anise, orange and lemon peel, white port and sugar.

It is aged for several months to develop its complex, honey-like flavor, which perfectly complements desserts.

Stolichnaya and Stolichnaya flavored vodkas are perfect for gift giving this holiday season. Delivery anywhere in the United States can be arranged by dialing 1-800-SPIRITS.

Children sport the holiday look

THE SPORTSWEAR INFLUENCE now extends to all occasions in children's fashions for the holidays. Known for their separates in fleece, Heart Throb® by Hot Shots turns to a lightweight version in soft, all-Creslan® acrylic fiber, for a two-piece party dress in delicate pastels. The T-top can be used with other bottoms than its party skirt that's tiered, ruffled and sashed in white net. Crystalline, lightly spangled white bows scatter over the top. Holiday pants outfits by Heart Throb® combine the comfort and easy care of Creslan® acrylic with sportswear detailing and fashion colors. One outfit is in pink and white with the glamour look of a wide-shoulder shirttail silhouette offset by gently belled sleeves. The sophisticated touch of black and white spices another outfit for more informal times. The top is a basic but elongated sweatshirt in fleece of Creslan®, with padded shoulders, and carries a bold cartoon. The words "Super" and "Stars" run over most of the front. The black pants feature the new sock cuff, with its pushed up, slouchy look.

FAMILY TOGETHERNESS MEANS SHARING THE FUN AND GAMES

For family togetherness this holiday season, everyone's joining in and sharing the fun—indoors, with jigsaw puzzles, space age board challenges, charades on paper, even computer software games; outdoors, it's a family day on the ski slopes.

That all-time family favorite, the jigsaw puzzle, is now more colorful than ever, with American Publishing offering a wide selection for holiday gift-giving, including classic scenes, cute animals and contemporary and abstract photography. The 550-piece puzzles retail for about $6.50, and the 1,000-piece sets for about $7.50.

The entire family will also enjoy hours of excitement playing Solarquest, the new space age real estate board game from Western Publishing.

Playing the game, children and their families will learn fascinating facts about the solar system, as they travel through space building monopolies of planets, moons and satellites—an "out of this world" gift for about $12.

Special version

And good news for the younger set—this year's best selling adult board game, Pictionary, has a version designed especially for children ages 7-11.

In Pictionary Junior, youngsters draw clues with crayons on wipe-off boards to help their teammates guess one of 480 words.

The words have been rated for reading levels by educators, allowing children of different ages to play together. Retails for about $15.

The business world, too, provides the basis for an unusual interactive computer game from Maxell this Christmas.

With the purchase of specially-marked 10-packs of 5¼-inch and 3½-inch computer disks, customers will receive a free 11th disk featuring a software game called "Business Advantage," based on real situations from Business Week cover stories.

The player, assuming the role of company president, analyzes the competition, the economy, markets and products, and then develops a strategic plan.

The program takes the player through a simulated year, and evaluates the results in terms of sales, return on investment and profits. The 10-packs retail for $16.99 and $35.99, respectively.

Thrill of skiing

Moving to the great outdoors, exciting gifts for family members or friends who have never experienced the thrill of skiing are coupons for the second annual "Let's Go Skiing, America!" program.

Round up the entire family for the January 8th National Learn-to-Ski Day, a free day of skiing, including lesson, equipment rental and access to beginner trails at more than 175 alpine and cross-country ski areas nationwide (no coupon needed—just call ahead to reserve a spot).

Or, pick up the free stocking-stuffer coupons at a local ski shop good for specially-priced discounts on the same all-inclusive package. For the names of participating ski shops, call 1-800-88-TO-SKI, toll-free.

GIFT-GIVING FOR THE WORKING WOMAN

The working woman receives dozens of gifts during the holidays. Employers and vendors, as well as family and friends, are anxious to extend their best wishes. So, it's not unusual for the same present to turn up more than once.

To be sure your gift is unique and memorable, minimize the chances of it being duplicated. Here are some ideas on how to present a holiday original:

• Think "personal"—Monograms and intimate special touches can personalize any gift classic. For instance, chocolate can be "custom made" in the shape of a house, pet or hobby.

Initializing the standard pen and pencil set or daily diary can help make that gift seem more thoughtful and unique.

• Think "creative"—Christmas offers the opportunity to purchase special holiday gift packs not available at any other time of the year. For example, a favorite fragrance might be paired with a cleanser or lotion, and come in a reusable satchel.

• Think "practical"—When sending a gift directly to the office, it's generally a good idea to make sure it's "commutable." This way, the receiver can decide whether to take it home or to keep it at her workplace.

A present like the Olay Christmas Gift Set—a lovely quilted cosmetic case chock-full of travel-sized skincare treats from Beauty Fluid to Beauty Cleanser—offers a woman many options.

She can keep the case in her desk for moisturizing and freshening up during the day, or enjoy its benefits at home. The kit is also ideal for travel.

The best way to shop for the working woman is to "think" like the working woman. Take advantage of all this season has to offer and you'll be sure to present a holiday hit.

FESTIVE HOLIDAY DESSERT REMINISCENT OF DAYS GONE BY

Our image of a classic Dickensian Christmas centers on the holiday groaning board, laden with good things to eat, from roast goose to the traditional dessert of Victorian times, plum pudding, embellished with a fragrant hard sauce (so called because its main ingredient is brandy).

If you yearn for the flavor of times gone by, but don't have the time to recreate it from scratch in your own kitchen, you'll appreciate the offerings of such companies as Crabtree & Evelyn.

Their Miniature Plum Puddings are enjoyable just as they are, or can be combined with vanilla ice cream for an easy-to-make dessert, Plum Pudding Ice Cream, which is a 1980s update of a perennial favorite. The recipe below was created by Annabelle's Restaurant in Toronto.

PLUM PUDDING ICE CREAM

2 Crabtree & Evelyn Miniature Plum Puddings
5-6 tablespoons of good brandy
1 quart of vanilla ice cream

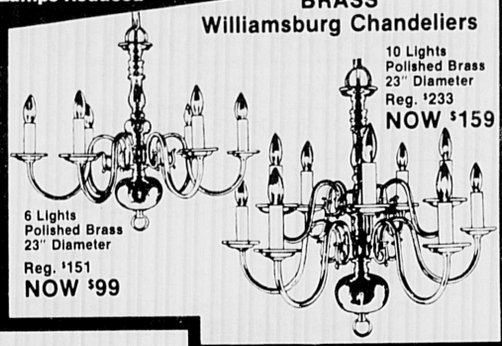

Remove the cellophane wrapping from the puddings, then wrap each in foil and place them in a steamer or double-boiler to steam for about 20 minutes.

Lift the puddings out carefully, remove the foil and the paper around the bases. Place them on a large plate and chop them into small chunks. Heat the brandy, pour it over the puddings, and flame. (If it doesn't light, don't despair—it won't affect the flavour.) Allow this mixture to cool completely.

Let the ice cream soften slightly, then tip it into a large mixing bowl. Fold in the pudding-brandy mixture and any juices on the plate as quickly as you can. Return the mixture to a freezer container and freeze until firm.

LOOKING FOR A UNIQUE HOLIDAY GIFT? The SWITCH™ AM/FM radio is the size of a tennis ball, travels in fashionable circles and never stops singing. Designed by French architect Dominique de Lavergne and made with Sony expertise, it is becoming the rage in Europe—as a necklace, bracelet or belt in Pierre Cardin's fashion shows; as an executive plaything, as a teen toy or traveler's companion. SWITCH joins a growing list of functional "tech" accessories—from watch earrings or pins to sunglasses with rear-view mirrors.

Experts offer advice on the romantic scent-iments that set the holiday mood

Christmas is a yearly feast for all the senses: The sight of brightly wrapped packages placed temptingly under the tree, the sound of festive carols on a cold winter night.

Experts say, however, it is the sense of smell—that scent of pine, a whiff of bayberry, a steaming pot of cloves and cinnamon—that has the ability to trigger the most powerful associative memories.

Scent is also the sense that really sets the wheels of love in motion—particularly at Christmas, one of the most romantic times of the year.

"The eighties have signaled a revival of traditional romance and, with it, a return to relationships built on sensitivity and companionship, not merely sex appeal," observes Sheila Hopkins of Shulton, the largest manufacturer of men's fragrances.

"Books on how to win love, what to do when you find it, and how to manage when you lose it, are topping the best-seller lists. And fragrance is an essential ingredient in this new spirit of togetherness."

Wondering what to get that special man in your life? You can create your very own holiday romance with gifts that say "Merry Christmas" with special scent-iment.

• A Merry Christmas Massage—Wishes for a stress-free new year could include a how-to book on massage, tapes of relaxing music and scented oil. For the more adventurous, instructional videotapes can help. (Make sure they're rated appropriate for family viewing.)

• The Winter Romance Emergency Kit—Fill his stocking with the things enchanted evenings are made of—a split of champagne with two stemmed glasses; chocolate truffles; an alluring fragrance such as new Night Spice®, perfect when the mood says romance; and deliciously scented candles. Then, pray for snow.

• "Don't Leaf Me Alone"—Add some spice to his life with a wreath of decorative bay leaves. It makes an attractive holiday ornament that lasts all year and could inspire his culinary talent.

• Book of Romantic Poetry—When in doubt, give sonnets and quatrains. A book of romantic verse bound in leather never goes out of style.

• A Chip off the Old Block—Fireplace accessories (provided he has a fireplace) are always welcome gifts. Give him a month's worth of pine cones or cedar-scented firewood for redolent evenings of snuggling by the fire.

'TIS THE SEASON TO SHOW HOW MUCH YOU CARE.

The holidays are the perfect time to express your feelings with a gift of fine jewelry.

And because fine jewelry is a gift whose beauty lasts forever, they'll remember how much you care long after the holidays are over.

Fine Jewelry.
When your feelings are for real.

Perfect pre-Christmas gift

Dear Daughter:

Your father and I were so pleased that you decided to host Christmas dinner this year that we have sent your Christmas present early. It's a new KitchenAid Ultra Power Mixer with a 4½ quart bowl. It's like the wonderful K45SS KitchenAid that I've had for years but it has 20 percent more power than mine.

I have also included all of the attachments that you will need, since I assume you will be making all of my traditional holiday treats.

There's the Grain Mill (for grandma's homemade whole wheat bread), the Clear Pouring Shield (so when you make breads and cookies you don't get your freshly milled flour all over the kitchen), the Food Grinder (for the fresh cranberry sauce with orange), the Fruit/Vegetable Strainer and Pasta Maker (for my homemade tomato sauce and fresh pasta) and you can use the wire whip that comes as standard equipment to make your father's famous homemade eggnog.

I've found over the years that the flat beater just works wonders on your great grandmother's Christmas cookie recipes—just imagine doing all that work with a wooden spoon!

Well, dear, I hope you enjoy your new present. When I saw that pretty white KitchenAid mixer with the bright red trim band, I knew it would make a lovely Christmas gift and match so nicely with your new kitchen.

See you Christmas day!

Love,
Your Mother

A NEW MIXER makes a perfect Christmas gift. This pretty new white Ultra Power model with bright red band from KitchenAid makes a lovely holiday gift—and one that can be enjoyed throughout the year.

Give the gift of gab this holiday season

Remember how much fun it was to talk on the phone to friends when you were a teenager? Well, most of us don't have lots of time to spend on the phone anymore.

So when we want to reach friends and relatives to chat or wish them happy holidays, it's great when they have a phone/answering system that makes it easy to leave messages they can return.

And if those people you enjoy talking to don't have this innovative kind of phone, why not give them the "gift of gab" this holiday season!

The full-feature GTE 7020 telephone/answering system combines a high-quality telephone with an answering system in one affordable, space-saving unit.

The telephone will let friends and relatives store up to 20 important numbers, automatically dialed at the touch of one button.

And, to make their phone-calling tasks even easier, a speakerphone lets them hold the conversation without ever lifting the handset.

The GTE 7020's answering system is the ultimate in convenience with beeperless remote message retrieval; Remote Turn-on, for turning on the system away from home; and Message Interrupt, a feature that stops the outgoing message should someone decide to answer a call.

Another useful feature is Memo Record that lets someone record a personal message for other members of the family to hear. All this for $164.95 suggested retail.

Another great gift idea is the GTE 8200 clock radio/telephone (suggested retail $74.95), a compact unit that combines an AM/FM clock radio with a feature phone, so friends can listen to their favorite tunes, keep track of the time and make calls!

Both GTE phones are designed in attractive colors and a warm Ultra Satin™ finish that gives the phones a soft look, and also resists fingerprints and smudges.

Everyone on your holiday shopping list will appreciate the gift of a phone this year. And you'll be happy to know you can reach them whenever you feel the urge to have that long chat!

The sweet smells of Christmas

Christmas is certainly the most fragrant season. During this short period, the amount of fragrance purchased exceeds the total sold the rest of the year. With that in mind, here are a few "scentsible" holiday gift suggestions.

For the English Leather contemporary man in your life, choose a gift from the special "classic car" series.

Each contains two ounce bottles of both cologne and after shave with a useful novelty gift.

Select a genuine leather luggage tag with a privacy feature, or a leather key ring with brass accents, or a miniature ceramic shot glass mug. All sets are priced around $9.

To make her Yuletide sweeter, there's a Heaven Sent fragranced cherub candle. It features a decorated white candle holder with 3.5 ounces of Heaven Sent fragrance to burn. It's a hot buy for $5.50.

Pin her down this Christmas by saying "I love you" with a gift

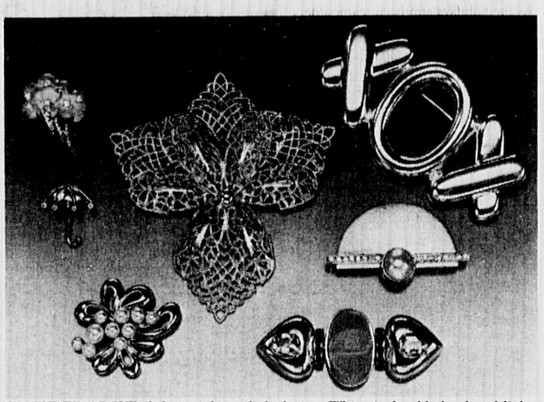

The holiday season is upon us and our thoughts are directed towards the wonderful festivities associated with it—the food, the fashion, the fun—and the opportunity to give gifts to those we love.

The practice of gift-giving is traced to the historical Magi who brought the Christ child gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. We, too, want to find the "perfect" gift to show our love but, in spite of our generous natures, we must also consider our pocketbooks!

Jewelers of America, Inc., the national organization dedicated to consumer education and information about fine jewelry, recommends the only gift that lasts a lifetime and, because of its precious nature, says you care...the gift of fine jewelry.

An ideal gift that will satisfy every personality is the ever-versatile pin. It comes in every size, shape and material (sterling silver, gold and with gemstones), flatters every figure and adapts to every fashion.

It can be worn as part of a cluster or stand alone as a bold statement of style. And, it is available in every price range.

CAMCORDERS PROMISE TO BE POPULAR HOLIDAY GIFTS

As the holidays approach, camcorders should once again be a very popular gift item.

Camcorders—combination video cameras and recorders—make ideal presents because they can be put to immediate use recording holiday festivities.

In addition, the wide range of new features developed over the past year makes camcorders more versatile and easier to use than ever before.

"Camcorders are an excellent gift because they can preserve the entire season," says Stan Hametz, vice president/general manager of Panasonic's Consumer Video Group.

"If you give someone a camcorder on Christmas Eve, he or she can use it to record everything from the children opening presents in the morning to the big family dinner in the afternoon."

According to Hametz, Panasonic's line of camcorders offers the option of either standard full-size or compact VHS-C cassettes. The full-size units allow consumers to use their current VHS cassettes and even play back pre-recorded movies.

The compact VHS-C camcorders, one of which weighs 1.6 pounds (without batteries), are easy to carry and operate, and feature compact tapes which can be played on a standard VCR using an adaptor. These adaptors are included with all VHS-C format Panasonic camcorders.

The increased versatility of this year's camcorders has made these video units extremely popular.

"In terms of industry sales, camcorders are the fastest growing video hardware product," says Alan Schlosser, vice president for communications of the Electronic Industries Association.

"In the first half of 1987, camcorder sales increased by 49 percent over the first half of '86."

In addition to greater versatility and skyrocketing sales, the past year has also seen technological improvements. The 1987 generation of camcorders offers a number of interesting new features.

Hametz notes that Panasonic camcorders can operate under extremely low light conditions. The Panasonic units can record a discernible picture under a seven lux light rating—the equivalent of just one candle—while one model can shoot under conditions which, incredibly, approach one lux.

"Another feature, the variable high-speed shutter, allows you to capture fast motion in a crisp, clear picture for a more professional appearance," says Panasonic's Hametz.

Also introduced in 1987 are solid state CCD imaging devices, which incorporate digital special effects and "wipe away" screen transitions, and flying-erase heads.

Available on Panasonic's top-of-the-line camcorders, the flying erase head is mounted directly on the rotating video head cylinder.

The device erases existing video signals on a tape just prior to the recording of new signals, thereby reducing the distortion which frequently occurs between segments.

Another camcorder feature which helps to simplify operation is piezo automatic zone focus. This system allows the user to keep the center of a scene in constant focus. For general scenes, users can employ a wider auto focus zone.

This year, go Hollywood for holidays

Hollywood is celebrating its 100th year, and Vidal Sassoon highlights the timeless style of the silver screen with the "Flicks" Collection—hairstyles that can put you in your greatest role.

"Flicks" is a magnificent review of hairstyles featuring the '80s versions of cuts, perms and the vibrant haircolors portrayed by some of Hollywood's most dazzling beauties in their most unforgettable roles:

• The platinum blondes epitomized by Jean Harlow.

• The wave of hair across the eye that Veronica Lake made a national fad!

• Glowing redheads like Susan Hayward!

• The startling crewcut of Jean Seberg!

• The sensual imagery of Brigitte Bardot!

Quickly, easily and in time for all your holiday festivities, the experts at Sassoon have put together helpful at-home "how-tos," to make you the shining star this season.

• Breath-taking entrances—Start out Academy Award winning hairstyles with clean, shiny hair. Your holiday entrances will be around when you shampoo and condition with a system specially designed to remove buildup and product residue. Advanced Salon Formula prepares hair for all the season's demanding roles.

• Silent seductions—Warm up winter nights by taking a cue from the leading ladies of the Silent Screen. Sculpt a voluminous wave into your hair and style it to cover one eye. Your eyes will do the talking with a sexy glance, from beneath the wave.

• Romantic leads—A sweetheart neckline, lipstick-sealed mouth and glamorous curls provide the romance for that special evening. With your fingers, mold "kiss" curls in desired lengths and thicknesses to frame your face. Hold the shape with the supporting role of Sculpting Gel.

• Pin-up girl—Whether it's a loose easy style to sit in front of a warm fire, or a tight sophisticated chignon for a black-tie affair, you're sure to be the favorite glamour girl.

For the easy style, take a color-coordinated stocking to use as a feather-light hairtie. Cut one or two-inch-wide strips from around the leg of a clean, worn stocking. This forms a circle band, that is gentler to hair than elastic bands.

Pull hair up towards the crown and wrap a ponytail with the band, letting the loose hairs cascade.

For a polished style, brush hair tightly up towards the crown forming a ponytail. Secure it with one loop of a long band.

Now, instead of overlapping the band over itself, twist and wrap bands down the ponytail to form a crisscross pattern and hold loose, shorter hairs in place.

When you get to the end of the tail, twist it up towards the crown, forming a knot, and secure in place with bobby pins. The results: Chic bursts of color and a slick, tailored style.

• It's a wrap—After long days of shopping, decorating and holiday preparations, treat yourself to a new, elegant hairstyle in a matter of minutes.

Brush your wet hair against its natural direction and blow-dry as you wrap the hair across your forehead. It will be new you making her holiday debut.

VISIONS OF SUGARPLUMS

Few and far between are those individuals who have never heard the phrase "visions of sugarplums."

But, how many people know precisely what sugarplums are? In this era of packaged candies, this 19th century treat remains but a name, not immediately identifiable as glacéed fruits (originally either plums or figs), often wrapped in colorful, glittering foil to entrance the eye as well as the palate.

Recipes for sugarplums today, like the one below which was developed by the Toronto restaurant, Annabelle's, are more likely to feature a combination of fruits and nuts.

SUGARPLUMS

1 cup chopped dried apricots
1 cup dark raisins
1 cup light raisins
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
¼ to ½ cup Crabtree & Evelyn Honey and Ginger Sauce
1 to 1¼ cups unsweetened coconut

Combine first four ingredients and mix well with hands. Add nuts and Crabtree & Evelyn Honey and Ginger Sauce. Shape into balls one teaspoon at a time; roll in coconut.

Keep in airtight container in refrigerator. Serve in paper cups or wrap in cellophane wrappers and tie on Christmas tree.

Makes about two dozen.

HERE'S A NEW TREAT: COCONUT EGGNOG!

There's nothing like eggnog for holiday entertaining. But a delicious change from the customary nog is Coconut Eggnog, rich and unusually flavorful.

It is served during the holidays at two of the finest resorts in the Caribbean, renowned for golf, the world's longest swimming pool, and great food.

The Hyatt Dorado Beach and Hyatt Regency Cerromar Beach are about 40 minutes west of San Juan airport on the unspoiled, balmy north shore of Puerto Rico.

This recipe was developed by Gerard Messerli, executive chef of the Hyatt Regency Cerromar Beach. He was the Rockefellers' personal chef.

Laurence Rockefeller originally built the Hyatt Dorado Beach hotel as a private playground. The sister resorts are just two miles apart, connected by shuttle service.

Your guests will rave about this eggnog, which the Rockefellers always served at their holiday parties.

Another name for the Coconut Eggnog is Coquito—Spanish for "little coconut."

TROPICAL EGGNOG
(Coquito)

4 egg yolks
1 15-ounce can cream of coconut
1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 or 2 12-ounce cans evaporated milk (to taste) or an equal amount of half and half cream
1 fifth (750 ml.) bottle white rum
Cinnamon

In a large bowl, whisk together egg yolks, cream of coconut, sweetened condensed milk and evaporated milk (or half and half). Add rum. Cover and refrigerate several hours.

Just before serving, stir again. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

Makes 25 servings.

New camcorder mike catches holiday sounds

Last holiday season, home movie production received a rebirth with the introduction of camcorders, but many hobbyists had disappointing results with their new camera because of mediocre sound quality.

To help keep last year's hot video product from gathering dust on the closet shelf, a Chicago home video accessories manufacturer has introduced CamMike, a wired video microphone that gives home videomakers professional quality sound for their productions.

"Lightweight camcorders created new interest in home movies because videotape is not only more convenient to work with than film, but features sound and instant replay," says Irwin Diamond, president of SIMA Products Corporation, Chicago. SIMA produces CamMike and other home video accessories.

Despite the benefits of camcorders, they drew consumer complaints because of a few shortcomings in their capabilities.

Common problems corrected

Diamond says SIMA Products studied these problems and created a line of video accessories to correct them. CamMike was designed to make the audio as professional as the video.

With a 50 to 18,000 Hz frequency response, CamMike exceeds the performance of a camcorder's standard internal mike.

Two detachable audio cords, basic components of the CamMike package, help make videotaping more effective.

One of them, a 25-foot cord, permits clear remote recordings and is especially useful for recording a group, Diamond says.

A shorter cord is used when CamMike is mounted on a camera, extending the effective audio recording range of the camcorder up to three times. It also eliminates recording camera-transmitted motor and audio focus adjustment noises.

CamMike is a 360-degree, omnidirectional microphone, catching sound from every direction. It provides super dynamic range, better frequency response and higher sensitivity. CamMike picks up sound accurately within an approximate eight foot radius.

Included in package

SIMA's complete CamMike package, including the CamMike, two cords, camera shoe mount, windscreen and padded carrying case, carries a suggested retail price of $39.95.

THE HOLIDAY MUSIC of the junior choir at the Wheaton Bible Church, Wheaton, Ill., is captured with CamMike. The new camcorder microphone, produced by SIMA Products, Chicago, adds professional sound quality to home video productions.

Light up dad's holiday with a portable generator

Whether dad's an outdoorsman or handyman, nothing looks better under the tree than a sleek, new portable generator.

A generator allows dad to plug into electric power anywhere, anytime, making it ideal for use around the home or away.

Campers find that with a portable generator, they can bring along some of the comforts of home, such as a few lights, electric coffee pot, even a small television!

A portable generator is also welcome in the handyman's shop or around the boat dock for running power tools.

But don't forget the most practical uses, such as recharging depleted car batteries and maintaining needed electricity during home power outages or other emergencies.

To help holiday shoppers, the experts at Honda Power Equipment offer a few tips about generators:

• Most generators are classified by wattage output—for example, a 650-watt generator could power six 100-watt light bulbs at once.

• Look for extra-large mufflers for quiet operation and check decibel levels before buying. For example, Honda's super-quiet EX650 generator practically whispers, operating at just 54 decibels.

• If the generator will be used for camping, make sure it has a USDA-qualified spark arrestor, required for use in national parks.

• Remember, any generator should be operated outdoors in a well-ventilated area, away from combustible materials.

For more information on portable generators, contact your local Honda Power Equipment dealer.

WONDERING WHAT TO GET for the outdoorsman or handyman in the family? How about a super-quiet portable generator from Honda. A power generator allows dad to bring along some of the comforts of home on camping trips, as well as run power tools in the shop and lights and home appliances during power outages.

Celebrity-style celebrations

With the whirlwind of the holidays around you, it's a rare luxury to put your feet up, and table that monstrous shopping list that has been agitating your sleep since Thanksgiving.

Like many of us, you have probably "saved" the most important people for last, counting on inspiration to strike like a thunderbolt.

Certainly the most treasured gift is one that springs from the creativity of the giver or responds to the passions or achievements of the recipient.

If such gifts do not readily come to mind, try imagining the holiday lists of your favorite celebrities, and let them inspire your own gift ideas.

Here are some to get you started:

Some friends mark this season by honoring their shared interests, activities and lifestyles. For example, since they are the indisputed masters in a common genre, Steven Spielberg and George Lucas might honor each other with cameo roles in their upcoming films.

Drawing on his elegant creativity, French master couturier, Hubert de Givenchy might host a sumptuous candlelit Christmas dinner for his dearest friends, lavishing each with a personally-created evening design accompanied by his sensational new and very successful fragrance, Ysatis, an exotic and sensuous floral seduction that highlights the individuality of the woman who wears it, and Xeryus for men, bold and elegant, with the dynamism and hypnotic fascination of a great cat.

Family gifts can mark aspirations, devotions, memories and pride. To express her love, Mommy Bette Midler could make a private recording of lullabies especially composed for her precious one.

In the same vein, Prince Charles, already a published author, could write, illustrate and privately print a short story for each of his children.

Actor and devoted father Martin Sheen might express his pride in his children's remarkable accomplishments by presenting each with a handmade personal collage assembled from articles, scripts, movie outtakes and other memorabilia.

To honor his parents and family, Eddie Murphy could make a gentle video of private reminiscences.

For real estate magnate Donald Trump, his wife Ivana might choose his favorite building and have it interpreted in a meticulous miniature.

Fortunately, you don't have to be as rich as Croesus...or even Donald Trump...to give memorable gifts this year.

The gifts of the heart—personally composed lullabies and songs, stories, poems and reminiscences—would be as welcome on an audiotape, a home-made video or in a handsome blank book as they would be in a professionally finished version.

And remember that even a small budget can express that special holiday generosity that extends beyond your front door.

FROZEN DESSERT TREATS MAKE ENTERTAINING EASY

(TT) 'Tis the season for entertaining!

But, if your busy lifestyle doesn't afford the time to spend hours in the kitchen (and whose does) how do you make sure there is always something special on hand to delight expected—and unexpected—guests?

This year, Shamitoff has taken care of this problem for you, with the introduction of their line of Elixirs de Liqueur. Liqueur Truffles and Liqueur Dessert Bars—the crème de la crème of frozen desserts.

A heavenly union of creamy fruited ice cream and real liqueur dipped in rich white, dark or milk chocolate, Elixirs de Liqueur fit all of your holiday party needs.

Whether you serve the truffles on a silver platter at an elegant sit-down dinner or keep them for a very private moment for two, Liqueur Truffles (a tray of 10 to a box) raise the art of entertaining to a whole new level.

Another option

For more casual gatherings, or for a bit of self-indulgence (and who doesn't deserve some this time of year), there are Liqueur Dessert Bars (four to a box) which are larger, and which come on a stick for increased portability.

What makes Elixirs de Liqueur so unique is that they are made with your favorite liqueurs, such as Amaretto, Creme De Menthe and Myers Rum.

And because they are housed in an elegant and distinctive box, the Liqueur Truffles are also a perfect gift item.

The holiday season may still be hectic but, with Shamitoff's Liqueur Truffles and Liqueur Dessert Bars on hand, entertaining will be a piece of cake!

Making study time more productive: Electronic gifts for the student who has great expectations

Whether you've got a budding executive, scientist, or film director in your household, there's an electronic holiday gift that will make study time more productive through academic years.

Personal computers are excellent and practical gifts, especially for the student who needs to process and store tremendous amounts of information. From small, lap top word processors to large-memory personal computers, there is a model for every need.

If the student on your list already has a home computer, a new laser printer or color monitor could be the answer to your gift needs.

A cassette recorder is another gift sure to be appreciated by the law student who has to remember classroom lectures, or for journalism students who have to conduct interviews.

"Almost every student, in every discipline, can benefit from one of the electronic study aids available," says Thomas P. Friel, group vice president of the Electronic Industries Association (EIA).

"Holidays are a perfect time to give the student in your life—whether it's a grade schooler or a grandmother returning for a Master's Degree—an electronic gift to ease the workload of the coming semester."

Other gift suggestions that will make the grade:

- A new calculator. From the credit card-sized calculators that fit neatly into the pocket to full desk-top models with sophisticated functions, there is a calculator for every business need.

There are even models that can store important telephone numbers and addresses. There are also solar models available.

- A stocking stuffed with useful items, such as blank audio and video tapes, computer discs, or cassette recorder telephone jacks.
- A digital clock for the desk.
- A watch with an alarm to help busy students keep track of their time.
- Electronic translators and spellers, small calculator-sized units that contain vocabularies for different languages.
- "Smart" typewriters capable of word processing functions.

If your student is living away from home in a dorm, there are gifts from the world of consumer electronics that can make that lonely room seem more like home—a telephone in the shape of the student's dream car or favorite cartoon character, for example.

There are phones in every style, and there's sure to be one guaranteed to bring a smile.

Another suggestion for the dorm: A microwave oven, to help your student prepare nutritious meals quickly and easily.

A television set, either a portable or a personal model, or a set of personal stereo headphones is also a great gift that will help your student unwind from the tensions of studying.

"Consumer electronics has changed the nature of the classroom. Today's student can really be helped with items that take some of the drudgery out of studying," notes Friel.

"This holiday season is a good time to help your young student with a gift that will make hard work feel like play."

Fragrant Christmas

A gift of true luxury never fails to give great pleasure, to make a lasting impression. An often unexpected indulgence, it captivates, pampers and seduces the senses.

Throughout the ages, the most sensual, most pleasurable of all gifts of luxury has been that of fragrance. The Queen of Sheba took gifts of fragrance to King Solomon when she visited him in 800 B.C.

Indeed, so highly valued was fragrance, that thieves in King Tut's tomb stole the fragrant oils but left the many objects of gold.

Today the allure and the mystery of fragrance continues in the four classic fragrances from Parfums Lagerfeld. For her: The sublimely romantic floral notes of Chloe, and the smoldering exotic scent of KL. For him: The masculine woodsy richness of Lagerfeld, and the sensory adventure of KL Homme for the man who lives on the edge.

This Christmas, giving a gift of luxury has never been more effortless, more highly individualized. All the Parfums Lagerfeld fragrances come specially wrapped.

Outwardly, Chloe delights the eye with a motif of unfurling satin ribbons, while KL seduces with an abstract fan design.

Lagerfeld is tucked inside handsomely marbleized black and camel paper, and KL Homme captures its excitement in a mist of granite gray and blue with flashes of gold.

Charm her with private pleasures for the bath and the boudoir. Chloe's peach-colored dusting powder luxuriates in a shimmering frosted box with the signature embossed calla lily, and is paired with a sensuous spray of eau de toilette.

Indulge her with the sybaritic experience of KL's silken body creme and eau de toilette, adorned with its seductive symbol—the fan.

Make certain his days and nights are filled with pleasure. Give him the Lagerfeld Natural Elements: A splash of cologne, soap, marble soap dish, and marble-handled razor and toothbrush.

Unleash his love of adventure with KL Homme Essentials: A virile splash of eau de toilette, and the invigorating after-shave baume.

Electronics: Big on technology, small in size, price

AFTER DECKING THE HALLS with boughs of holly, 1987's holiday shopper may turn to one of Code-A-Phone's new family of 8100 Series feature telephones to keep up with the festive pace of events. Offering the consumer designer-styling that accents virtually any home decor, the fully-featured 8100 Series includes directory cards in many color choices to highlight often-used numbers, a true hold button, a speakerphone for hands-free conversation, a 30-number speed dialer and dual line capability. The Series is available in white, cream and charcoal colors.

Big things come in small packages, especially when it comes to today's electronics. Packed with features and state-of-the-art technology, this year's holiday line-up offers something for everyone, at popular prices.

"Today, an entire home office can travel in a briefcase or student knapsack," says Dan Infanti of Sharp Electronics Corporation.

"New small-scale electronics, including everything from portable calculators, typewriters and copiers, to convenience items such as Sharp's Travel Partner world clock/currency converter and auto-dial phonebook calculator, create a whole new range of gift-giving options."

Not your everyday stocking stuffer

Don't throw just any gadget in the stocking this year. Pocket-sized specialty calculators, such as a checkbook balancer from Sharp and a yard/foot/inch model for the do-it-yourselfer, serve a variety of purposes.

Or, give your stylish accountant a pocket-sized printing calculator with contemporary design and rounded edges and buttons for under $35.

For the fashion-conscious student, whimsical Sharp calculators such as "Wink" come in a mirrored, color-coordinated hard case, while sports model "Contender" boasts a convenient carrying strap.

And, who wouldn't appreciate the gift of music? Personal cassette players in a variety of shapes and colors soothe teens' passion for music.

High-tech footwear can make a great gift that will keep feet warm and dry

There may be nothing "high-tech" about slogging through slush and snow, traipsing through frozen woods or sitting in a frigid duck blind. But high technology applied to outdoor footwear makes those activities considerably more comfortable.

That's why a pair of outdoor boots is an ideal gift for the avid outdoorsman, for the person who works outdoors, and for those whose winter activity is restricted to just unpleasant necessities like shoveling snow.

When selecting boots as a gift, Richard B. Sherwin, vice president of Dunham, a leading footwear maker—and an outdoor enthusiast who can speak from personal experience—has several helpful suggestions.

Sherwin suggests looking for footwear with a fully-sealed Gore-Tex® bootie within the boot. This impenetrable membrane won't let water in, but allows perspiration to escape.

Thinsulate®, a thin layer of insulation, provides warmth and dryness without the penalty of heavy weight. Vibram® soles include shock absorbing comfort for hard-working feet and legs.

Fashion flair for the holidays

Dressing during the holidays is more festive and opulent than at any other time of the year. This is the time for velvet and satin and long flowing silks; for the finest of jewelry, whether glittering rhinestones or classic pearls; and for dressing up in those few favorite dresses that we might have waited all year to wear.

Feel glamourous

There are countless ways to make yourself feel especially glamourous for all of the parties and get-togethers this season.

You might try a new fragrance or a new hairstyle, or an eyeshadow with a bit of glitter for the evening, or even get a manicure for an especially important night.

Special accessories

A new pair of lacy hose or a dressy belt can add new flair to last year's outfit and, if you expect to have an especially busy holiday season or seem to always be getting last-minute invitations, you may want to plan one or two outfits ahead of time.

Have the right stockings, shoes and other accessories ready so that, at a moment's notice, you can be beautifully ready to enjoy the holiday spirit.

CHRISTMAS

A Whole Season Under One Roof

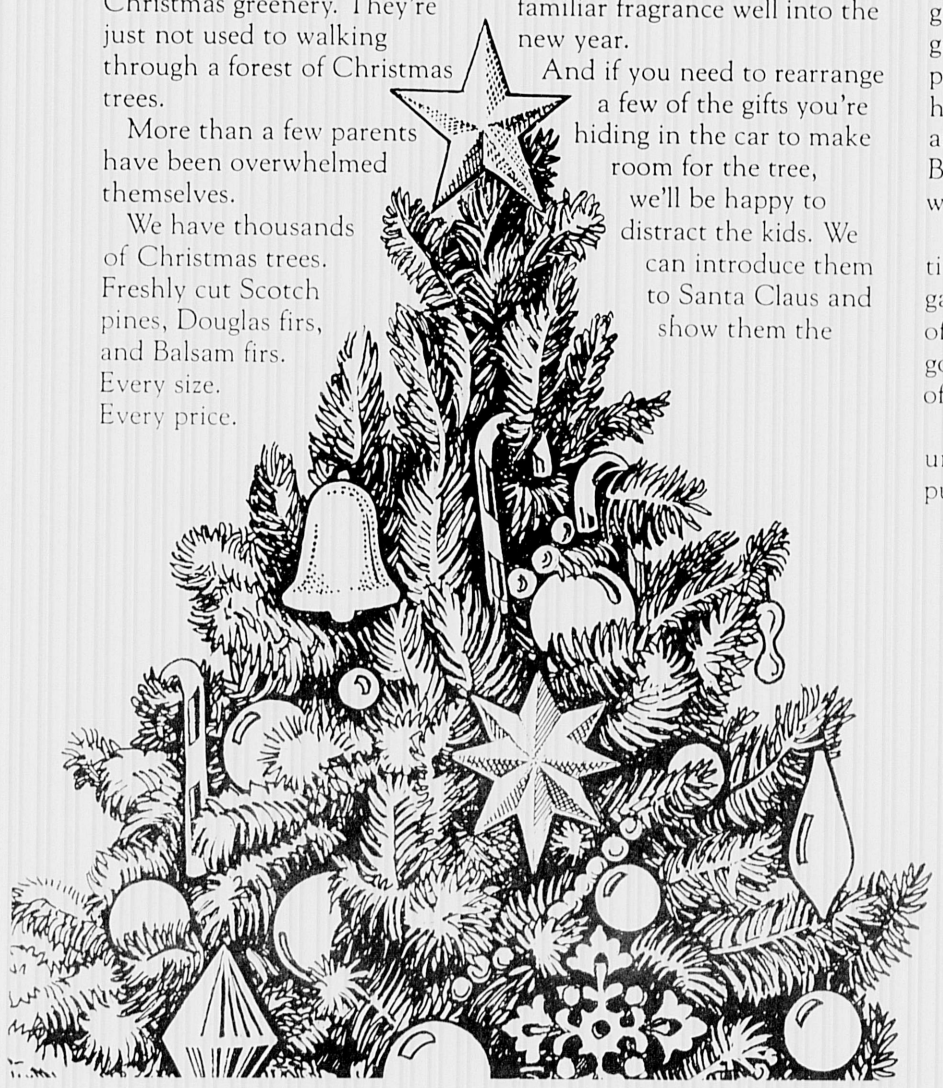

At Mahoney's, Christmas begins in November.

That's when we first see that look of wide-eyed wonder from kids exploring our huge selection of Christmas greenery. They're just not used to walking through a forest of Christmas trees.

More than a few parents have been overwhelmed themselves.

We have thousands of Christmas trees. Freshly cut Scotch pines, Douglas firs, and Balsam firs. Every size. Every price.

Whether you need just the right tree for a small apartment or a majestic thirty footer, Mahoney's will have the special tree you're looking for.

All are lush, high quality evergreens that will retain their handsome appearance and familiar fragrance well into the new year.

And if you need to rearrange a few of the gifts you're hiding in the car to make room for the tree, we'll be happy to distract the kids. We can introduce them to Santa Claus and show them the live animals that inhabit our petting farm.

At Mahoney's we've made shopping for the tree an anticipated tradition instead of an annual chore.

Indoors we have every other type of traditional Christmas greenery—including over 30 greenhouses of red, white and pink poinsettias, holly, mistletoe, and countless Balsam wreaths.

Plus miles of tinsel and garland, thousands of shiny silver and gold balls, and Christmas lights of every description.

Mahoney's. A whole season under one roof. It's enough to put a twinkle in anybody's eye.
